RIVERS ASKS WPA FOR ANNUAL FUNDS TO HELP SCHOOLS

Calls for State Program
Insuring 9-Month Term and Elevation of Teachers' Average Salaries.

8 MILLION YEARLY SOUGHT OF AGENCY

Georgia Unable To Run Institutions Full Time, Harry Hopkins Advised.

Governor Rivers said yesterday the Federal Works Progress Administration must come to the aid of schools in Georgia—and the south—because "we have reached the limit of our taxpaying ability."

In a 30-page memorandum, the Governor painted a dark picture of Georgia's educational situation and urged use of WPA funds to supply textbooks and supplement teachers' salaries to insure a nine-month school term. He suggested also formulation of a program of six state-wide WPA projects to rehabilitate the system physically, with particular stress on rural and village schools.

A foreword to the memorandum said it was "inspired by the address made by Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, in Memphis, Tenn., last August and I intended to suggest a program whereby the WPA can instantly help solve the economic problems of Georgia as reported by the President's committee on economic conditions in the south."

The Governor's recommendations to the WPA administrator followed a series of conferences between Rivers and Hopkins here several weeks ago. At that time Rivers laid his program before Hopkins informally and the administrator asked him to submit it in detail in order that it might be given a full study.

Millions Asked.

Governor Rivers called upon the WPA to set up $4,000,000 annually to care for the salaries of teachers for the extra two months which would result from the nine-month term. He also asked the Federal government to provide an additional $4,300,000 annually to provide an average income of $900 per year for Georgia teachers. The average income now for the seven-month term is approximately $650 per year, or $80 a month for seven months. The Governor urges WPA to suggest state funds to such an extent that teachers will average $100 a month for nine months.

In addition, the Governor urged the following WPA school projects as part of the general education program:

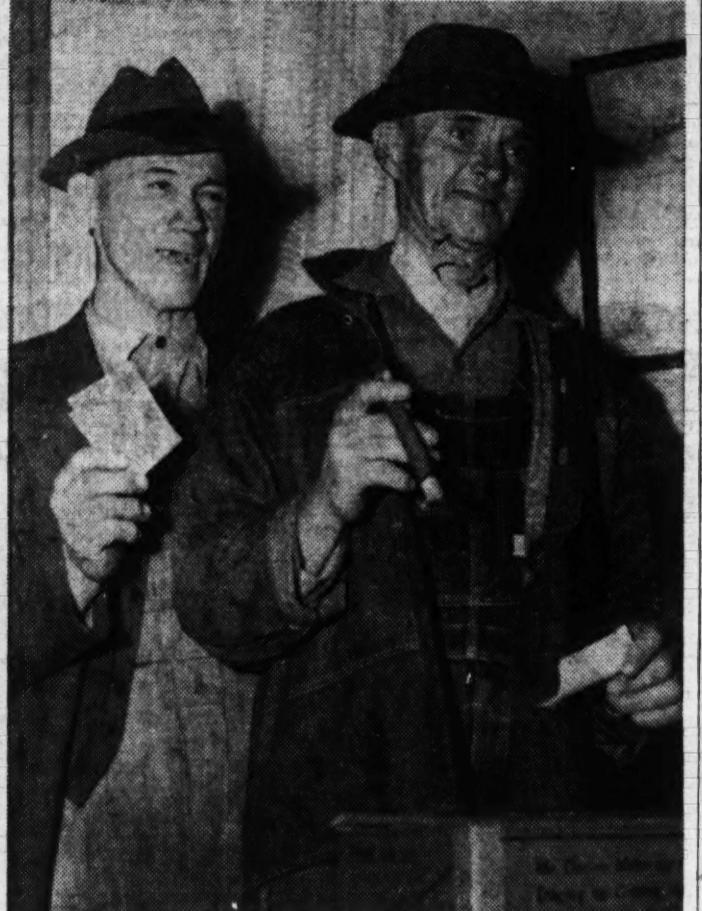

1. A state-wide WPA project for repair of all rural and village schools in state needing repair. Survey should be made to number by counties and approximate cost. Breakdown should be made showing (a) materials needed; (b) labor that would be used; first, unskilled, second, skilled.

Would Enlarge Plants.

2. A state-wide project for enlarging all school plants of state by adding an assembly room equipped to serve multiple purposes as outlined in plan. Again breakdown should be made showing: (a) material needed; native material that

Farmers Cast Ballots in Quota Referendum

LINT QUOTAS WIN; TOBACCO BEATEN

Leaf Marketing Limit Gets Majority, But Not Enough; Price Failing.

The New Deal scored one victory and an apparent defeat last night in farmer referenda on proposals that the federal government be given power to regulate sales of the 1938 cotton and flue-cured tobacco crops.

By top-heavy majorities, cotton farmers voted to continue in operation quotas which were invoked this year to keep price-burdening surpluses off the market.

The vote on tobacco quotas lagged so far behind the required 66 2-3 per cent majority required that referendum officials held little hope for a favorable outcome.

Georgia gave: For, 86,940; against, 27,762, on the cotton plan.

Incomplete and unofficial returns from 886 of the approximately 1,020 counties in 19 states where cotton farmers voted gave: For, 881,740, and against, 163,708.

Leaf in Support.

This vote gave a percentage of 84.3 in favor of the control system compared with 92 per cent cast at the referendum in March for quotas on this year's crop.

Fulton county cotton growers voted overwhelming approval of cotton quotas for 1938, Sid D. Trout, county agricultural agent, announced.

The official returns showed 1,060 for and 160 against. Fifteen polling places were maintained with farmers themselves in charge. Approximately 2,500 were qualified to vote.

With about three-fourths of the expected vote reported, returns from the six flue-cured tobacco-producing states gave: For, 130,372, and against, 98,658. This gave a percentage of 56, or more than 10 per cent short of the necessary margin.

North Carolina, the largest grower, where quotas were approved for the 1938 crop, voted 85,798 for quotas to $4,514 against them, nearly complete returns showed, a favorable majority of only 57.4 per cent.

Incomplete Virginia figures showed an outright majority opposing the tobacco quotas—a vote of 9,663 for them, to 12,789 against.

Georgia's vote complete, but unofficial, was 15,772 for quotas to 9,464 against, a 62.5 per cent favorable majority.

The Georgia results were only slightly varied from a similar vote cast in March on quotas for the night with an abdominal ailment.

CRAWFORD LONG HOSPITAL PUT ON NON-PROFIT BASIS

Dr. L. C. Fischer Turns $700,000 Plant Over to Board of Trustees Without

BOYHOOD DREAM IS NOW REALIZED

Institution Will Serve
Those of Modest Means Who Don't Want Charity

By WALLACE MINSHAW.

A boyhood dream which became a consuming ambition as he grew to maturity—the establishment of an eleemosynary institution for the man of modest means—has at last been realized by Dr. Luther C. Fischer, who this week turned over to a board of trustees and the Georgia Trust Company the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital and clinic.

The transfer, involving a physical property valued at $700,000, was made without reservations and restrictions. It will operate as a non-profit corporation, without stocks or bonds, purely for the man of modest means who does not care to avail himself of medical treatment at municipally operated charity institutions.

Comprising the board of trustees which, with the Georgia Trust Company, will have full charge of the operation and management of the hospital and decide all matters of policy are Guy Woolford, of the Retail Credit Company; A. A. Acklin, of the Coca-Cola Company; Ernest Woodruff, J. N. Reisman, of the Surgical Selling Company; T. K. Glenn, of the Trust Company of Georgia; Armand May, of the American Associated Companies; J. D. Robinson, of the First National Bank; Dr. Frank K. Boland Sr., Dr. Wadley Glenn, J. E. Sanford, of the Armond Fertilizer Works, and George Woodruff, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Dr. Fischer Not Retiring.

In announcing the transfer, Dr. Fischer, who has been associated with the hospital since its founding in October, 1909, at a site on Crew street, made it plain he was not retiring from active participation in the affairs of the hospital. He will remain as chairman of the board of trustees and as medical director of the institution.

Assisting him as administrator will be Russell C. Nye, who ultimately will assume full responsibility for directing the policy of the hospital.

Nye has been associated with Dr. Fischer since September as his assistant. A native of Ohio, he was educated in Chicago, where he graduated from the University of Chicago, and where he took a post-graduate course in hospital administration.

Occupants of the residence saved virtually nothing, it was reported. The blaze was visible over much of north Fulton county. Hundreds hurried to the scene by automobile and on foot.

The headquarters was first used by Major General Eben Swift, first commander of the 82d, and many other prominent military men.

Rate of Thousands Was De- cided There During World War Days.

A spectacular fire which attracted hundreds of persons late yesterday destroyed a famous Camp Gordon landmark—the old headquarters of the 82d division, where the fate of at least 50,000 men—thousands of whom died in France—was administered during the World War.

The cause of the fire, which rapidly attacked the 16-room frame and brick building converted into a duplex residence, was undetermined.

The building was situated near the north gateway to the camp on Candler road, not far from the sentry box known to thousands of soldiers as the "little glass house." The building burned to the ground.

Neither occupants of the duplex were at home. They are Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Montgomery, who lived downstairs, and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Pirkle, who lived on the second floor. It was learned that Mrs. Pirkle was in Crawford W.
Long Memorial hospital, where a son was born to her a few days ago.

Occupants of the residence saved virtually nothing, it was

fully. Lillie Mae White, of 1136 Ponce de Leon avenue, really hadn't been speeding and Motorcycle

NEW SPEED LIMIT GOES INTO EFFECT

Police High in Praise of Motorists' Co-operation With 20-Mile Law.

Atlanta's motoring public gave a favorable reception to inauguration yesterday of a hotly contested program to bring slower speed—and safer traffic conditions

Police Chief Hornsby announced early this morning, after the new 25-mile-an-hour speed limit had been in effect more than 24 hours, that "the response from drivers showed clearly an overwhelming desire to co-operate to give the new limit a fair trial."

Motorcycle patrolmen worked until 2 o'clock—eight hours overtime—patrolling all parts of the city. Of those arrested six were drivers accused of driving more than 40 miles an hour.

throughout the city, courteously saying, "Sorry, but you're traveling faster than 25."

Nearly all instances, it was reported, drivers responded with equal courtesy, expressing willingness to co-operate.

Relatively few "kickers" were heard, radio patrolmen and motorcycle men charged with strict enforcement of the limit reported at the end of their tours of duty.

"I have never seen traffic move so smoothly," said Lieutenant W.
H. Weaver, of the traffic department, who was in charge of the motorcycle men, "and the response from the public was extremely favorable."

CLIFFEDWARDS DIES; STRICKEN AT WHEEL

Car Strikes Several Other Vehicles; Father of Fox Theater Manager.

Cliff Edwards, 54, of 112 Fifth street, N. W., father of Hudson Edwards, manager of the Fox theater and member of Georgia Tech's championship 1928 football team, died unexpectedly yesterday afternoon of a heart attack.

Mr. Edwards was stricken while driving across the Washington street viaduct, and his car struck several other vehicles before it finally came to a stop. Unconscious by the time help reached him, he was rushed to Grady hospital for emergency treatment but lived less than an hour.

A native of Marietta, Mr. Edwards had made his home in Atlanta for more than 30 years and was connected with the H. L. Singer Wholesale Grocery Company. Although he had not been in good health for some years, his condition had not been considered serious.

In addition to his only son, Mr. Edwards is survived by his wife, the former Miss Maybelle Hudson, of Athens; his mother, Mrs. C. C. Edwards, of Smyrna, and two brothers, Allen Edwards, of Atlanta, and Pat Edwards, of Smyrna.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

ONE DEAD, EIGHT HURT AS BUILDING CRASHES

WRENTHAM, Mass., Dec. 10.—(UP)—At least one man was killed and eight were critically injured late today when 30 workmen were trapped under the wreckage of a three-story poultry house.

Witnesses said the entire building, a 350-foot long structure nearly completed on Red Birch farm, collapsed suddenly as the men, all of them inside the hen house, were packing their tools to leave the job. A high wind was believed responsible.

N. Y. BEGINS BUILDING $27,900,000 HIGHWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(UP)—

Construction of New York's $27,900,000 "circumferential highway," a 21-mile motor road which skirts the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens and connect with existing highways in Long Island, Manhattan and the Bronx, was started officially today.

Howard A. Gray, assistant administrator of the Public Works

Administration, dedicated the project to "the part it will play in hastening the economic recovery of the nation." The government is paying $12,000,000 of the cost.

The strain of that question is telling on all the L. family. It's putting gray hairs and deep lines in Mrs. L.'s face. It's retarding Mr. L.'s convalescence. It has dampened the impish spirits of the four L. children. Tuberculosis—and no money. There is life's tragedy.

Efforts have been made to care for Mr. L. in an institution. He'd go if he could. But there would still be the problem of mother and the twins and the two little ones. Besides, Mr. L. believes that he can soon be well again, if he can but tide over the period he must rest.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta, here is your Opportunity No. 1. The L. family, six of them, could make ends meet—barely, anyway—if they had $40 a month, every month, with which to pay rent (a small sum, actually, but so dreadfully important), and buy food and fuel.

Out there in your comfortable, warm homes, would any of you like to try to live on $40 a month with six mouths to feed and one of them requiring a special diet? Ask yourself that question. And then you answer it.

Help Is Needed.

It's a dark picture that faces Mr. L. Its only glimmer of light is that if he can take care of himself now, get the proper rest and food, within the year he will be able to work again. In another year, his twins will be able to help more, too. They are doing all they can now, of course. Those "balance wheel" dollars, just 40 of them, are vitally necessary to carry the L. family forward for a year. Without them, they all become public charges. With them, they see their way clear to economic recovery. There is your Opportunity.

Now, The Constitution and the Family Welfare Society invites "adoption" of this family. Organizations of various kinds may adopt them or it may be that enough people will send in small, individual donations to care for the L. family during the coming year. No matter which, the L. family must be and will be given the opportunity for "come back"—that family has the American spirit of "never say die."

Used Every Resource.

The L.'s have exhausted every resource within their power. Since Mr. L. was stricken, there's been very little money around that quiet little house.

Mrs. L. and Sara have earned and mended and made over even the ragged clothes the L. children had discarded in the family's more prosperous days. Sara's old ones were snipped to pieces to be sewed into dresses that fitted Ruth, and 10-year-old Claude is wearing Sam's throw-aways.

The Constitution presents Mr. L. and his family as one of the neediest families in the city—but still one of the most deserving.

Will Atlantans avail themselves of this Opportunity? They always have. To prove it again, send your donation, however small, to H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution. He is treasurer of the Ten Opportunities fund. Every cent he receives will be used solely for the benefit of the family you want to help a little along the hard, come-back trail.

TIMBER MANAGEMENT TO BE DEMONSTRATED

TIPTON, Ga., Dec. 10.—Five demonstrations stressing the better methods of managing timberlands in the state's "piney woods" areas will be conducted in south Georgia next week, A. R. Shirley, co-operative naval stores agent of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, announced here today.

The demonstrations will be held at Hinesville, Monday; Ludowici, Tuesday; Pembroke, Wednesday; Springfield, Thursday, and Sylvan, Friday.

24,000 HEIRS SEEK $20,000,000 AFTER SURPRISE ARRESTS

Jailing of Original Claimants Fails To Halt Drive for 'Snuff Fortune.'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—(AP) Some 24,000 "cousins" are clamoring for a share in the $20,000,000 "snuff fortune" of a little old lady in black, Mrs. Herinetta E. Garrett.

They are back in the running for a share in her estate after a dozen surprise arrests among a group of claimants that for a time held the rail positions.

The fortune was left by her husband, Walter Garrett, who died in 1895. The money was $7,000,000 then, snowballed to $17,000,000 while she lived and rolled up $3,000,000 since.

The wealthy widow died in 1930 at the age of 81, after neglecting for 35 years to make her will "at once" as her husband instructed in a letter written before his death. Under a hastily-scribbled note to her financial adviser, a paltry $62,500 was distributed.

There were no close relatives to mourn at her funeral.

Nearly seven years later Isaac Newton Sheaffer, a wallpaper merchant in Newark, Del., came forward and claimed Mrs. Garrett as his mother.

He and a group of supporting witnesses introduced family and church documents to prove that the young Henrietta Sheaffer bore a child before her marriage to Garrett.

Sheaffer, declaring he was that child, claimed the entire estate.

The testimony was questioned all along the line by Deputy Attorney General Thomas J. Minnick Jr., seeking to get the estate for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by escheat.

Minnick's activities reached a climax when he abruptly swore out warrants for the arrest of Isaac Newton Sheaffer and 14 others who had testified in his behalf. Minnick accused them of conspiring to defraud the Commonwealth.

At a hearing, Albert D. Osborn, New York handwriting expert, whose testimony helped convict Bruno Richard Hauptmann of the Lindbergh kidnaping, testified that the documents presented by the Sheaffer clan were forgeries.

FEDERAL SPENDING ASSAILED BY BYRD

Liberalism Will Advance If Brain-Trusters Go Home,
He Declares.

BOSTON, Dec. 10.—(UP)—United States Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, charged today that "we have at Washington . . . the most costly, the most wasteful and the most bureaucratic form of government this republic has ever known or any nation has been afflicted with."

"For nine years we have spent more than our income for recovery and relief," Byrd, chairman of the committee investigating executive governmental agencies, told the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations.

The nation's debt next July 1, he said, will total at least $41,000,000,000 and the actual debt, including bonds, debentures and notes issued by government corporations, "will approach $50,000,000,000."

"Those of us who act to preserve the financial solvency of our nation are fighting for true liberalism," he said, adding that a "modern liberal" seems to be "tested and judged in proportion as to how liberal he is willing to be with other people's money . . . .

"But I can say definitely that good government and liberal government would be vastly promoted if the brain-trusters from Tugwell to Corcoran would go home."

Object of Jealous Wrath
Also Injured.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(UP)—A jealous wife hurled a bag of lye with such force today that the contents splattered not only the object of her wrath but also herself and her two children.

All four were treated for burns and Mrs. Sadie Gomez, 28, was charged with felonious assault on Agnes Lally, 19.

Mrs. Gomez, according to police, waited for Miss Lally on an Astoria street corner with her sons, Carlos, 6, and Clarence, 5. When Miss Lally came along, she ripped the girl's dress open at the neck and flung the lye.

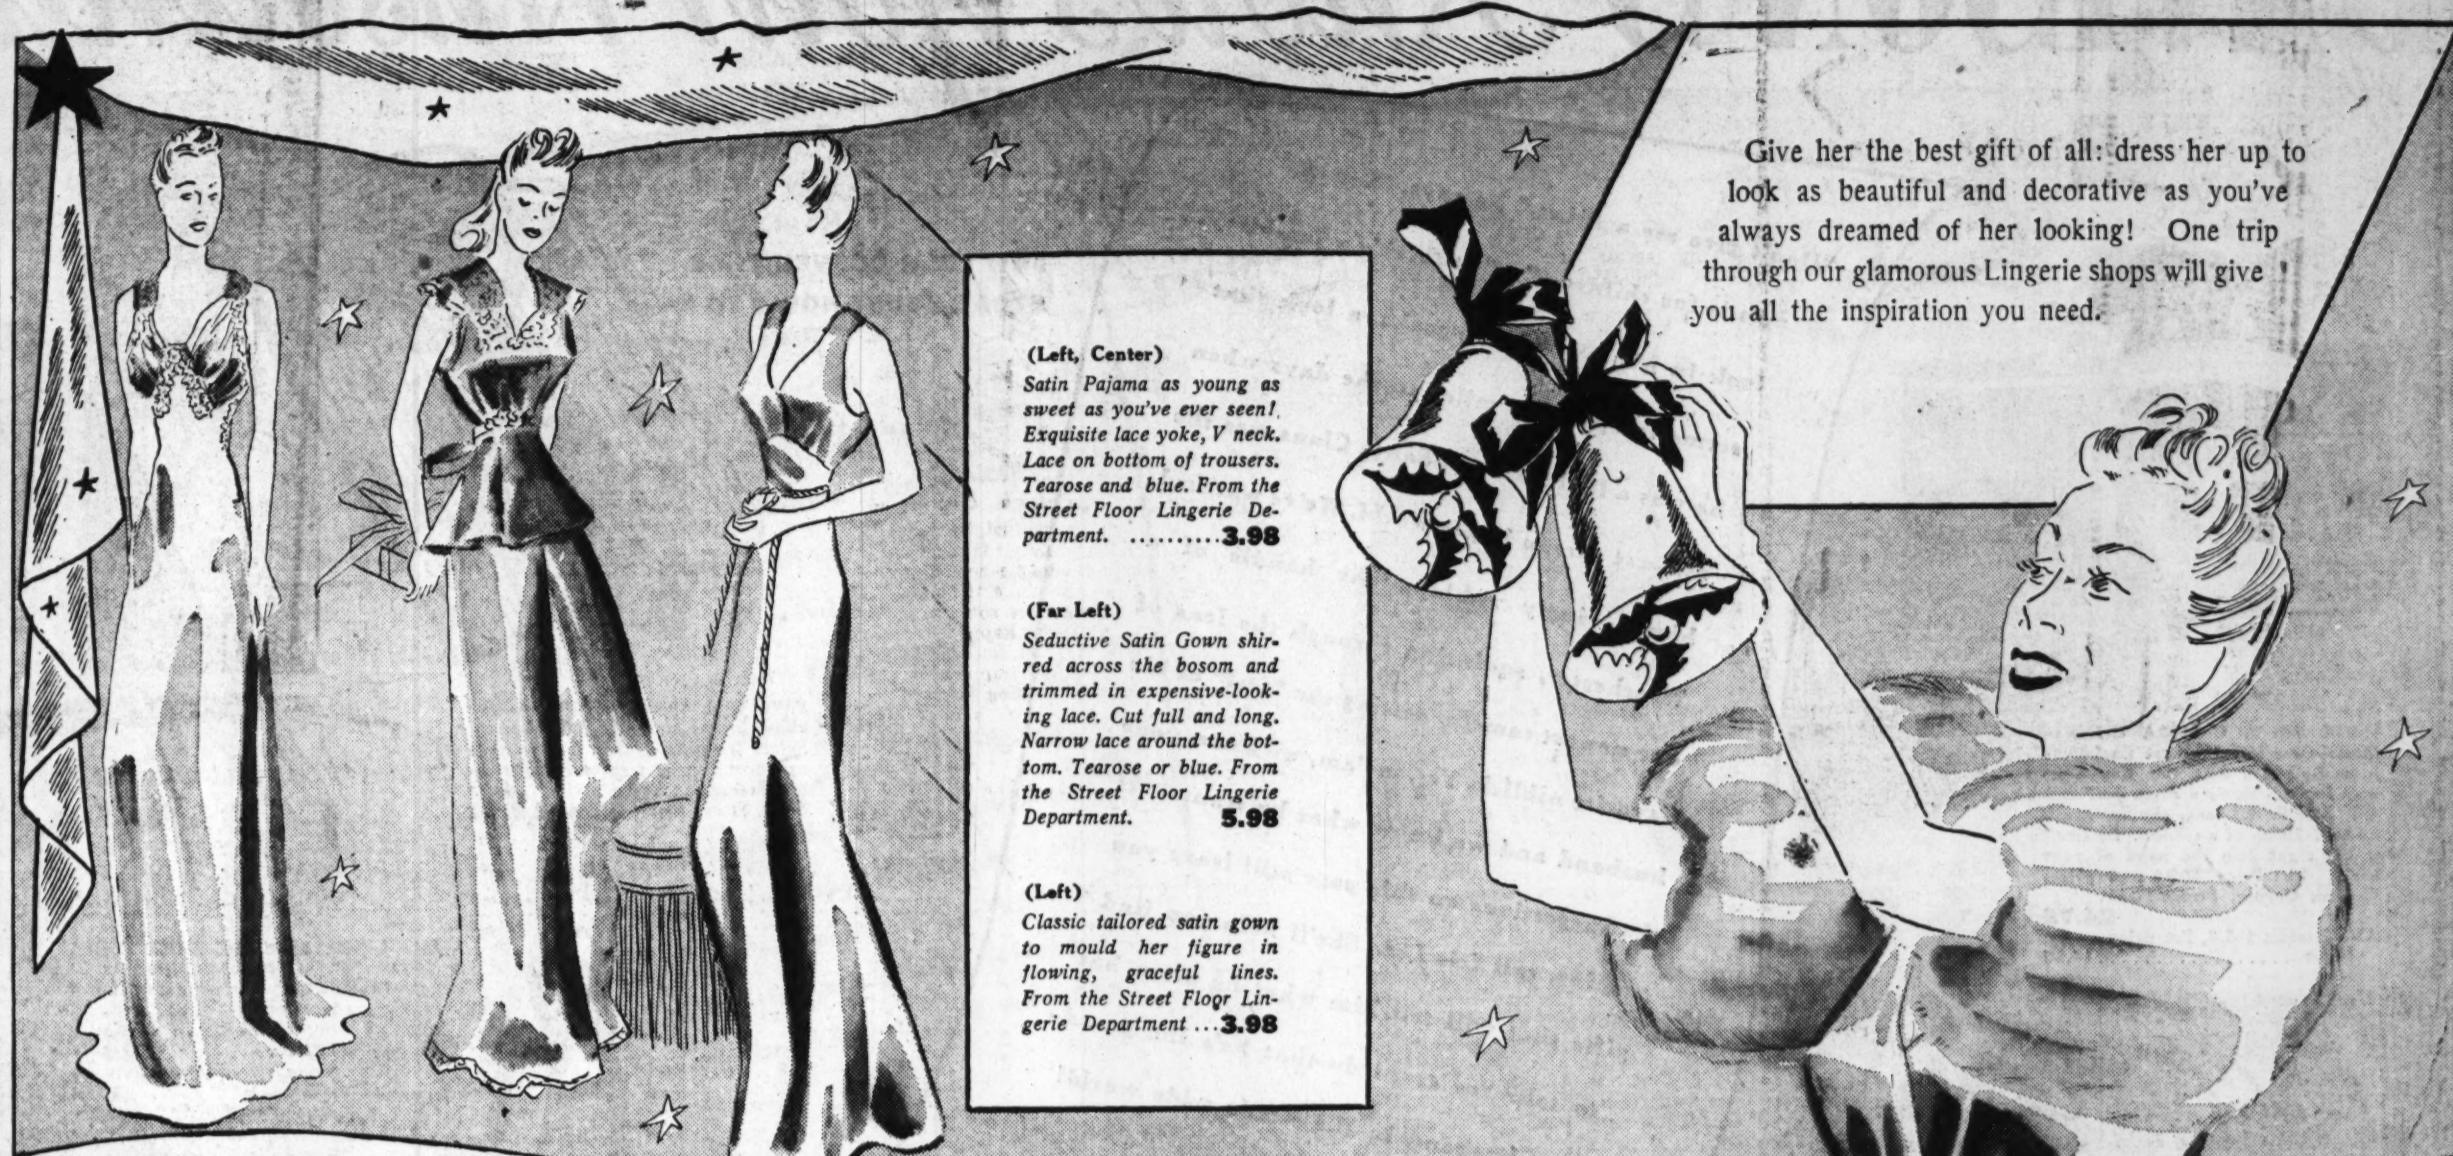

Miss Lally was burned on the face, chest and arms. The children, struck by flying particles, were burned about the face and Mrs. Gomez herself suffered burns on one hand.

London Society in a Dither Again On Curtsies to Duchess of Windsor

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(UPI)—The Duchess of Windsor has caused another split in London society, this time on a question of etiquette, the Evening Standard gossip columnist reported today. The problem is whether society women should curtsy to the Duchess if, as expected, the Windsors come to England for a visit in February. The Countess of Pembroke and Montgomery was cited by the columnist as being among the "anti-curtsey" faction.

"Since the designation of her royal highness' has been withheld from the Duchess of Windsor, there is clearly no necessity for anyone to go through with the gesture," the columnist wrote.

"Many people, however, feel that since this is a gesture of respect and would give pleasure to the Duke of Windsor and certainly would not harm anyone else, it would be both amiable and polite to bend the knee."

GEORGIA TO HOLD 15-MILLION FUND

Jobless Pay Roll Tax Collected From 7,000 Georgia Employers.

Georgia will have an unemployment compensation trust fund of approximately $15,000,000 on January 1 when benefit payments under the Unemployment Compensation Act become payable, Ben T. Huie, commissioner of labor, announced yesterday.

As of December 1, the exact amount was reported at $14,739,742.85 and represented $14,602,210.46 as contributions and $165,027.42 as interest.

The contributions, or payroll tax, was collected from over 7,000 Georgia employers working almost 400,000 employees.

Payment of contributions under the Georgia law began in July of 1937 and records show a total of $5,097,541.99 was paid by 6,208 employers on 359,711 employees during the six months period of that year.

During the first quarter of 1938, contributions amounted to $1,923,394.69 and were paid by 5,996 employers working 338,876 employees.

Records show that $1,934,078.15 was paid by 5,793 employers during the second quarter, and $1,969,399.44 by 5,599 employers the third quarter.

In October, 3,481 employers with 213,019 employees paid the sum of $489,046.35.

Under the Georgia law, insured workers are not required, nor are they permitted, to make contributions to the unemployment compensation trust fund and are the only persons for whom money can be drawn from the fund.

The sole purpose of the fund is the payment of weekly benefits to insured workers, when, and if, they lose their jobs through no fault of their own.

Administrative expenses of the Georgia bureau are paid by the federal government.

Dr. Fischer's Gift of Large Hospital Draws Praise of Medical Leaders

Dr. Carl C. Aven Calls Action a Real Step Forward—"Deserves Admiration of All Citizens of Georgia," Says Dr. Edgar H. Greene.

Action of Dr. Luther C. Fischer in turning over the Crawford Long hospital to a board of trustees to place its facilities within reach of the man of small means was highly commended by members of the medical profession.

In statements issued yesterday, the action was praised by Dr. Carl C. Aven, president of the Fulton County Medical Society; Dr. Edgar H. Greene, president-elect of the organization, and Dr. J. L. Campbell, chairman of the cancer commission of the Georgia Medical Association.

Dr. Aven said, "The income of more than half of the American public is little above subsistence requirements and provides very small margins to cover such emergencies as sickness. Therefore, Dr. Fischer's plan to aid this large middle class of people is a step forward in the provision of medical and hospital care."

"This group prides itself in not asking for charity, therefore any move to supplement their cost of medical care should prove a benefit."

Dr. Greene: "In the giving of Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital to a board of trustees, Dr. L. C. Fischer has done a magnanimous act. This in substance is a gift of $700,000 to the public and should be gladly received by them."

"Its staff is composed of 200 of Atlanta's best physicians who co-operate with nurses and other employees of the hospital to render a real service to the patients. Its rates make it possible for the patient, regardless of his income, to obtain hospitalization. It is affiliated with the United Hospitals Service Association, a means of patients making repayments for hospitalization."

"Dr. Fischer deserves the admiration and appreciation of all the citizens of Georgia who will reap the benefit of this gift. It is his desire that, through the board of trustees to whom it has been given, that other endowments will be made so that it may continue to render a splendid service in years to come."

"Dr. Fischer personally supervises all of its departments and is at the hospital every day. He intends to do this as long as he is physically and mentally able. It represents his life's work and is dear to him because its purpose is to offer relief to human sufferers."

"This gift is one of his many philanthropic acts and one which will react to the good of the public in general and especially those of moderate means."

Dr. J. L. Campbell said he was "highly pleased to learn of Dr. Fischer's magnanimous gift to the people of Georgia."

STUDY IS BEGUN

Comptroller West Compiles Revenue Figures for Budget Commission.

Deliberations on the city's 1939 financial sheet will begin at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the budget commission.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, was engaged yesterday in compiling revenue figures and proposed budgets from various departments for submission to the budget commission.

West said most of the departments had been rather conservative in their requests. He pointed out that several department heads had asked for new equipment. The requests include new rollers and trucks for the construction department, a new sweeper and 10 new trucks for the sanitary department, and several new cars for the police department.

The comptroller said he expected 1938 revenue to be slightly less than last year. He explained the city would lose approximately $85,000 in intangible taxes. Furthermore, the new budget law requires that council appropriate only 99 per cent of actual receipts for the year. West said the budget as finally drawn up would be approximately $10,000,000.

Members of the budget commission are Mayor Hartsfield, Comptroller West, Ed Gilliam, C. M. (Mac) Bolen and Frank Wilson.

VERA REYNOLDS SUES WRITER FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 10.—(UPI)—Charging extreme mental cruelty, Vera Reynolds, once a screen favorite, filed suit today for divorce from Robert Ellis Reel, writer, whom she married to settle a sensational court trial.

The couple married last March 29, terminating trial of Miss Reynolds' $150,000 breach of promise suit against Reel. In it, she charged he had refused to marry her legally after she discovered in 1935 that a ceremony performed in 1926 was invalid.

Underpass Construction.

Dr. Fischer announced he had applied to city council for permission to construct an underpass on Linden avenue with a view to connecting the main hospital building with the annex and expand the facilities of the institution.

Simultaneously with the transfer of Crawford W. Long to a directorate, Dr. Fischer announced he would give to the public and endow his beautiful and spacious home, "Flowerland," near Chamblee, one of the show places of Fulton county and Georgia.

Located in an area of highly picturesque natural sylvan beauty, the 138-acre estate is famed as a showplace of the state. Each spring and summer thousands of tourists from all quarters of the United States come to gaze upon and admire its acres of rose gardens laid in the rustic background of native Georgia pine and oak.

Gives Home Too.

The estate will be dedicated to the public in memory of Dr. Fischer's wife, Lucy Hurt Fischer, who died some years ago, and their respective mothers. Affixed to the house will be a bronze plaque bearing the legend:

"Dedicated for Your Pleasure to the Memory of My Wife, Lucy Hurt Fischer, and Our Mothers, Sallie Rainey Fischer and Mamie Cone Hurt, L. C. Fischer."

The history of Crawford W. Long hospital, or the Davis-Fischer sanatorium as it was known before the name was changed to that which it bears at present in March, 1931, in honor of the famous Georgia physician who first discovered the use of sulphuric ether as an anesthetic, is one that is closely identified with the growth of the medical profession in Atlanta.

Imbued then as now with the idea of providing a private hospital with services in reach of persons of modest means, Dr. Fischer, with the late Dr. E. S. Davis, in 1908 acquired the old Stockard hospital on Crew street. Leasing the building for two years, Dr. Fischer and his partner began operation of the Davis-Fischer sanatorium.

Construct New Building.

Accommodations soon becoming overtaxed, it was decided to build a hospital on the north side. Accordingly a lot was purchased on Linden avenue, between West Peachtree and Peachtree streets, in 1909. Erection of the building was begun the following year, being constructed of fireproof material, and the hospital on Crew street was discontinued during the process of building.

The new building was opened to the public in February, 1911, and continued to grow until in 1922 it was decided to erect another building on an adjoining lot. The new unit was opened in May of that year.

Following the death of Dr. Davis in March, 1931, and in keeping with a policy that had been decided upon the year before, it was decided to change the name of the hospital. Accordingly, on March 30, 1931, the hospital was named and dedicated to the memory of Dr. Crawford W. Long for his achievement in being the first to use sulphuric ether as an anesthetic on March 30, 1842.

BEREFT MOTHERS SEND THEIR PLEAS TO BIG BROTHERS

Many Letters Written on Wrapping Paper Contain Heartbreaking Requests for Supplies.

In the dingiest, poorest corners of Atlanta people sat last week and wrote letters. Some were written on neat note paper, others of better days. Some were scrawled, almost illegibly, on brown wrapping paper. But all had one thing in common. All were sincere, and all asked for sorely-needed aid.

Mothers wrote in behalf of their young children, who, they said, were facing a cheerless Christmas without a Santa Claus. A father, unable to find work, wrote and asked only for food.

"A good dinner for my wife, my baby and myself," he wrote, "is all that we want for Christmas. We haven't had a real meal in so long."

Most of the letters were mailed. Some were brought to Big Brother headquarters, at 58 Peachtree street, because, the bearers explained, they didn't have enough money to buy stamps.

Pushing through sidewalks jammed with well-dressed shoppers their arms full of Christmas bundles, and walking past store windows displaying warm clothes and Christmas toys, they walked into Big Brother headquarters, and hopefully asked for help. And help was assured.

In all sections of Atlanta today, warm-hearted men, rich and poor, actuated by a common love of humanity, are working frantically to meet the tragic appeal. The Big Brothers, under capable leaders, have volunteered their time for the sixth consecutive year to answer the cries of the poor, the underprivileged, of those unable to help themselves. An army of charity numbering thousands, will take over Atlanta streets the Sunday before Christmas, and sell special Big Brother Editions of The Constitution. Every penny realized from the sales will be turned into food and toys for the hungry and the poor.

Charity balls will be given. Every cent realized will be transformed into cheer and joy on Christmas Day for the poor and the miserable.

Recently, at the annual chili party given by General L. A. Welch, at his Sylvan road place, the Big Brothers of southeast Atlanta rallied, and high-spiritedly challenged all other generals and their teams in the chili contest. Flinging down the gauntlet, they vowed to raise more money than any other section of the city, and win one of the four cups offered for workers collecting the largest sums in their sections.

From All Sections.

From all sections comes a like response. Men have gladly volunteered two hours of their time to sell newspapers Sunday, December 18. In spite of the large number of volunteers, more are needed. M. M. (Mike) Gilleland, chairman of the paper sales committee, has asked all those willing to sacrifice two hours of their time for days of happiness for others to clip, fill in, and mail the attached coupon to Big Brother Headquarters or even better, to call and volunteer in person. The address is 58 Peachtree street.

A. L. Belle Isle, general chairman of the drive, again stressed the importance of the movement yesterday. "The need is greater this year than ever before," he said. "Heart-breaking requests for help come by every mail. Atlanta cannot afford to fail her own. We need every volunteer, every cent we can get. Whatever you are able to do will be appreciated."

General Welch, Veteran Big Brother, Host to Workers

General L. A. Welch, a veteran of the Big Brothers' annual pre-Christmas drive to raise money for the needy, flung gauntlets all over Atlanta Thursday night at his and Mrs. Welch's sixth annual chili party for workers in the charity drive. With spirits running high, General Welch and his workers swore that they would out-do all other generals and their teams, and win one of the four cups offered workers who collect the largest amounts of money in their sections. Held at the Welch's place on Sylvan road, the meeting was featured by musical entertainment offered by Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, Mrs. J. A. Hobby, Miss Marie Miller, R. J. Jordan, D. T. Teate, and O. C. McCoy. At the party, from left to right, front row, are Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, Mrs. J. B. Hobby, Miss Marie Miller, R. J. Jordan, General Welch, M. C. McWilliams; Clarence Jones and E. M. Cheek. 5 A state-wide project for aiding state in furnishing free textbooks to all children of state. Breakdown should be made showing: (a) State's contribution; (b) amount needed from federal government; (c) labor needed in handling and distributing same.

6 A state-wide program for improving all school grounds of state, both urban and rural. Breakdown should be made showing: (a) materials needed; (b) men who would be employed.

Governor Rivers declared that his program would accomplish the results Georgia school leaders have been seeking for many years. Summing up, he predicted these results in his letter to Hopkins:

"Employment of a large number of the locally unemployed on projects in their community, thus relieving the expense of transportation and inspiring community pride through the improvement of the community center to wit: The school grounds and buildings. "Stimulation of building trades and industries, and some revival of distributive business.

"Equalization of standard educational opportunities. "The promotion of local self-sufficiency, economically and socially."

Forwards Data.

Governor Rivers forwarded to Administrator Hopkins a large amount of data to support his contention that the state can go no farther with its school program.

He likewise supported his plea with a number of charts and graphs as well as excerpts from a score of reports and studies into the southern school situation.

Simultaneously, it was learned that other southern states are contemplating asking such a program. Governor Rivers said that Governor James V. Allred of Texas had heard of it and requested a copy of the program be sent to him.

"My friend, Governor Bailey of Arkansas, also thought well of it," Governor Rivers said. "If the WPA will co-operate, I think we are pioneering in a field which will answer every educational demand for the next generation."

The Governor's letter to Hopkins asserted that Georgia has "gone the limit" in the matter of free textbooks and declares that only federal assistance can assure the people of the state of an ample book supply. He also points out that the WPA can provide useful employment in repair and distribution of books, summing up the book data thusly:

"In an effort to solve the school attendance problem by removing the restraints of poverty, the state of Georgia has gone its limit in purchasing free textbooks for all children from the first grade through the high school grades. A phenomenal increase in enrollment has resulted in all grades with the result that the state has been unable to meet the demand for books. Thousands of additional school children were enrolled last year because of the free textbook program. This added enrollment has created still further problems of financing additional teachers, equipment and buildings."

The present textbook equipment is far from complete or adequate. In the scheme of instruction, textbooks are second only to good teachers; and hundreds of teachers are almost helpless without textbooks. But whether the teachers are poor or good, and whether the school plant is antiquated or modern, a complete equipment of basic textbooks, and some supplementary and library books, are absolutely indispensable if satisfactory results are to be ob-

FREEDOM OF PRESS IS PRAISED BY F.D.R.

President's Letter Written for 60th Anniversary of Post-Dispatch.

Broken and discarded toys had anti-fire equipment fighting for room yesterday at the headquarters of the Decatur fire department. It was just about a full house.

The toys were collected by the Harold Byrd post of the American Legion. The firemen will renovate each before Christmas Eve.

That night they will be distributed by the Legionnaires to needy children in all parts of DeKalb county. It is a custom which has been increasingly popular during the past two years.

Right now, makes things a little crowded at the station. But the firemen have no complaints.

In fact they said last night they would find space for as many more toys as necessary.

HULL'S CALL FOR MAINTENANCE OF A FREE HEMISPHERE

SECRETARY WARNS OF INSIDIOUS PERIL

Says There Is No Place in Americas for Class and Racial Theories.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP) The State Department made public the following prepared text of Secretary Hull's speech today at the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru:

It is a matter of unusual satisfaction to me and my associates to meet and greet the members of the other American delegations, with many of whom I have had the good fortune of being associated at previous inter-American conferences.

This being one of our regular inter-American conferences, it is well to survey briefly the course of events since we last assembled in this capacity. These events are today of profound significance to our nations and to the whole world.

Five years have elapsed since the seventh international conference of the American states met at Montevideo. That conference faced a somber prospect of continuing deterioration in the field of international relations in several parts of the world.

The years of profound and world-wide economic dislocation had taken a heavy toll of material losses and human suffering everywhere. International commercial, financial and monetary relations were in a state of disorder and confusion. Unprecedented trade barriers of every description had arisen and continued to rise in all countries. Exchange of goods among nations had fallen precipitately, both in value and in physical volume. These developments were serving to intensify economic depression in all countries, to disrupt and reduce prices, especially of primary products, to destroy values to discourage enterprise, to create widespread unemployment and general distress, and to undermine the foundations of social and political stability.

RESPECT FOR WORD RAPIDLY WEAKENING.

Side by side with these mounting difficulties—and, in large measures, as their result—there appeared ominous signs of a disastrous lowering of standards in international political relations. Respect for the pledged word and willingness to fulfill treaty obligations were rapidly weakening. An effort to reach agreement on a broad program of limitation and progressive reduction of armaments was swiftly moving to the point of tragic failure.

On our continent, too, the relationships among the American nations were not altogether happy.

Misunderstanding, prejudice and aloofness characterized many phases of relations between some of the American nations.

The seventh international conference of American states performed a task of historic importance. The representatives of the sister republics brought to the work of the conference a deep sense of responsibility, a firm determination to find a better way of international life than that toward which mankind seemed to be drifting. The conference laid a solid foundation for future accomplishments on the broadest scale.

MONTEVideo PLANTING BROUGHT GOOD FRUIT.

During the years that followed the Montevideo conference, the influence of the work accomplished there bore fruit in the form of steadily and rapidly improving relations among the American nations. But at the same time, elsewhere in the world international relationships continued to deteriorate. Solemn treaty obligations were becoming increasingly brushed aside or breached. A gigantic program of rearmament was being rendered inevitable for the entire world by the announced determination on the part of a number of large countries to use armed force as an instrument of attaining their national aims and by their intensive activity in armament construction.

New world problems, affecting the vital interests of all American nations, were arising with startling rapidity. Accordingly, the representatives of our 21 republics met two years ago at Buenos Aires, in an inter-American conference for the maintenance of peace.

Building on the foundations laid down at Montevideo, the Buenos Aires conference carried far toward the work of strengthening and perfecting the structure of peace in the western hemisphere. By the signing at that conference of several far-reaching conventions, treaties and protocols and by the adoption of a declaration of principles of inter-American solidarity and co-operation, powerful instruments of peace were forged at Buenos Aires. A system was thus created under which the American nations undertook to maintain peace among themselves and pledged themselves to consult, with each other, in the event that the peace of any one of them might be threatened, whether on the American continent or from outside.

Buenos Aires CREATED AMERICAN SYSTEM.

The creation of this American system was the outstanding accomplishment of the Buenos Aires conference. In addition, our nations reaffirmed their determination, already clearly and vigorously expressed at Montevideo, to work in the direction of improved economic relations and of closer cultural relationships as necessary foundations of order under law. Under this system and as a result of this determination, peace and friendly co-operation prevail today in the western hemisphere.

TREATY OF PEACE MOST SIGNIFICANT.

The treaty of peace between the republics of Bolivia and Paraguay, concluded last July, is one of the most significant and encouraging developments in inter-American relations during recent years. By this peace the two countries gave an undeniable example to the faithless and the reckless who think that questions can be settled only by force or frightfulness.

Finally, may I add that it should be a matter of profound gratification to all of us that our nations can point to an impressive record of accomplishment during the past five years.

To be sure, stock-taking alone, even as satisfying as this, is not sufficient.

We are faced today with world problems and world conditions which are even more difficult and fraught with more danger for all of us than those with which we were confronted at Montevideo and at Buenos Aires. Our present conference has before it tasks of utmost gravity and responsibility.

But a clear visualization of what we have already accomplished and a realization, therefore, of what we are capable of accomplishing, should aid us enormously in applying ourselves to the tasks which are before us.

There is no mystery about the reasons why developments in the western hemisphere during recent years have been so markedly different from those which have occurred in many other parts of the world. In this measure, the explanation lies in the fact that the American nations have in common certain important and fundamental characteristics.

EACH NATION AROSE OUT OF REVOLUTION.

Each of our nations arose out of revolution which had for its objective national independence and the assertion of human rights and of popular government.

The men and women of the particular generation in each of our countries which achieved for its people independent nationhood staked their all on a passionate conviction that forms of government can be created under which human rights will be secure. They gladly fought for the vindication of their conviction. They bequeathed to us of today not only the forms of such government but also the spirit on the basis of which alone institutions of this character can endure.

Throughout its national existence, each of our nations has sought to perfect within its frontiers a system of representative government and of liberty for the individual.

In this supreme endeavor, some of us have encountered greater internal difficulties than have others. Some of us have suffered from interference of outside forces; some have had to combat such forces. But in each and every one of our nations there has been no flagging in the determination of the people to preserve national independence and freedom for the individual.

Our nations have drawn into their populations men of many races, creeds, and languages. This fact has not operated as an element of weakness.

The occasion for the adjustment of race to race and of creed to creed has been in large measure instrumental in teaching us how to develop adjustment of individual to individual and of group to group without which civilized society and democratic forms of social and political organization can not function satisfactorily.

SPRIT OF TOLERANCE, MUTUAL RESPECT.

A spirit of tolerance, mutual respect and understanding is as important in the relations of our nations with each other as in our internal relations. Happily, this spirit has been present, although it has not always developed uninterrupted along the upward trend.

Like all things human, it has had its fluctuations. Disagreements and controversies have arisen

among us. But they have remarkably seldom been settled by the arbitrament of violent conflict, in the form of either military or of other types of coercion.

International relations in the western hemisphere have not been free from the paralyzing and disruptive forces of narrow nationalism. But the operation of these forces has been parallel—and, happily increasingly overcome—by the growth of solidarity, of common concern for peace and progress in our relations with each other, by a strengthening of determination to adjust by pacific means alone whatever differences may arise among us.

It is not an accident that American nations have been peculiarly interested in the development of that armed force is not the only instrumentality by which nations can be conquered. Equally, the dissemination by nations of doctrines and the carrying on of many other types of activity can be utilized for the purpose of undermining and destroying in other nations established institutions of government and basic social order. Such activities are based on the fallacious theories of class or racial superiority, or claims to national dominance, which are being revived again in some parts of the world.

AMERICA'S NO PLACE FOR SUCH LOCTRINES.

There is no place in the western hemisphere for a revival of such doctrines and theories, which our nations, in common with an overwhelming majority of civilized mankind, rejected long ago.

Each and all of us desire to maintain friendly relations with every nation of the world—resting upon the basis of mutual respect for national independence, upon non-interference in the internal affairs of others, upon fair dealing in every phase of international relationships. But there should not be a shadow of a doubt anywhere as to the determination of the American nations not to permit the invasion of this hemisphere from any quarter by activities contrary or inimical to this basis of relations among nations. Here again, with a full consciousness of our common interest and responsibility, each of our nations must decide for itself what measures it should take in order to meet these insidious dangers.

All this is of surpassing importance. And yet, adequate defense against actual or potential danger is not enough as the objective of responsible statesmanship. There is equal or even greater need for unstinted effort in the direction of removing the causes of danger and of opening the way for the constructive processes of human progress. The conditions which confront us require also a vigorous program of positive action.

In an important measure, such a program already exists. It is the fruitful result of inter-American conferences held in the past and of the influence exerted upon the life of our hemisphere by these periodic exchanges of views and by the agreements which we reach on vital problems. The conference in which we are again assembled now as representatives of the American nations offers a timely and precious opportunity for advancing and perfecting this indispensable program of assuring the solidarity, security, independence, prosperity, and progress of the Americas and of making our individual and joint contribution to the peace and well-being of the world.

MUST BUILD PEACE STRUCTURE.

Our conference must carry forward the work of building an enduring structure of peace. It is within the power of the American nations to furnish a conclusive demonstration of the peace, law, and co-operative effort, is unquestionably feasible. To that end, we must examine anew the existing instruments of peace, by which we are all bound international law. Relationships different from those which have occurred in many other parts of the world, are powerful factors in enabling us to perform this duty. Toward that end we must work unrelentingly.

Each and all of us desire passionately to live at peace with every nation of the world. But there must be no illusion as to the determination of the American nations not to permit the invasion of this hemisphere by the armed forces of any power or any possible combination of powers. Each of our nations obviously must decide for itself what measures it should take in order to meet its share of our common interest and responsibility in this respect. As far as my country is concerned, let no one doubt for a moment that, so long as the possibility of armed challenge exists, the United States will maintain adequate defensive military, naval, and air establishments.

At the same time, we all know

UTILITY INDUSTRY RAPPED BY RANKIN AT PROBE OF TVA

Mississippi Congressman Charges Power Leaders With Intimidations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(P)—Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, and private utility spokesmen engaged in some forthright name calling today when the congressman appeared before the TVA investigating committee to laud the vast public power project.

The gray-haired Mississippian contended that the TVA and its "yardstick rate" had lopped $56,000,000 from the annual electric bills of consumers and that for this reason the utility industry was trying to "destroy this yardstick of the people."

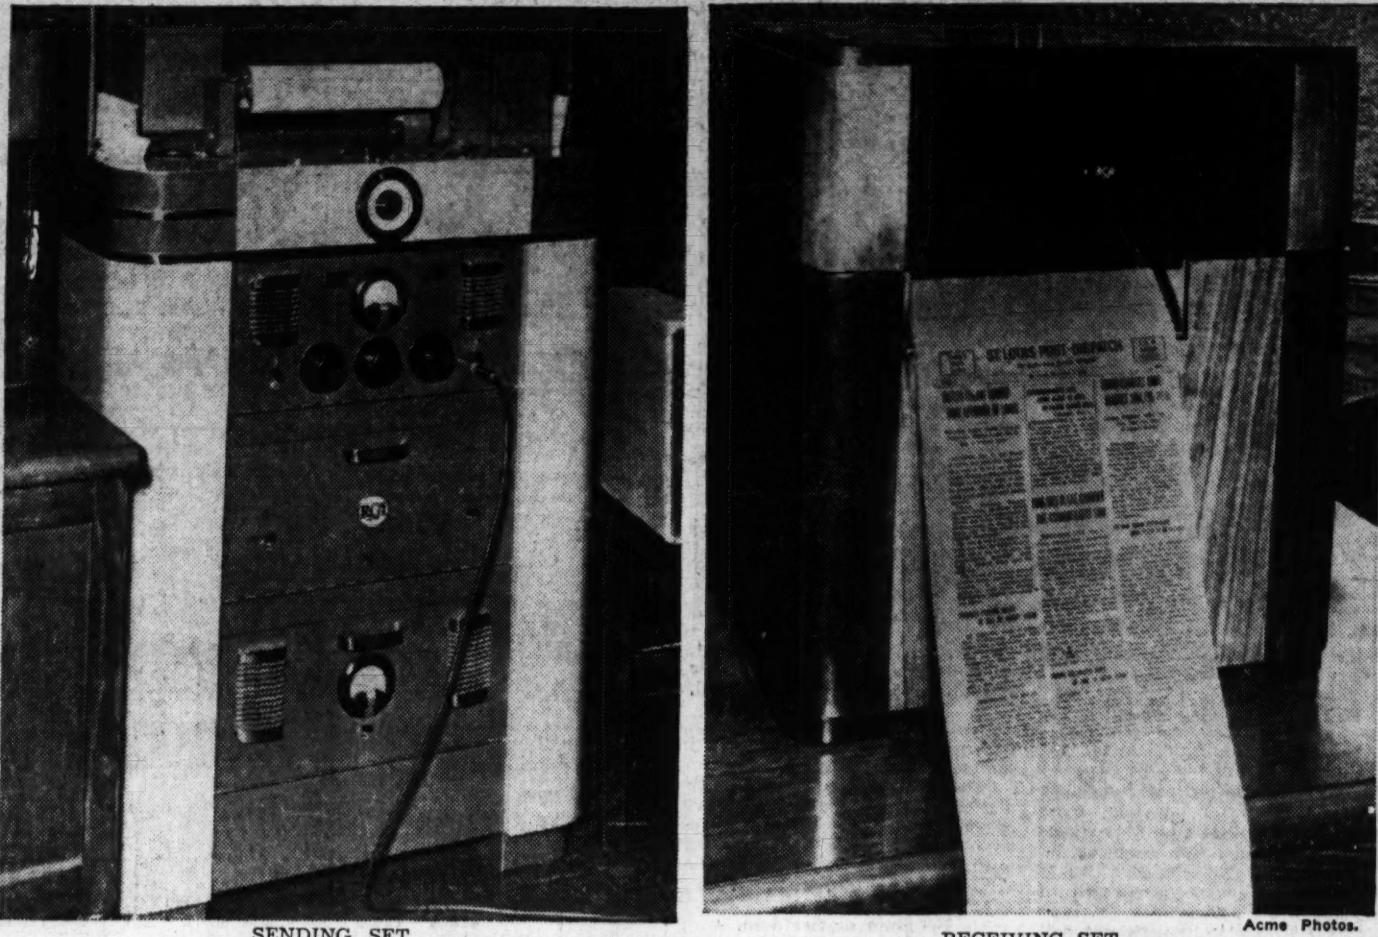

Rankin, a co-author of the TVA act and long-time advocate of public power, interrupted his prepared statement several times to charge private utility leaders had attempted to intimidate the courts and the press, to "bribe legislators directly and indirectly" and influence churches and schools. He nodded assent when Senator Schwartz, Democrat, Wyoming, inquired whether the integration of private utilities was not a form of Fascism.

Shortly after Rankin had concluded his testimony, two private utility men he had mentioned replied with bristling statements.

C. W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric Institute, said Rankin's testimony was "fallacious."

and deliberately misleading" and an "unfair attack on one of the key industries of the country, at a time when restored confidence to investors and encouragement to initiative is badly needed."

Rankin had referred to the Institute as "the mouthpiece of the private interests."

Kellogg said Rankin's contention that TVA had reduced electric costs all over the country was "ridiculous."

Health Officials Seeking Owner Of Dog's Head

An appeal for the person who left a dog's head at the state department of public health was issued yesterday by Dr. T. F. Sellers, head of the laboratory, who said tests showed the animal had rabies.

The chances were felt to be that somebody was bitten by the infected animal and was in need of anti-rabies treatment. The disease might be gaining a foothold moment by moment.

The head was left at the health offices in the state capitol either last Saturday or Sunday. It was in a paper box, with the name "J. R. Thomas" written on the outside. An address was under the name, but writing was illegible.

1938 crop. At that time, 16,083 favored restrictions, with 9,854 opposed. This was about 62 per cent.

South Carolina's virtually complete vote gave 15,648 for and 10,479 against, while Florida's unofficial report was 2,392 for the quota plan and 1,406 against it. Meager returns from Alabama, a small grower, gave 97 votes for quotas and 6 against them. The crop is grown in only five counties in that state.

A belt-wide affirmative vote by two-thirds of the planters in the participating states was necessary to impose the quotas. No state may act independently of the others on the matter. For the 1938 crop, the quota plan was approved 219,442 to 35,234—86 per cent—in a referendum, March 12.

Early and inconclusive returns from a referendum on rice quotas showed the control proposal considerably behind the necessary vote.

Administration farm officials hailed the cotton results as indicating that producers of the southland's big crop favored continuance of the present crop control law. On the basis of latest returns, they prepared to launch a vigorous campaign against substitute plans expected to be presented to the new congress.

BANKS NOT TO SEEK NEW LEGISLATION

Thirty Georgia Financiers Attend Meetings of Committees.

Legislative committee of the Georgia Bankers' Association will not seek enactment of any new bills at the next session of the legislature, it was announced here yesterday after an executive session of the group.

Thirty bankers from all parts of the state attended a series of committee meetings under auspices of the association. Dan H. Otis, director of the agricultural committee of the American Bankers' Association, was among the visitors present.

The past year's record of banker-farmer co-operation in soil conservation, hog and cattle raising and better systems of farm accounting was reviewed. Relief of the cotton problem was suggested by H. Lane Young in a proposal to push legislation requiring the compulsory poisoning of the boll weevil, the poison to be supplied free by the AAA as a part of its soil conservation program.

Improved methods of tobacco marketing also were advocated, and the executive council pledged its continued assistance in the plans of the state highway patrol to add radio control to the equipment now in use.

WOMEN CONSIDER SUFFRAGE AT LIMA

Difference Develops Over U. S. Proposal.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Women representatives of the United States and other countries attending the eighth Pan-American conference continued informal discussion tonight on the proposed treaty among the represented nations on the extension of suffrage and other civil and political rights to women.

Difference of feeling has developed from a United States proposal that a resolution on women's rights include a clause to safeguard existing laws for the protection of women workers in industry. Latin-American delegates have indicated their belief that the questions of women's rights and suffrage should be left to the various countries because of prevailing dissimilar conditions.

LOYALISTS DRAFT NEW DEFENSE ARMY

All Able-Bodied Men in Catalonia Called Out To Stop Rebels.

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 10.—(UP)—The Spanish Loyalist government was reported tonight to be calling up every able-bodied male in Catalonia in an effort to put 300,000 soldiers in the path of an expected Insurgent offensive against Barcelona.

The Spanish news agency said that every man and boy capable of carrying a gun had been called to action and that women were mobilized for work in factories and in office jobs from which the men were called.

Reports from Pamplona indicated that hostility continued between Spanish Insurgents and Italian troops serving under Generalissimo Francisco Franco. Disorders occurred in the Olympic cinema when a parade of Italian troops was shown on the motion picture screen. The audience whistled and cat-called until the picture was cut off.

Despite the bad weather five Insurgent Savoia planes bombed Barcelona. Prompt warnings averted a catastrophe when one bomb scored a direct hit in the courtyard of a school. Four hundred children had been playing in the yard a few minutes before but had fled to underground refuge. Two teachers were wounded.

with the usual Nazi policy of surprise action but three trouble spots offered possible clues.

1. In Memel, long the center of a dispute between Germany and Lithuania, extreme Nazis closed a bold campaign for diet elections to be held tomorrow with statements they considered the voting a plebiscite for return to Germany.

2. Poland is confronted with the demand of 15 Ukrainian deputies for autonomy within the framework of the Polish government for the Polish Ukraine, an area of 50,000 square miles.

3. Rumania continued her efforts to crush the Nazi-like Iron Guard while some Nazis in Berlin hinted King Carol, in their opinion, might not be able to hold his throne much longer.

THIRD-TERM TALK TURNS TO CHANCE OF A 4-YEAR SKIP

Political Writers Wonder If Roosevelt Has His Eye on 1944, Will Become a Commentator.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(UP)—A new round of Democratic sparring for and against a third term for President Roosevelt has led political writers to re-examine the President's recent public utterances for indications of his attitude.

They found at least one possible clue that Mr. Roosevelt might be thinking of his own future course, even of another candidacy, in terms of 1944 rather than 1940. They found also, in his frequent jocular hints, that the role of political commentator, perhaps of press columnist, might interest him when he does leave the White House and afford him an opportunity to keep his philosophy in the public eye.

The idea that a 1944 campaign for a non-consecutive third term might figure in Mr. Roosevelt's looking ahead, more than does the 1940 aspect of the present party controversy, has had an increasing appeal to this writer for some time. For one thing, it would not be a break with precedent. There are at least two Republican cases somewhat parallel—those of Grant and Theodore Roosevelt.

The President has made no secret of the fact that he is thinking of the Theodore Roosevelt parallel to the situation in which he finds himself due to clashes within his own party over liberal versus conservative trends. He cited recently a Theodore Roosevelt letter of 1908 to west coast liberal, presumably Republican, urging him to carry on in the face of every discouragement.

It does not make much difference what west coast Republican liberal Theodore Roosevelt was addressing. It might well have been Hiriam Johnson, of California, whose political star was destined to shine brightly two years later in his election as an ultra-liberal Republican governor.

2 YOUTHS TO PAINT MURAL IN BOSTON

Atlanta Art Students Show Outstanding Ability in Work.

By ELLEN ST. JOHN BARNWELL.

Two youths who studied art at the High Museum Art school have finished painting a mural for a New York "hot spot" and were so successful they have been commissioned for a mural in Boston. They are William Hendrix, who studied here in 1936, and David Reese, '37. They have shown outstanding ability in design.

The mural for the New York night club, the "Troc" on Fifty-second street, is a warm, vivid piece in Mexican motif. The Boston mural, on which Hendrix and Reese start work in January, will be of an aquatic nature, as it will decorate the National Motor Boat Show.

Both showed great ability while in Atlanta. The prize that caused the most interest in Atlanta, won by David Reese in May, 1937, was the Leonora S. Raines prize for his portrait of "The Most Typical Negro Man."

The exhibit of 38 paintings by the brilliant Atlanta artist, Claude Herndon, recently returned from a year's study abroad, is continuing to draw intense interest at the museum.

The work of Newton Merrill, of Fern Park, Fla., is shown in Gallery No. 1 and the permanent exhibitions are also to be seen. The High Museum is open from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock on Sundays and from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock on week days. The public is invited. There is never any charge of admission.

SPALDING SERVICES SET FOR TOMORROW

Final Rites Will Be Conducted at Co-Cathedral of Christ the King.

Final funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Co-Cathedral of Christ the King for Captain Jack J. One of the Catholic church's most solemn rituals, a pontifical requiem mass, will be chanted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Gerald P. O'Hara, of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese, assisted by the pastor, the Very Rev. Father Joseph E. Moyle.

It will be the first service in the new church, which will not be dedicated for several weeks. Special dispensation was granted by Bishop O'Hara to permit its use.

EDEN SEES SIGHTS OF GAY BROADWAY

Handsome Briton Visits La-Guardia, Attends Musical Revue, "Hellzapoppin."

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Anthony Eden saw the sights and attended a gay Broadway revue tonight in an interlude of relaxation before going to Washington next week for a potentially significant talk with President Roosevelt.

The former British foreign secretary, who in an address last night stated Britain's determination to defend her democracy, visited the Empire State building, chatted with Mayor La Guardia at city hall and had a cocktail with Grover Whalen at the World's Fair grounds.

Tonight he and Mrs. Eden and their party went to "Hellzapoppin," the city's insanest musical revue. Olsen and Johnson, the comedy team which makes "Hellzapoppin" the noisiest and fastest show to hit Broadway in years, tried to devise some new jokes for his benefit.

Eden was in "London city dress"—short black coat, gray striped trousers, linen collar, silver colored tie, brown Chesterfield with velvet collar, black Homburg—when he went to call on the mayor. They talked for 20 minutes. Eden, laughing, said "the mayor gave me a little instruction which I sadly needed" but refused to say what it was.

Reports from Washington said Eden is expected to call on President Roosevelt Tuesday during his visit to the capital.

F. D. R. WILL STORE HIS STATE PAPERS

Will Establish Permanent Repository at Hyde Park Estate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt announced today plans for establishing a permanent repository on his Hyde Park (N. Y.) estate for all of his personal papers and his huge collection of books and paintings.

He disclosed simultaneously that funds which he had received from the publication of various of his papers and speeches during the first years of his administration would form the nucleus of a fund to be raised by public subscription to finance the Hyde Park project.

Eventually Mr. Roosevelt said, the part of the Hyde Park estate on which his family now lives will be turned over to the federal government. Meanwhile, the National Archives, a federal agency, will take over control of his papers, which he has been collecting for the last 28 years.

wide organizations and civic groups. He said he would make a more thorough study of the activities before determining trend of his article.

HANGED 'WOMAN' PROVES TO BE MAN

Authorities Baffled by Bi-zarre Death—Youth Wore Wig and Dress.

More Than 300 Citizens Served in Auditorium at Hapeville.

GALESBURG, Ill., Dec. 10.—(UP)—Gale Davison and his fiancée planned to celebrate his 28th birthday today—but tonight his body, masked in women's clothes, wig and rouge, lay in a morgue while authorities tried to decide whether he was hanged or committed suicide.

Their first conviction was that he killed himself but they had no answer for a number of perplexing "whys."

Why, they asked, if he wanted to hang himself, did he do it on an eight-foot sapling which bent until his knees brushed the ground?

Why—and how—could he have clamped a cheap set of handcuffs tightly around his slim wrists behind his back?

Why was he wearing his mother's silk undergarments, black dress, and shoes, with a long braided wig on his head and rouge on his cheeks?

Two boys hunting rabbits this morning found the body, suspended by a dog's chain leash, in a cornfield on the outskirts of town. They ran crying to a farmhouse that a woman was hanging in the field. It was the death of a "woman" that the sheriff entered in his records.

DEMOCRACY HOLDS BIG AREAS BEHIND TROOPS OF JAPAN

2,000,000 Chinese Farmers Banded in Union To Resist Invaders.

By An Associated Press War Correspondent.

8TH ROUTE ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Northeast Shansi, North China—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The most powerful Chinese organization rising behind the Japanese war machine in North China is the Farmers Union, with a membership of 2,000,000 men. It is organized jointly by Chinese military officers, university students, and Communist agents.

To find the leader of this fast-growing organization an Associated Press correspondent journeyed 160 miles into the mountains southwest of Peiping.

A tall, lean young, only 25 years old, dressed in a broad-brimmed straw hat, cheap cotton trousers, and rag sandals, was introduced as the president of the Farmers' Union. It was the first time Mr. Yang Ken-tien had ever seen a foreign correspondent.

Peasants Rise Up.

"Chinese farmers were formerly thought to be dull and lifeless like field animals," he said, "but our Farmers' Union is demonstrating how rapidly these peasants will rise up and fight for their rights if given good leadership and education."

As proof he cited the mobilization of more than 100,000 armed farmers to fight along the railroads in the border areas of Hopeh, Chahar, and Shansi provinces.

"The farmers in our union know that every soldier in the guerrilla army is the son of a farmer; that is why we give them food and clothing and are developing a moral loyalty among the peasants."

"You must remember," he continued, "that the Japanese army controls only the large cities and a strip of territory 12 miles wide along the railroads. We have perfect freedom in organizing and training the farmers in the large areas between the railway zones."

Railway Destruction.

Mr. Yang explained that the activities of the Farmers' Union includes self-education, village garrison duty, collecting food for the guerrilla fighters, and the destruction of the Japanese-controlled railroads.

"Formerly our railway sabotage work was very disorganized," Yang said, "but now the farmers work like a huge machine. Each union near the railway line is divided into groups of five. When a unit of men is ordered to proceed to the railway during the night, the five men carry five different instruments: A saw to cut the telephone poles, wire snippers to destroy the telephone lines, a wrench to loosen rail bolts, a crowbar to lift the rails, and a cultivator to dig up the roadbed."

From 50 to 100 of these units attack the Peking-Hankow railroads every night, scattering their efforts along many miles of track, asserts President Yang.

"Men, women and boys all participate in this destruction work," he added. "The majority are men in their twenties."

Under the leadership of the Farmers' Union each village behind the Japanese lines has organized a corps of "people's guards" all armed with rifles, and sometimes clad in homemade uniforms. Their duty is to serve as road sentries, and to assist the guerrilla armies if the Japanese army invades the area.

The People's Guard constituent is a huge, partially trained reserve force from which guerrillas can be mobilized.

When asked how he was elected president, Mr. Yang explained the experiment in political democracy fostered by the emergency government in North China.

"Our army officers, by permission of the Chinese national government, sent agents into each village to call an election among the farmers. We voted for our village headmen and also sent representatives to county assemblies which advise the government. Each county assembly elected representatives to a central farmers' council under the emergency government which has its capital in the mountains southwest of Peiping. At this central council I was chosen president."

Masons' Youngest Master

27-YEAR-OLD MASON HEADS LODGE 400

G. C. Livingston Jr. Is Believed Nation's Youngest.

Atlanta probably has the youngest worshiper master of a Masonic lodge in the nation, it was revealed yesterday as plans were made for the annual public worship services of the Joseph C. Greenfield Lodge No. 400, Free and Accepted Masons, at the Druid Hills Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

This apparently youngest Masonic leader is G. C. Livingston Jr., 993 Albion avenue, N. E., 27 years old, and manager of an oil station in the Little Five Points community. Livingston was made a Mason in the Greenfield Lodge when he was 21 years old, being the son of a charter member of the lodge, and began his work in the chairs soon after he entered Masonry. He has filled the highest office in the lodge this year with distinction. A feature of his work as worshipful master this year was receiving his younger brother into Masonry.

INDUSTRIAL HEADS END CONFERENCE

Shift in Attitude Toward Government, Labor, Called Significant.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(P)—Carrying with them what appeared to be an olive branch for peace with government and labor, representatives of 42,000 manufacturers, they took with them a pronouncement of policy notable for its conciliatory tone, in contrast with the fighting mood of most other big business gatherings in recent years.

Having attended the three-day sessions of the "Congress of American Industry," staged by the National Association of Manufacturers, they took with them a pronouncement of policy notable for its conciliatory tone, in contrast with the fighting mood of most other big business gatherings in recent years.

While individual speakers before the sessions which ended last night had not hesitated to berate various activities and aspects of government, the convention's "platform" and resolutions were notable for the lack of specific criticisms and demands for repeal of legislation which characterized previous conventions.

Even though conciliatory pronouncements were adopted, this was accomplished only after considerable wrangling in private meetings of drafting committees. Some observers, however, said the shift in tenor was distinctly significant.

It seemed to reflect, they held, at least a partial acceptance of the sweeping business and financial reforms instituted by the New Deal and a return of reassurance in the belief the November national elections indicated a swing of popular favor back to support of private industry.

Some spokesmen interpreting the change summed it up by saying business generally had moved a little to the left while the public was shifting rightward, thus narrowing the gap for a compromise. Bolstering that impression have been recent events in Wall Street, particularly the remaking of the New York Stock Exchange administration for closer co-operation with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

WORKERS HOLD KEY TO DEMOCRACY—LEWIS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(P)—John L. Lewis, chairman of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said today that fears for the future of Democracy in this country could be forgotten if the workers' basic needs were satisfied.

"If this government gives the workers what they need—a job, a home, enough to provide for their families—then the workers will see to it that no ill befalls that kind of a government," Lewis told the convention of the International Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians. Lewis said "It is time for America to take heed of the situation, to stop its cavillings and quarrels, time for the National Association of Manufacturers to adopt the resolutions they did yesterday, time for Americans to co-operate."

REVISIONISTS CALL
TO GIVE UP LANDS

Hungary, Bulgaria and Rome-Directed Albania Increase Their Clamor for Return of Areas.

By C. L. SULZBERGER.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Association.)

TRIESTE, Italy, Dec. 10.—(By Wireless)—Revisionist demands upon Jugoslavia, the largest Balkan state, are becoming increasingly strong. It is doubtful whether the Belgrade government will be able to resist them in the face of Europe's present wave of boundary alterations.

This correspondent, who has just crossed the Jugoslav frontier into Italy, learns from reputable sources that Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania have all filed strong notes in Belgrade demanding return of the territories acquired by Jugoslavia by the post-war treaties.

There is no official confirmation of this report, nor is it mentioned in the censored press, but its truth is vouchsafed for not only by several trustworthy persons, but by the knowledge that foreign diplomats have reported it as a fact to their governments.

Premier Stoyadinovitch of Jugoslavia has promised the voters, in his campaign before the impending general elections, that there will be no territorial gifts. He declared that Jugoslavia achieved its frontiers through the blood of its soldiers.

However, this correspondent is informed that the premier has become sufficiently worried about the question to seek the support of Dr. Vlakko Matchek's Croat auto-nomists. When Matchek was approached privately, he refused to negotiate except on his own terms—autonomy. The government then secretly dispatched Senate President Mazzarino to Rome to sound out Italian backing.

While Jugoslav-Italian relations are friendly and new trade negotiations are under way, Mazzarino was able to see no one of high rank. He was told that Jugoslavia must settle its own internal problems.

It should be remembered that Albania is virtually an Italian dependency and can make no strong demands on its powerful neighbor without the support of Rome.

PLANS FOR FASCIST REGIME CHARGED

BELGRADE, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Opposition leaders charged tonight that the government of Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch was planning to introduce a Fascist regime after tomorrow's parliamentary elections.

The charges were based on the government's switch in foreign policy from loyalty to France and the Little Entente to a course in sympathy with the Rome-Berlin axis.

Government quarters, however, predicted that the Stoyadinovitch regime would receive about 2,000,- 000 out of 3,000,000 votes.

Replying to opposition charges, the government said that economic prosperity would be the result of cooperation with Germany and Italy. They also said that Czechoslovakia's example proved that the pro-French policy advocated by the opposition was suicidal.

Fulton Collects
$1,197,000 Taxes
On 1938 Digest

About 26 per cent of the 1938
Fulton county taxes already has been collected, it was announced yesterday by attachés of County Tax Collector T. Earl Sutcliffe's office.

The digest calls for a total tax of $4,698,000 for the year. Up until December 9 (Friday), a total of $1,197,000 had been credited, leaving a balance of $2,501,000 yet to be collected.

Fulton county lost between $300,000 and $500,000 in revenue due to homestead and property exemptions, and the county alone with scores of others throughout Georgia is seeking some means of replacing the losses.

HARTSFIELD FIGURES
IN '50-CENT' ACCIDENT

With traffic conditions in the public eye, Mayor Hartsfield last week learned from experience what it is to have an accident.

The mayor said yesterday his car was slightly damaged Friday night while standing still on Edgewood avenue. A street car struck another automobile emerging from a parking lot and pushed it into the mayor's car, he said. "It did about 50 cents' worth of damage," the mayor asserted.

VOTERS IN FAVOR OF DIES PRESSING HIS INVESTIGATION

American Public Believes U. S. Should Keep Its Eyes Open Today, Gallup's Survey Shows.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.) NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—As the Dies committee winds up its investigations of un-American activities this week after several months of stormy hearings, a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that the rank and file of American voters believe the hearings have justified themselves and should be continued.

The public's verdict does not mean that American voters approve of everything Chairman Martin Dies and his six-man committee have done, the survey shows. Some voters believe that the committee has "listened to too many crackpots." Others condemn it for engaging in "outright propaganda," in "partiality" or "sheer hullabaloo."

But the survey gives one more indication that Americans are concerned about foreign "isms" and their possible extent in this country, especially in view of the bloodshedding and suppression

SECTIONAL, PARTY SENTIMENT SHOWN

The following figures show the vote of those who have heard of the Dies committee in answer to the question:

	Yes	No
United States	74%	26%
Sections
New England States	72%	28%
Middle Atlantic States	69	31
East Central States	80	20
West Central States	78	22
South	80	20
West	70	30
Parties—
Democrats	68%	32%
Republicans	83	17
Third Parties	71	29

sions that have marked the course of these "isms" elsewhere.

The survey shows, first, that approximately three voters in every five are familiar with the Dies committee.

Secondly, it shows that among those who know something of the work of the committee, nearly three voters in every four believe its hearings should be continued.

The Dies committee has been in hot water with "liberals" and New Dealers ever since its hearings began, last summer. The committee's critics have charged it with not listening to both sides, with disregarding the rules of evidence and with attempting to cause the defeat of New Deal candidates in the November elections.

But today's survey indicates that the critics of the committee have not succeeded in discrediting it with the majority of voters, al-

What Do the Voters Think Of the Dies Committee?

As the Dies committee on un-American activities prepares to wind up its hearings this week, a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows a majority of voters in favor of continuing such investigations. The survey is not a full endorsement of everything the Dies committee has done, the comments of voters show, but reflects in a large degree the belief that America should "keep its eyes open."

though a strong and emphatic minority do believe the committee has been discredited.

These facts are important in view of Chairman Dies' probable attempt to raise further appropriations for his committee in the new congress which convenes in Washington in a few weeks.

In conducting the test of sentiment on the Dies committee, the Institute used its nation-wide staff of 700 field investigators, located in key areas throughout the country, to interview a representative cross-section of the voting population.

The sampling includes northerners and southerners, midwest farmers and west coast dock workers. Democrats, Republicans and members of every economic group in correct proportions. The voters were asked:

(1) Have you heard about the Dies committee for investigating un-American activities?

(2) Do you think its findings have been important enough to justify continuing the investigation?

The results show that while the work of the committee is better known in the east than elsewhere, the committee's work has left the best impression in the south and in the automobile-manufacturing states of the Great Lakes area, including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

Only those who said they had heard of the Dies committee were asked to give an opinion about it, and the actual vote of these persons is:

For Continuing Investigations

Against Continuing

Just as important as the mathematical division of the vote is the list of reasons voters give for wanting the investigations of un-American activities continued.

The most commonly mentioned reasons have little to do with the actual findings of the Dies group, or with Chairman Dies' dramatic assaults on ranking New Deal advisers which have included WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

"We need to keep our eyes open in the midst of all this world trouble" is the most frequent type of comment, the survey shows.

Other comments, in the order of their appearance, are:

"We should weed out those who want to overthrow the American system."

"There ought to be a permanent investigating committee."

"They've only scratched the surface."

"Dies is doing a good job."

Opposition Emphatic.

Those who oppose further investigation by the Dies committee are a strong and emphatic minority, and their number (26 per cent of the survey) indicates that they are by no means merely composed of extremists of the left and right.

Some of them are New Dealers, and many of them are members of labor unions, like the unemployed Detroit auto workers who told the Institute investigator he was asked to keep our eyes open in the midst of all this world trouble" is the most frequent type of comment, the survey shows.

Other comments, in the order of their appearance, are:

"We should weed out those who

CARDIFF, Wales (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Angus Bandenicks, 27, staggered down the gangplank of the steamship Everolanda the other day and stole a full-size locomotive.

He was fined $9.60.

FORT MAC PRIVATE IS AWARDED MEDAL

Private Lucas Neas Decorated for Saving Life of Drowning Man.

The Soldier's Medal has been ordered for Private Lucas M. Neas, of Fort McPherson, for heroism displayed when he saved a soldier from drowning last August 8, it was announced yesterday.

The medal will be given Private Neas at the direction of President Roosevelt, and by order of Secretary of War Woodring.

According to the citation, while the Third Army was maneuvering, an enlisted man was thrown from his horse into the deep, swirling waters of Red creek, Mississippi. Unable to swim, he was brought to the surface by another soldier who plunged in after him. Both were struggling in the stream when Private Neas, "without disregard of his own safety, without hesitation, and with great presence of mind, jumped from the steep bank into the water, swam in the dangerous current to the drowning man, and with the help of the other soldier, brought him safely to shore."

"The heroism displayed," the citation continued, "reflects great credit upon himself and the military service."

Connected with Company F, 22nd battalion, at the time of his action, Neas is now a member of Headquarters Company, 8th brigade, at the Fort.

Fort McPherson officers said yesterday that the medal probably would be presented some time this week with appropriate ceremonies.

Other frequent comments from the opposition voters are:

"They're just wasting money and doing no good."

"They haven't found out anything we didn't know before."

"They're partial instead of impartial."

"It's just another 'red' hunt."

The voters of both major parties are in favor of continuing the Dies investigations, the survey shows, and Republicans are more in favor than Democrats.

The vote is:

Continue the Dies Committee?

Yes No

Republicans 83 17

Votes in the upper income groups have more often heard about the Dies committee, their replies show, but among those who have heard about it there is little difference in the attitudes which different income classes take toward it.

The vote for the country, according to income groups, is:

Continue the Dies Committee?

Upper Income Group 77% 23%

Middle Income Group 73 27

Lower Income Group 74 26

DISREGARD OF LAWS BLAMED IN GROWING TRAFFIC DEATHS

MALCOM DECRIMES DRIVERS' EFFORTS TO BEAT' LIGHTS

Traffic Bureau Head Emphasizes Motorists' Haste Often Results in Fatalities and Injuries.

By LUKE GREENE.

Skidding tires of a speeding automobile whine as brakes are applied. There is the terrific impact of steel crashing against steel. Then follows a few moments of silence before the crowd gathers and the injured occupants begin to scramble from the mass of torn and twisted steel. Another accident is chalked up on Atlanta's record.

A careless pedestrian rushes into the street. He fails to see the oncoming automobile until it is too late. The horror-stricken victim screams, but the automobile strikes, and then there is the sound of shrieking sirens as an ambulance speeds to the scene. Atlanta's accident toll mounts.

Throughout the year these familiar sounds that bring terror to the heart of every Atlantan are heard in various parts of the city. But in some parts they are heard more frequently.

Spots Crowded.

Down in the office of Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic bureau, is a map that shows the year's accident record. It is dotted with hundreds of little red and blue pins. Each red pin represents one accident. Every blue pin signifies five accidents.

In some spots on that map there is no room for any more pins. The year is almost over, but Malcom wonders what he would do if there were any more accidents in those particular areas. That question led him to point out the intersections where the most accidents occur.

For example, at Spring and Mitchell streets there already have been 24 accidents in 1938. At Spring and Marietta there were 17; Ponce de Leon and Boulevard, 15; Piedmont and Edgewood, 15; Fall and Boulevard, 13, and Central and Decatur, 13.

Danger Areas.

Other intersections, having a high toll are Marietta and Forsyth, 10; Hunter and Whitehall, 11; Decatur and Bell, 11; Ponce de Leon and Piedmont, 11; Whitehall and Spring, 12; Walker and Peters, 8; Gordon and Lee, 12, and Campbell and Lee, 8.

Only three of those intersections do not have traffic lights, Malcom pointed out. They are Decatur and Bell, Whitehall and Spring, and Campbell and Lee. Other intersections show numerous accidents, but the ones listed seem to be the worst.

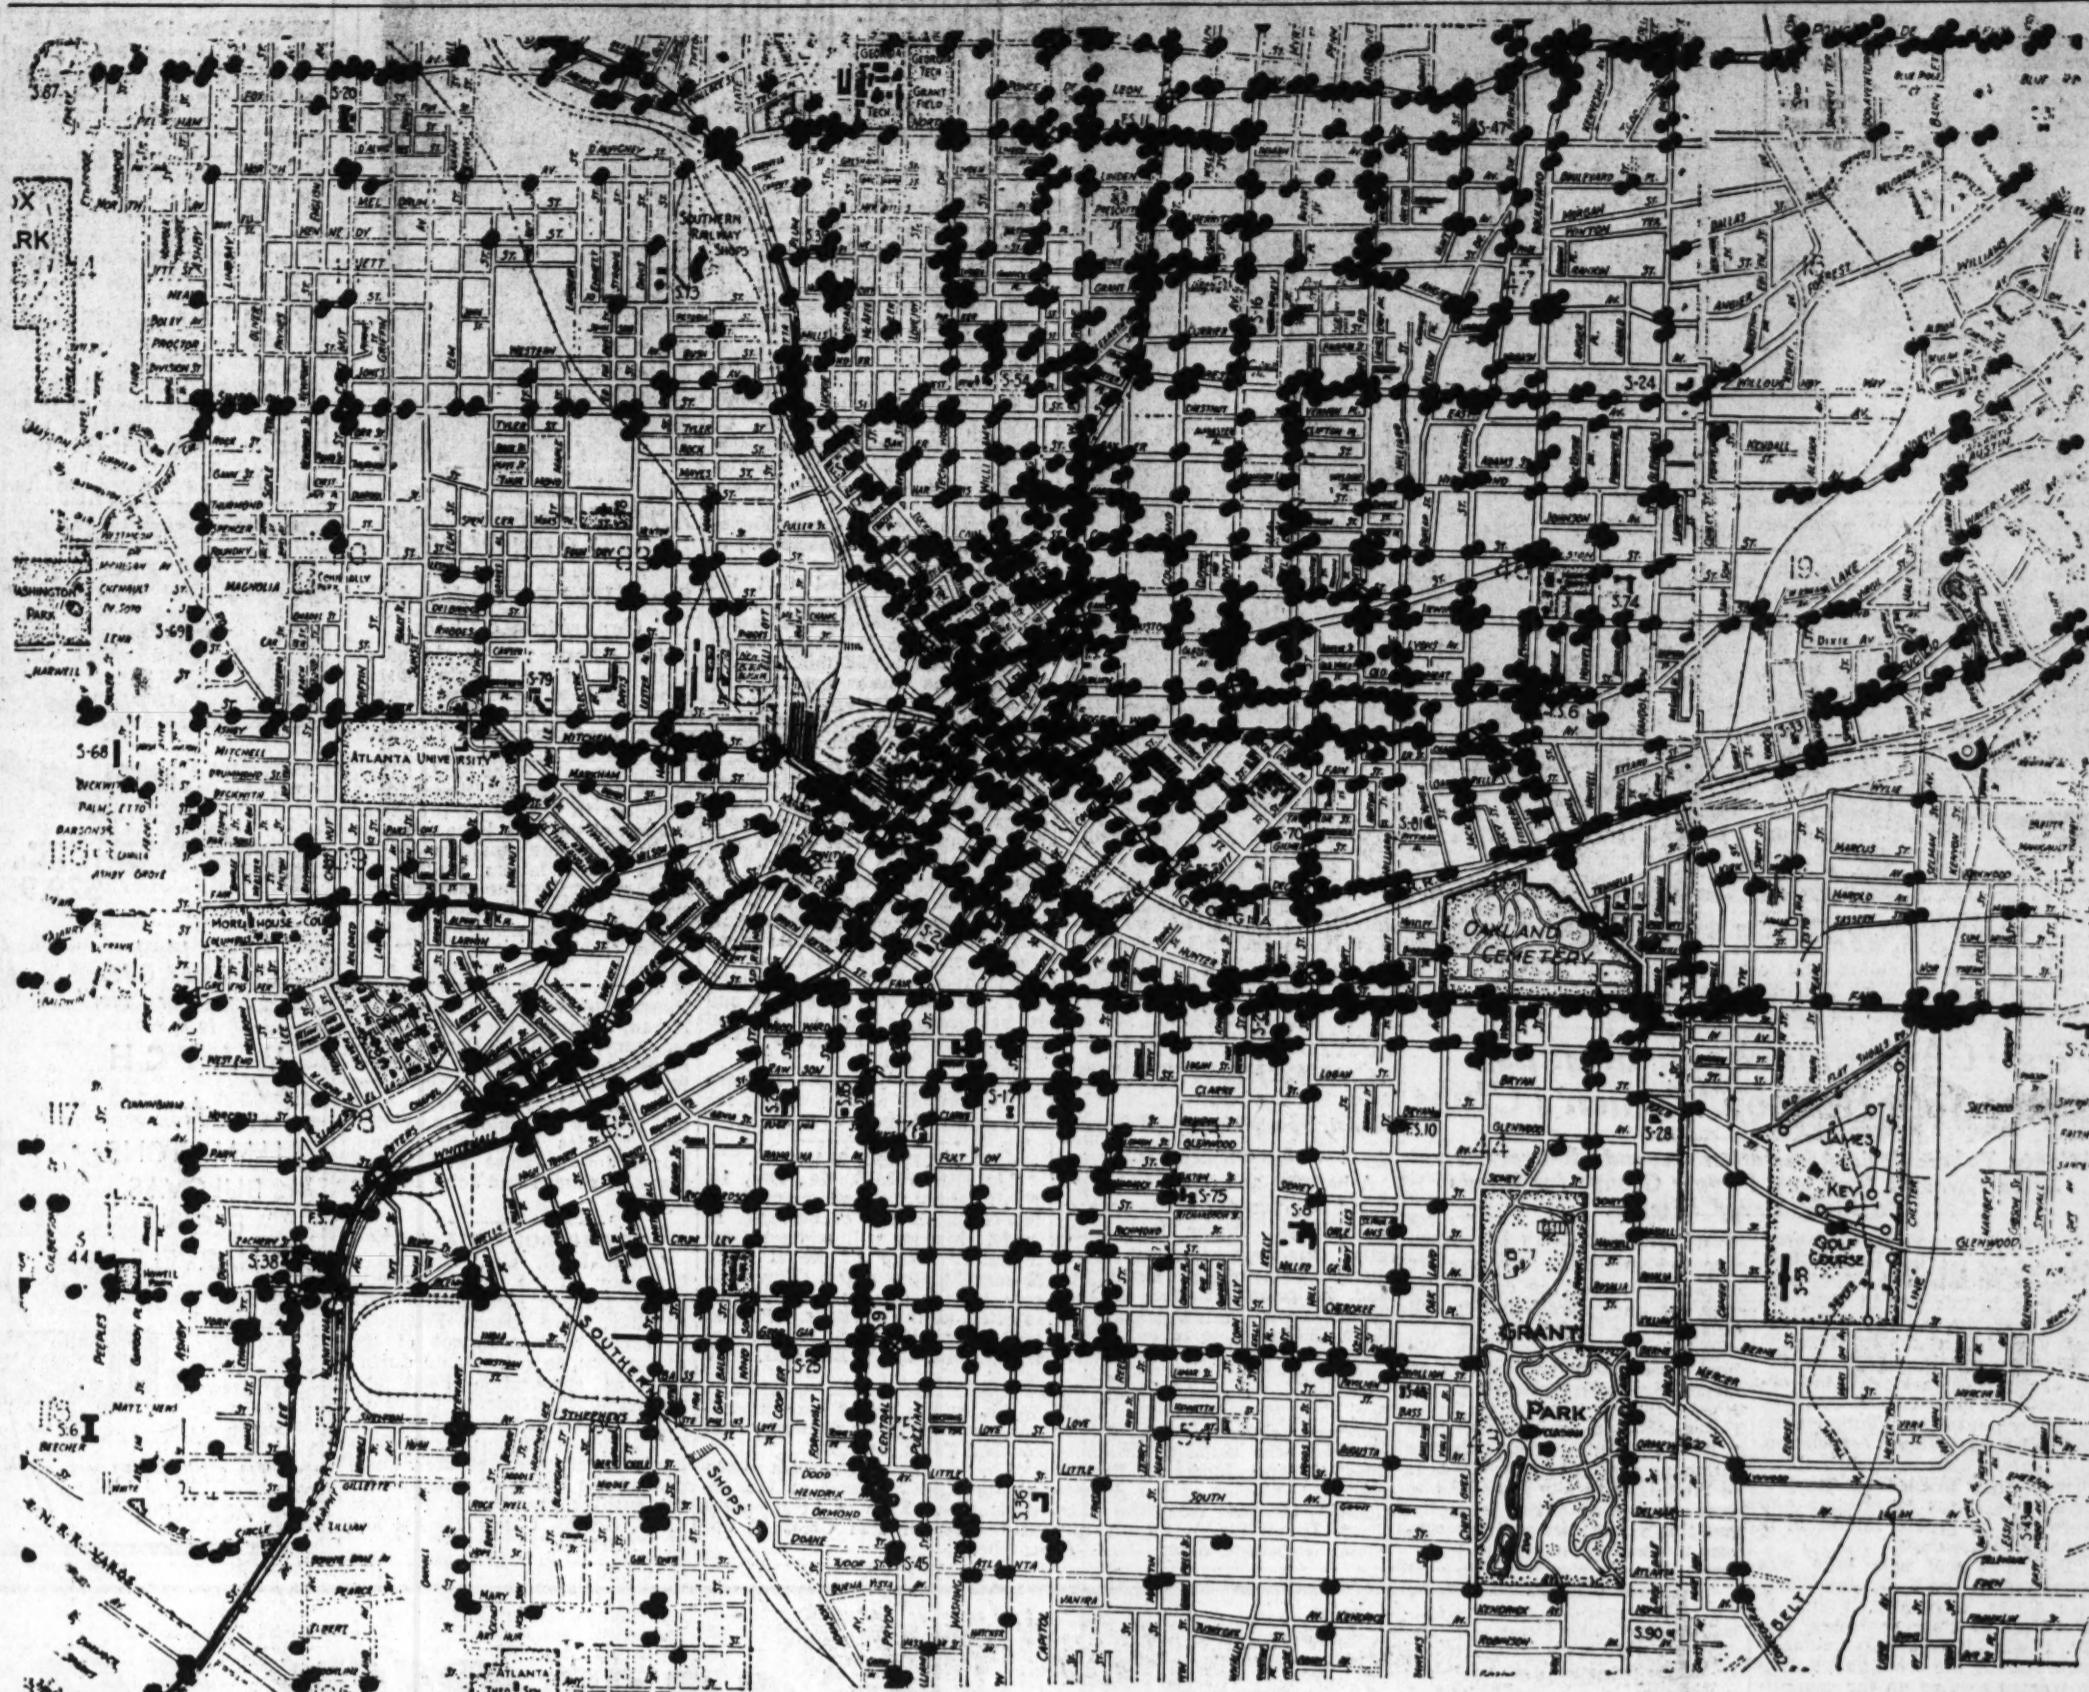

Malcom pleaded for motorists to stop this useless slaughter and maiming of human lives by obeying the new 25-mile-an-hour speed limit.

"A lot of these accidents are caused by people who are trying to beat the green light or fudge on the amber light," he said. "We won't have so many accidents if we carry out this law."

He explained that a motorist can travel more rapidly through the downtown area at a speed of 20 miles per hour than at 30.

"What does it matter if you take 9 or 10 minutes to get into town every morning instead of seven?" he asked. "What does it matter, I say, if we have a human life or keep a person from being disabled the rest of his life?"

Malcom said a number of accidents during the past three or four years have occurred at dead-end streets. He said an attempt had represents at least one accident. Some of the dots represent five accidents. When the year began the map was only a sketch of the city. Now it has been transformed into a sketch of death and injury.

been made to remedy the situation by putting up signs, but added that drivers must learn to watch out for them.

The traffic bureau wants co-operation. Mayor Hartsfield has already called upon public-spirited citizens to get behind the city government in its effort to cure the traffic sore. Malcom emphasized the necessity of their responding to this appeal.

Malcom wants to see many of those little red and blue pins disappear next year. The map looks too much like a graveyard with a lot of brightly colored tombstones. He wants a clean map and he thinks he can have one if he gets the sympathy and co-operation of all Atlanta.

PASTORS ELECT HEADS.
ROME, Ga., Dec. 10.—The Rev. J. W. Segars has been elected president of the Rome Preachers' Union for the coming year to succeed Dr. Bunyan Stephens. The Rev. John Melton was chosen vice president, and the Rev. J. L. Rayburn, secretary, succeeding the Rev. S. H. Dixon.

Fulton county's traffic department yesterday joined in the drive to reduce accidents especially in regard to children. Lieutenant Jack Carroll, (left) in charge of the county traffic bureau, is shown with Captain Beecher Gray, of the Ben Hill school, as they survey a new traffic sign warning of the 25-mile school zone limitation.

Safety Zones and Safety Patrols Inaugurated at Fulton Schools

Additional safety measures for Fulton county's 20,000 school children were initiated yesterday as Lieutenant Jack Carroll, in charge of the county police traffic bureau, inaugurated safety zones and announced organization of safety patrols at many of the 91 schools in the system.

Lieutenant Carroll called for co-operation of motorists and children themselves, asserting the traffic hazard is not confined to any city limit but is present where the flow is heavy.

There are 53 white schools and 38 negro schools scattered throughout the county, and Carroll yesterday said that the patrols will perform a real service in helping protect very young children who might otherwise expose themselves to danger needlessly.

Urge Co-operation. "We have erected the school zone signs with a 25-mile speed limit," Carroll explained. "They not only will be a protection to the children, but also to the motorist. When a driver sees one of those signs, he will know that children are around and will take precautions to prevent involving himself in an accident in which a child might be the victim."

"We are soliciting and urging co-operation in this matter. No one would intentionally injure a child. These signs and the patrol members will bring the dangers forcefully to the attention of drivers. Heed these signs and help us protect the children."

Carroll also said that angle parking has been instituted at several of the larger churches, and that church signs are being placed at the others.

Serious Hazard. A warning was issued about passing school busses while they are engaged in taking on or letting off school children.

He said a check of the traffic flow at E. Rivers school between 7:45 and 8:30 a. m. showed that 1,432 cars passed, that 365 pedestrians crossed and that a street car passed every two minutes.

"That is a serious hazard," he said, "and it is conditions of this kind against which we are attempting to fortify ourselves. There are 812 students at E. Rivers school."

An indication of the scrupulousness with which the law is to be enforced was given with fining of a police patrol wagon driver, W. D. Eblin, who admitted parking one of the city's "Red Marias" on the wrong side of a street Friday. Eblin paid $3.

In clarifying the situation to his men, Malcom declared the new limit to be "a safety measure—not a revenue measure."

"I sincerely hope it will not be necessary for any of you to make a single case," Malcom observed. "I want you to use good judgment. Make cases only when you are convinced the motorist is exceeding the speed limit importantly."

"Don't depend entirely on your own speedometer. Balance the speedometer with judgment."

SLOW AUTO SPEEDS VIEWED AS MENACE

Atlanta Motor Club Manager Points Out Hazards on Roads.

While the Atlanta police department was engaged yesterday in an effort to reduce traffic accidents by enforcing the new 25-mile-an-hour speed limit, C. G. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Atlanta Motor Club, pointed to the menace caused by unreasonably slow driving speeds on the highways.

Explaining that 22 states had adopted minimum-speed laws, he said:

"Although in the past most attention was centered on high-speed driving, law-makers are becoming increasingly concerned with the problem caused by the so-called 'Sunday drivers' who are content to move along the highway at little better than a snail's pace."

"The dawdling drivers not only interfere with the efficient movement of traffic, but they also cause an important accident hazard. Traffic moving at a normal speed must swing out and around the low-gear driver, one of the most danger-laden of all driving maneuvers."

STATE FINDS JOBS FOR 68,192 IN 1938

Work Found for 365,000 Persons in Five Years.

The Georgia State Employment Service found jobs for 68,192 persons during the year ending December 1, and received 131,851 applications for work during the same period, W. L. Abbott, assistant director of the agency, reported yesterday.

Speaking on the National Emergency Council radio series, Abbott said that since the service was begun in July, 1933, 734,021 applications have been received and 365,000 persons have been placed. Last year, he stated, work was found for 39,451 on public works projects, 28,427 were in private enterprises, and 314 were on relief works.

Abbott said he considered the state office, an affiliate of the federally operated United States Employment Service, a permanent organization. There are 33 such offices in the state, he stated.

MURDAUGH TO ASK RECOVERY CLAUSE FOR WELFARE ACT

This Will Permit State To Reimburse Treasury From Estates of Aged for Monies Advanced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Lamar Murdaugh, Georgia welfare director, said today he would recommend the restoration of a "recovery clause" in his state's welfare act.

The clause would permit Georgia to recover from the estates of aged persons money advanced to them in the form of pensions. It was part of the original act, in 1937, but later removed.

Murdaugh said his recommendation would be made to Governor Rivers, based on his investigations during the American public welfare conference here. He is secretary of the conference's legislative committee.

Murdaugh said he expected the new congress to require uniform merit system for all public assistance divisions in states, and that Georgia probably would be asked to enact similar legislation.

U. S. To Stand Half of Cost.

He said the belief generally at the conference was that the federal government in the future would contribute one-half toward states' payments to dependent children and one-half of the cost of administering public assistance programs. He estimated this would result in a 2 1/2 per cent increase in administrative grants and that the government was paying only one-third toward the benefits for dependent children.

Murdaugh said he would report to Rivers that welfare officials at the conference felt public assistance programs should be supported in the states by general sales taxes. He added officials did not believe "the federal government would take over entirely the payment of public assistance."

Accompanying Murdaugh was Frank Shirley, director of Georgia's surplus commodities division, who conferred with the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation on distribution in Georgia. Murdaugh said Shirley obtained promises of "substantial assignments of surplus commodities" to his state in the future.

RAMSPECK STUDIES FULTON SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The old age pension situation in Fulton county, where some 12,000 applied for pensions and only 3,000 were investigated and placed on the pension rolls will be remeasured next year if Representative Robert Ramspeck is accorded a hearing by the house committee on ways and means.

The Georgian is prepared to ask the committee which, according to the best information available, will consider amendments to the original social security act early in the next session to investigate and determine how the act operates in various states and whether the situation which confronts Fulton county is an isolated case.

Under existing law the federal government pays up to $15 a month to every older to whom the state pays a like or larger sum. Georgia has passed legislation providing for old age pensions and the legislature has provided a certain amount of money for this purpose.

"The Fulton county situation is not a satisfactory one," Mr. Ramspeck said. "After 12,000 old people had applied for pensions, only 3,000 were investigated and put on the state's pension rolls when the state notified county officials it had no more money with which to meet its share of pensions."

"Therefore, 9,000, or 75 per cent, of the county's applicants have never even been investigated to find out if they are eligible.

"I believe the committee on ways and means should consider the question of whether the federal government ought to pay directly to the old people themselves whatever old age pension Uncle Sam can afford to pay. The present system penalizes 75 per cent of applicants in Fulton county because Georgia is financially unable to meet its share."

Representative Ramspeck is preparing another bill for early introduction in the coming session, which will provide that wherever a state or one of its subdivisions is spending money given to it by the federal government they must place all employees of that state agency under a state civil service system to be approved by the United States Civil Service.

Men Who 'Strive To Make Life Sweeter' Meet Here

CANDY SALESMEN CONVENE IN CITY

Retiring Ad President

RICHARD H. RICH.

AD CLUB OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED

Santa Will Be on Hand To Congratulate Them.

New officers will be elected at a meeting of the Atlanta Advertising Club at its annual Christmas party to be held at 12:30 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon in Rich's tea room.

Willingham declared that the "advent of winter weather has brought a marked increase in the consumption of candies in the south." The late fall this year retarded sales more than at any time in 15 years, he said. He expressed hope that a big Christmas season would help the industry to regain its losses.

Speaking on proposed legislation, McMillan said: "The candy industry is fully behind the new federal pure food law which will set up standards of quality. We shall back up state legislatures in adopting similar provisions. Georgia has a good modification of its law and we shall support its adoption by the 1939 legislature."

Wright pointed out that the club was organized four years ago and it has grown from an original charter member list of 18 members to nearly 100.

One of the principal features was a banquet at 7:30 o'clock for salesmen and their wives.

TO ADDRESS MASONs. A banquet and dance last night closed the two-day conference of the Southern Junior Red Cross.

Guest speakers on the banquet program were Dr. Frank Bould, chairman of the Atlanta chapter; Miss Thyra Askew, Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, and Talmadge Henry, of Chattanooga.

Others on the program were the Rev. T. V. Morrison, of St. Luke's Episcopal church; Miss Bertha W. Wilson, who acted as toastmistress; General James H. Reeves, executive director of the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent; Jere A.

seals," said Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary. "Because we are an agency of the community chest we have agreed not to sell seals on the street or in the schools as we did years ago. We must therefore depend entirely on our mail sale and private groups to raise these badly-needed funds. The association derives one-third of its 'operating' expenses from the Christmas seal sale and we urge all Atlantans to buy seals and to send in contributions promptly, so that this year's sale will far surpass those of former years."

LEADER CROWNED AT BROWN SCHOOL

Betty Huckeby Made Queen at Coronation Party on December Second.

Betty Huckeby, of 9-High-3, was crowned Miss Joe Brown December 2 in a gala event in her honor held at the school. The eleven other contestants acted as princesses. The winner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Huckeby, of 1576 Melrose drive.

Joe Brown was greatly honored Monday to have as guests to the school the four senior high school principals: Miss Mary C. Moore, Girls' High; Mr. H. O. Smith, Boys' High; Mr. E. L. Floyd, High of Commercial. Also with Mr. Floyd was Miss Rosa Fletcher, assistant principal. Those parents present at the Parent-Teacher meeting had the pleasure of meeting and conversing with these principals.

An old-fashioned spelling bee was conducted by Miss Samuels in the 9-high assembly. Four students from each home room were contestants. Lanier Randall, of 9-High-2, was acclaimed winner, with Edna Chambliss, of 9-High-5 coming in second. Edna had the privilege of winning second place this time also.

The 9-High classes are looking eagerly forward to next Monday when they will be honored to have as their guests a group of students

who will advertise their school and give points on why certain

as their senior high school.

Georgian, at 105, 'Taking It Easy,' Finally Forced To Give Up Work

Veteran Still Seeks Pension, 73 Years After Close of the War.

NEWNAN, Ga., Dec. 10.—The weight of nearly 106 years rests lightly on J. P. Billingsley, planter and railroad builder.

In fact, he opines, it's a sorry come-off when a man has to retire at 105, just when he's living some of his best years.

He will celebrate his 106th birthday here January 4 with his son, H. G. Billingsley.

Doctors who examined Mr. Billingsley last year reported his physical condition is excellent, and declared he should have every reason to expect to live another 10 years or so. But relatives and friends, anxious that he should not leave them, "before his time," insisted last year that he give up his daily work in the fields on his farm near Cedartown.

And now, he's "taking it easy" and, when not at his farm, spends much of the time visiting his "children" on Farm Family Living in Georgia."

Loves to Walk.

But there's one thing no one can take away from him—his love of walking—and he still demonstrates his amazing vitality by walking a mile almost every day. He maintains he can walk three miles in 35 minutes, without tiring.

When he had his picture made recently, it was suggested that the photographer be brought down from his second floor studio to take the picture. "Nonsense," said the subject. "I can climb it easily." And he did, taking the steps two at a time.

Mr. Billingsley's love of walking dates from the close of the War Between the States, in which he served four full years, fighting under Lee in Virginia. When his discharge came, he was not one of those fortunate enough to be given a mule to ride back home, so he set out afoot, and hiked all the way from Virginia to Chattanooga.

Still Seeks Pension.

Today, 73 years since Appomattox, he is still seeking a Confederate pension. It has been withheld, he says, because he was the only man in his company to come out of the war alive.

Mr. Billingsley was born January 4, 1833, in South Carolina, in the Chattanooga ridge of the mountains, just across the line from Rabun county, Georgia. His father, an early western South Carolina

Still Seeks Pension.

Today, 73 years since Appomattox, he is still seeking a Confederate pension. It has been withheld, he says, because he was the only man in his company to come out of the war alive.

Mr. Billingsley was born January 4, 1833, in South Carolina, in the Chattanooga ridge of the mountains, just across the line from Rabun county, Georgia. His father, an early western South Carolina

FRACTURE OF SKULL BLAMED FOR PLIGHT OF AMNESIA VICTIM

Walter Ray Reported Still in Serious Condition at Brother's Home.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 10.—Walter Ray, 32-year-old Griffin textile worker and upholsterer, who was thought to have been an amnesia victim, remained in a serious condition tonight at the home of his brother, the Rev. Fred H. Ray, pastor of Lindale Methodist church.

Physicians announced the Griffin man had received a fracture of the outer wall of the skull, which produced almost the same effects as amnesia. Plans are being made to have his skull re-examined and X-rayed at a local hospital Monday.

Individuals authorities now believe Ray was either drugged and thrown from an auto after having been robbed, or suffocated with a blunt weapon before being tossed from an auto. Money which was known to have been in his possession was missing when he was located. It is believed about $50 was taken from him.

Ray, who operates a small upholstery shop in Griffin, disappeared Tuesday afternoon, and nothing further had been heard from him until last night. While officers in Griffin were conducting a search for him, he turned up at the sheriff's office in Carrollton, his mind almost a blank, and his clothing torn. Checking news stories from Griffin and Carrollton, Jack Tubbs, state news editor of The Atlanta Constitution, communicated with authorities in the two cities and brought identification of the Griffin man.

Lindale authorities stated today Ray could give no coherent story of the three "blank" days.

He served three years as captain of a local military company and was a major in the World War. He headed the volunteer fire department before the municipal department was created, served as mayor two terms, and was a member of the board of education. A deacon in the First Presbyterian church, he took an active part in civic affairs until his fatal illness.

Survivors include two sons, Herman S. Hunter, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, of Elberton, and Marshall K. Hunter, vice president of the Trust Company of Georgia in Atlanta. His wife was the former Miss Emma Stillwell.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Elberton Presbyterian church.

In addition to encouraging placement of cows on farms where there are none now, the association will attempt to place hogs on 773 farms where none are now being raised, and 227 other farms will be encouraged to raise poultry for the first time.

REID TO RECEIVE COURT POST OFFER OF RIVERS TODAY

Governor Says Attorney Will Have Ample Time for Studying Appointment to Office.

Governor Rivers said yesterday he will tender the post of chief justice of the state supreme court to Charles S. Reid, Atlanta lawyer, and former chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, today.

Reid, who has been ill for several weeks in a Savannah hospital, returned to Atlanta yesterday and immediately was put to bed in his suite at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Physicians said he could not leave his room until January 1, even if he accepts the chief justiceship.

After informing members of the supreme court that he would not make an appointment until next Thursday, Governor Rivers yesterday made an engagement with Reid for this afternoon.

Awards Offer.

Reid said on his arrival here yesterday he had given no consideration to acceptance of the post and would give none until it is formally tendered him. It was revealed several days ago by The Constitution that the former chairman could have the post if he desired it.

"When a client hires me as a lawyer I expect him to do as I tell him, and I am trying to play the same game with my doctors," Reid said yesterday. "I am following their orders and concentrating on full recovery of my health."

Reid, who is a member of the firm of Little, Powell, Reid & Goldstein, conferred yesterday with his law partners, all of whom are understood to be opposed to his accepting the post.

Atkinson Considered.

Governor Rivers made it clear that Reid would have ample time to accept the offer and that the appointment would not actually be made until next Thursday, regardless of the identity of the appointee. If Reid accepts, it is understood that he will obtain his

Should Reid decline the Governor's offer, it is understood that Justice Samuel N. Atkinson will be made chief justice, and a new associate justice will be chosen from a score or more applicants.

News of Gate City Told in Paragraphs

Four musical organizations of Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College, assisted by three soloists, will take part in the twelfth annual Christmas carol concert Friday night in Sisters Chapel on the Spelman campus.

Ira D. A. Reid, of Atlanta University's department of sociology, will open the Morehouse Open Forum series for 1938-39 with a talk tomorrow night in the exhibition gallery of the Atlanta University library on "The Three R's in World Problems."

Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will speak at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Sunday vesper service in Sisters Chapel on the Spelman College campus. The public is invited.

Color printing, an innovation in college journalism, was used in last week's issue of the Emory Wheel, student newspaper at Emory University. Dressed for the holidays, it featured blue and gold, the university's colors, and also added a picture page, devoted exclusively to photos of campus life.

Dr. Harold C. Case, pastor of Elm Park Methodist church, Scranton, Pa., will be guest speaker during Emory University's Religious Emphasis beginning January 17. Frank Robertson, president of the Emory Christian Association, announced yesterday.

Joel P. Harris, 11, of Stockbridge, was admitted to Grady hospital in serious condition yesterday suffering from a gunshot wound in the left side and left elbow, accidentally inflicted while hunting rabbits with a companion near his home.

Annual report of the Fourth Ward Civic Forum will be heard at its meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday night at the Capitol View school auditorium, Ernest Brewer, president, announced yesterday.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, will speak at the Capitol Avenue Baptist church

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 11, 1938.

THE GREATER BENEFIT

Great stress has been laid upon the material gains inherent in the construction of the new low-cost housing projects for the city of Atlanta. These benefits are great, but underlying them are the greatest of all advances a city can obtain for its people—the advantages of health, of happiness and of greater productivity for the people who now live in and reflect the squalor of the slums, a reflection which does not stop at the boundaries of the blighted areas.

It has been said the city will become the sun clearance laboratory of the western hemisphere. There is a ring of truth and of determination in that statement; one which, if carried to its logical conclusion through the co-operation of all the people of the city, will make Atlanta a living monument to the democracy that has built America.

From the days of the Revolution, America has been engaged in the construction of the greatest economy the world has ever known. This building was reflected in material things, in great peaceful land conquests, in new cities, in giant factories and in swift transportation.

Today, however, the people have turned from this great building of material things to the regeneration of human beings who have somehow or other failed to keep the pace, or who have, perhaps, paid the penalty for a too-rapid growth. In this work, Atlanta will be a leader. It will be a staggering task, yet the announcement that the Atlanta unit-costs will be lower than anywhere else in the nation would indicate that the Atlanta Authority has accomplished, at least in part, the work of bringing really low-cost housing to the people for whom the projects have been designed, but who have not yet been reached.

All will benefit from the new program, business, labor and industry, but the greatest of all benefits will be found in human hearts and human happiness.

THE JAYCEES

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, more familiarly known as the "Jaycees," is composed of energetic young go-getters who can always be depended upon when it comes to pushing along a worth-while cause to a successful conclusion. Although membership is restricted to men 21 to 35 years of age, inclusive, there is no limit on the spirit in which they tackle the job of keeping Atlanta in the vanguard of the nation's cities.

The Jaycees have put their shoulders to the wheel on so many occasions when the problem seemed all but insurmountable, it is difficult to pick out any one accomplishment for fear of doing an injustice to others.

At the present time, in addition to their usual charitable activities and donations, they are engaged in eliminating, to the greatest extent possible, one of the most annoying nuisances which beset the modern city—unnecessary noises. Although the problem of leading 500,000 people into the voluntary belief that less noise would be beneficial to everybody is an extremely difficult undertaking, it's a 10-to-1 shot the Jaycee boys will eventually solve it. While the three-in-the-morning horn-tooter is without doubt a civic nuisance, he is no more of an annoyance than the downtown horn-blower at any hour, who rips the air apart with impatient blasts if he is delayed a few seconds.

The Atlanta Jaycees, of course, are affiliated with the National Junior Chamber of Commerce, whose president, Philip C. Ebeling, is a recent welcome visitor in the city. The national organization, like its component parts, is wide awake to the civic needs of the country. It has recently set up an economic committee with a speakers' bureau. Its purpose is to make available to local groups, interested in progress, well-known and authoritative speakers on matters of importance.

There is no time throughout the year when the Jaycees are not hustling for the betterment of Atlanta. It is getting to be a well-known fact that one of the surest ways of accomplishing a civic improvement is to get the "Jaycees" behind it. The word is synonymous with a bang-up job.

THE WRONG LANGUAGE

With few exceptions, spokesmen for "business" have been unconvinced in publicizing their side of the economic argument, except, perhaps, to those who wanted to be, or were already, convinced. The little fellow, the small worker, the laboring man has been influenced largely because the politician and others who would benefit by his support, talked in a language he could better understand.

Although there have been so-called rabble-rousers on every street corner for years, telling the people the different kinds of robbers they would have them believe business men have been—particularly big business men—no corresponding soap box carters have been telling the other side of the story.

Such facts regarding business as have, some how, trickled through to the man in the street, have been couched in the phraseology of the directors room rather than in simple understandable language. Consequently many have been led into an erroneous opinion of business—simply summing it up as big, arrogant and domineering—ready to cut the little fellow's throat any morning before breakfast.

One has only to glance over the dozens of business letters, bulletins and pamphlets distributed during the course of a month to realize that the facts so carefully sought to the publicized never, or seldom ever, reach or are intended to reach the man in the street—the representative of the vast majority of the people. Even if they did they would probably be misunderstood and cast aside, for they are always aimed at the stockholder, the executive, the banker and the high salaried white collar employee.

This is simply business talking to itself. It is as if it felt the necessity of being reassured, over and over, on a premise upon which it already has been convinced. So, naturally, the little man turns away. He feels out of place. He is actually made to feel that the term "economic royalist" is a pretty snug fit for a rather smug class.

In all probability, however, business will eventually come to the conclusion that another course must be adopted if it hopes to win the man in the street to a better understanding of their mutual interests. There is no surer way of gaining this end than the ability to discuss his problems in the language he understands, whether it is called rabble-rousing or something else.

MOST OMINOUS THREAT.

When Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler told 30,000 Sudetenland Germans, in a recent campaign speech, that he was not worried about the future of Nazism because "the new generation is growing up and we are educating it," he made his most ominous statement—for he spoke the truth.

Describing the various youth organizations in which young Germans are enrolled, the Fuehrer said "they will never be free in their lives . . . and they are happy about it. All the ridiculous prejudices about which their fathers may still worry slowly disappear from their vision. They see everything in a different light."

He said boys and girls first come into the Nazi organization at the age of ten, progress through the Hitler youth, Black Guards and Storm Troops, then through the works service and the army, and then back into the Black Guards and Storm Troops. By this plan, he said, children are being drilled in the ideals of National Socialism from birth to death.

The Nazis are not complete fools, and the attempt to throttle opposition by educating youth as they wish is the most important thing they could do to perpetuate their ideology. Yet they should read their history again and learn that, no matter how regimented children may be, there are some who are going to think for themselves.

Free-thinkers have been stoned through the ages, but it is only they who have freed the world. Baruch Spinoza forsook Judaism although he was trained in it rigorously from his birth; George Washington led the American Revolution, although his parents taught him to love England; Saul of Tarsus was the strictest of his sect; all the men of the centuries who have liberated other men have been those who were educated strictly—but who backsld.

It is the backslders who will cause the fall of the Nazi regime.

A fresh advice from the Far East gives us the bland Oriental at his best. Having changed the conditions, Tokyo tells us that conditions have changed.

Books of quotations from now on must include the Hopkins "spend and spend" classic. By disclaiming it twice, Harry associates it indefinitely with his name.

Because he wore ordinary glasses, Lindbergh went unrecognized by Paris crowds. It is an idea for any fugitive from fame, and will be widely uncopied by Hollywood.

To the police of New York who were photographed with the grinning murderer, Irwin, a medal apecie for failing to see anything funny.

A British author of renown divulges that he stretches on the floor to write. This would, of course, be for the full-length novel.

There is work to be found if one will observe the few easy directions. Look for a large, articulate group with no one to do its swearing.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

At the meeting of the national Republican committee in Washington a showdown between the liberal and the conservative elements was reported as averted. The controversy between the conservative element and those who insisted that the party emphasis must be placed on liberalism was not permitted to go to the floor.

As a matter of fact, if it had gone to the floor it probably would have gotten nowhere, because the issue would have been fought chiefly around personalities and not ideas.

The issue will not be an issue until a program comes out, a program which can be discussed. Glenn Frank, the chairman of the program committee, announced that the final report will not be made until late next year, and that it will contain an expression of political, social and economic philosophy; an objective assessment of the consequences of New Deal policy and administration in the political life, economy, enterprise and moral fiber of the American people; and, finally, a program of specific policies for dealing with the major problems confronting the government.

It is the last part of the program which will be most important. The critique of the New Deal has already been made, largely by experience, and the last elections showed, I think, that the criticism is being made by the American public. As I pointed out in this column immediately after the elections, the various polls of public opinion show pretty clearly where that criticism is centered.

A Problem Of Analysis.

It is the last part of the program—that of specific policies for dealing with the major problems confronting us—that is no doubt causing the program committee the most trouble, but this is not so much a problem of liberalism versus conservatism as it is a problem of analysis and intelligence.

The most hopeful sign in the Republican party is that, in inconspicuous ways, new minds are operating, who are approaching such problems as unemployment, agriculture, taxation, monetary policy, trade, relief and the relations between capital, industrial management, labor and government in a refreshingly scientific spirit.

They are, that is to say, attempting to formulate a picture of a progressive, peaceful, democratic society in which equilibrium will

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

In dreams he played the hero part,
Sure that his heart was brave,
But when, in life, he met his chance,
He proved but dared know.

He struck a woman, with his car,
He glimpsed her, bleeding, there,
Upon the pavement, sped away,
Escaped his only care.

And now he lies awake at night,
His eyes with fear agleam,
Trembling in shame's unholy fright,
Afraid to sleep—and dream!

In the City, Today.

There is a man, in the city here, today, whose condition is less to be envied, probably, than that of any other individual among us.

Here is his story:

He was going home, the other evening, after a day of good work, in his office. Driving an almost-new automobile, imagining the good dinner that was waiting, at home, and the wife listening for the sound of his car in the driveway.

He was contented with life, well satisfied with himself. In fact, he approved himself, quite highly. He thought, you see, he was a real man, of the stuff of which heroes are made. In fact, up to a certain moment, he never doubted that, faced with emergency, he would act the role of hero, just as he read in fact and in fiction.

That was, up to a certain moment.

That moment came on a quiet, residential street. He was driving, at the time, perhaps a little faster than he should. He was hungry and anxious to get home.

Without warning a woman stepped onto the pavement starting to cross the avenue.

Our friend saw her figure suddenly loom in his headlights, just three or four feet from his bumper. There was no time to stop, or to swerve sufficiently. The screech of brakes and the scream of skidding tires came after the jolt, as his car hit that object; after another brief, but awful scream, from human lips.

He had a momentary glimpse of the broken body, lying where it had been tossed 20 or 30 feet away. Then, gripped by sudden panic, he stepped on the accelerator and drove away.

The body of the woman was left alone, convulsively jerking, upon the street.

Then He Went Home.

He didn't stop until his car was in the garage, at home. He looked carefully at the bumper, and fenders, and radiator, and cowl and he thought, with a shudder, he saw a few dark spots, as if spattered on the bright paint.

His wife exclaimed at his appearance, white and nervous, but he said, brusquely, it was nothing. Just a little out of sorts and—"this traffic—almost had an accident—but it's all right."

He forced himself to eat, but the food was tasteless and repulsive in his mouth. He gave silent thanks when his married daughter came in her car, to take his wife to a club meeting.

Immediately after they left he hurried out, backed the car from the garage and, with water hose and rags, washed and polished and rubbed until he felt sure there could be no evidence—left.

He lay awake all through the night, trying to drive away from the eyes of imagination that pit-

ALMAND VIEWED
OF COMMISSIONERS

Prediction Indicates Harmony Has Been Restored to Fulton Body After Long and Bitter Fight.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

The dove of peace yesterday fluttered about the official heads of Fulton county's five-man commission and as evidence of restored harmony it was predicted freely that Vice Chairman Ed L. Almand will be elected to the chairmanship in the 1939 organization early in January.

Almand, a former member of the Johnson-Almand-Adams triumvirate, seemingly has deserted the depleted ranks of that faction leaving Dr. Charles Ross Adams as the only remaining member of the group.

The late Edwin F. Johnson, who was the spearhead of the three-man rule of the county commission, was succeeded by Troy Chastain, protege of the Longino-Ragsdale combination, which Johnson, Adams and Almand chastized for many months, plucking the choice political plums themselves and leaving the crumbs to George F. Longino and J. A. Ragsdale.

Change for Ragsdale.

Ragsdale will retire as commission chairman to the post of chairman of the important public works committee, a post now held by Longino. Almand will succeed Ragsdale as chairman. Longino is expected to go to the chairmanship of the police committee succeeding Ragsdale.

Chastain will be designated as vice chairman succeeding Almand, who has held that post for 1938. He also will be made chairman of the finance committee, according to reports, succeeding Dr. Adams, who will succeed Almand as chairman of the alms and juvenile committee.

There also were recurring reports yesterday that the 1939 county commission proposes to establish a purchasing committee, and, if this step is not taken, to charge the finance committee with supervision of county purchases.

Marked Contrast.

It is felt, according to spokesmen for the commission, that closer commission supervision of this department should be made effective.

The present commission presents a marked contrast to the strife-torn commission, which functioned about three years ago when the Johnson-Longino feud was at its height. Every commission meeting was marked by sharp clashes in those days, with Longino or Johnson tearing into each other in oral statements and through the press.

Johnson took the stump against Longino when he came up for re-election and coined the famous phrase "I'm going to give him (Longino) unshirted hell."

"Dictatorship" Broken.

Longino, however, was re-elected and Ragsdale went back to the commission with him. This broke the back of the Johnson "dictatorship" and soon afterwards a change in the attitude of members was apparent.

At the present time, Almand is regarded as one of the Longino group and even Dr. Adams, who was vociferous in his opposition to the 2.5 mill tax increase this year, has dropped some of his caustic criticisms.

In the main, the present board is one of harmony. The elevation of Almand over the commission freshman, Chastain, is expected to weld the group into an even stronger entirety thus giving rise to reports that a long-range survey of political prospects is being made for 1940. Longino and Ragsdale again face the electorate in 1940.

Commissioners will hold a special called meeting at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon to consider the personnel of the Lakewood fire station which will be opened about January 1.

They also are expected to set the salaries of employees some time next week. The law requires that employee salaries shall be fixed at least 10 days before the advent of the new year.

No increases or upward adjustments were anticipated because of the strained financial condition of the county. Another factor in the county expense for the new year will be just what disposition is to be made of the ever perplexing relief problem. Inability of the commission to meet present demands for this and other purposes was believed yesterday to be an effective bar to any salary increases for the new year.

FOUR STATES SEEK
GREEN ESTATE TAX

$36,000,000 Inheritance Fee
Is Involved.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(UPI) A four-state legal battle over the right to levy inheritance taxes on the $36,000,000 estate left by the late Edward H. R. Green, son of the famed eccentric multi-millionaire Hetty Green, drew nearer conclusion today.

Florida, Texas and New York, in individual briefs, asked the supreme court to rule that Green's legal domicile at the time of his death in June, 1936, was in their respective boundaries. They objected strenuously to a special master's report which recommended that Massachusetts be decreed to have been Green's domicile.

The recommendation would permit only the Bay State to levy taxes on the estate.

Three Vols, Jack Chivington Chosen on Writers' All-Southeastern

WRITERS' ALL- SOUTHEASTERN

Chivington Honored On Writers' Eleven

Tulane's Wenzel Noses Out Kavanaugh for End; Team Has Three Soph Linemen.

Following annual custom, members of the Southeastern board of football board met and selected the all-star team. Members of the board are: Fred Digby, New Orleans Item; Bill Keefe, New Orleans Times-Picayune; Charles (Pie) Dufour, New Orleans Tribune; Harry Martinez, New Orleans States; Jack Troy, The Atlanta Constitution; Morgan Blake, Atlanta Journal; Ed Danforth, Atlanta Georgian; Fred Russell, Nashville Banner; Raymond Johnson, Nashville Tennessean; Bob Phillips, Birmingham Age-Herald, and Zipp Newman, Birmingham News.

Three members of the all-conquering University of Tennessee machine were honored with places on the annual All-Southeastern Conference football team chosen by the Southern Writers' Association.

Tulane, which tied with Alabama for the runner-up position, supplied two while six other schools placed one apiece.

The 1938 all-star combination is the most unusual ever chosen by the writers in that it has three sophomore linemen. The selection of Bob Suffridge, Tennessee's magnificent guard, was far from a surprise even if he is a first-year man. J. W. Gore, of Louisiana State, won out in an extremely close battle for the other guard position.

VANDY TACKLE

Maurice Holdgraf, Vanderbilt's towering 210-pound tackle from Texas, was the third sophomore to be chosen.

Seven of the remaining eight players are seniors. George Cafego, Tennessee's powerful running back, is the lone junior.

In addition to Suffridge and Cafego, Major Bob Neyland's marvelous team placed Bowden Wyatt, a sparkling wingman. Although Wyatt wasn't a unanimous choice—five were—he was named captain of the all-star team because of his excellent leadership and inspiring play with the Vols this fall.

Picking the backfield was the

LAZZERI SIGNS WITH DODGERS

Tony Accepts 1-Year Contract; To Play Second Base.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Tony Lazzeri, who obtained his release from the Chicago Cubs a few days ago, announced today he had accepted terms to play second base for the Brooklyn Dodgers next year.

Lazzeri telephoned Larry McPhail his acceptance of a one-year contract after long distance telephone negotiations with the Brooklyn official yesterday.

He declined to disclose salary terms but expressed satisfaction with the deal. He said he was most happy over the fact he will be back into player's harness.

He emphasized he is joining Brooklyn with the agreement he was to play second base regularly. "Mr. McPhail and I were in complete accord on the matter," he said. "He understood what I wanted and I told him I was certain I could produce for him. This is the break I have been waiting for."

Star of many World Series while playing for the Yankees 12 years, the husky San Francisco-born Italian drew his release and signed this year with the Chicago Cubs as utility player and coach.

After the season, he said he would not rejoin the Cubs because he "wanted to play, not warm the bench." He asked for and received his release from the Cubs last Tuesday, saying at that time he was considering several offers.

Lazzeri, despite his long service in the majors, said he thought he was "good for many years as a player."

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

There exists in baseball one of the most curious of all situations.

From two to four or three to five each afternoon the game of baseball is entirely in the hands of two men in blue. The umpires have absolute authority.

Not even the president of the United States would have a right to step out of the stands and question their judgment. And yet the umpires are the most underpaid performers in baseball.

Now, it has been said that "you can't beat them hours." That part is all right. They don't work long hours. But the responsibility they shoulder is not nearly consistent with the pay they receive.

Just why this is I do not know. Most umpires are highly efficient. They have spent long hours in training for the job.

But when they get through a season's work after paying their own expenses on the road and all that sort of thing, they don't have much left to tide them over during the off season.

The umpires, in addition to shouldering full responsibility in running the game on the field, are the target of fan and player abuse. They must live a segregated life during baseball season. They have few friends. The league president is their only real friend.

This part would be all right if they were getting paid for it. But they're not. That is, they're giving a lot more than they receive.

Several outstanding leaders in baseball are working quietly in behalf of the underpaid umpire. Elmer Dailey, a member of the executive committee and 14 years president of the Middle Atlantic league, is outspoken on the matter and is gradually gaining support.

I think all will agree it is most ambiguous for two men in

ALL ROSE BOWL SEATS ARE SOLD

It's a Shame Only 90,000
 Can See It, Sighs
 Director Hunter.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Rose Bowl, as might be expected, has been sold out for the Duke-Southern California grid battle January 2.

Officials of Southern California, the host school, formally announced today that no more ticket applications need be sent in, and gave strong intimation that many thousand requests now on hand would have to be returned, unopened.

"It is a shame," sighed Director of Athletics Willis O. Hunter, "that we can't get any more than about 90,000 people in the Pasadena bowl. We would like to take care of everyone who wants to go to the big game, but it seems that when something is full, it is full."

The rose-bedecked bowl officially seats 85,411, but last January 1 additional seats were built over the tunnels and bleachers erected at both ends, and California and Alabama played before an official paid attendance of 97,287. Counting complimentary guests and a few hundred who scaled the barbed-wire fences, the total throng was estimated at 98,000.

Gate receipts for the game totaled $293,372, and the coming Duke-Southern California game will bring in as much or more.

Strangely enough, the Southern California-Pittsburgh game in 1930, while drawing but 65,300 customers, set a record gate receipts figure of $306,421 which has never been equaled. The reason was that the prices were higher than the $5.50, $4.40 and

Crackers Seeking Another Infielder

New Atlanta Hurler, Clyde Smoll, Lefty From Fort Worth, Sought by Many Clubs.

By JACK TROY.

After seven years of fine service, Buster Chatham has departed from the Atlanta Crackers.

President Earl Mann announced yesterday that "Chatham's contract has been assigned to the Fort Worth (Texas league) club at Chatham's own request."

Mann also announced cash purchase of Clyde Smoll, a left-handed pitcher who is expected to fill the place of Tom Sunkel. Smoll, who is five foot ten and weighs 175 pounds, won 11 games and lost 12 with an eighth-place Fort Worth club last season.

There was spirited bidding for Smoll's service, but the Crackers secured him. Allowing Chatham to sign with the club possibly influenced Fort Worth in closing the deal for Smoll.

The Crackers, in assigning Chatham's contract to Fort Worth, gave him, in effect, his free agency. He was able to make his own deal for Smoll.

BUSTER'S WISH

It was Chatham's desire to leave Atlanta while still a good player. He wanted the host of fans to remember him as he was. Chatham did not wish to wear out his welcome, as he expressed it. "Atlanta fans have been mighty fine to me, and naturally I am reluctant to leave, but it is the best thing for me. The Fort Worth deal is just what I want."

It is understood that the Fort Worth club did very well by Chatham as to contract. In addition, Fort Worth is not far from Waco, Chatham's home.

The Crackers sorely need another infielder now. Manager Paul Richards had figured on using Chatham at third base. If Marshall Mauldin does not fill that position, Howard Jones will bring them

Bonura Is Headed for Giants as All American Clubs Waive

TERRY OUTBIDS, BUCS FOR NATS' FIRST BASEMAN

Bill Won't Step Into Front Office With Frisch Becoming Pilot

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—President William Harridge, of the American league, said today that all junior circuit clubs have waived on Zeke Bonura, hard-hitting first baseman owned by the Washington Senators, clearing the way for a talked-of deal which may send the husky infielder to the New York Giants.

Harridge, returning this morning from the minor league baseball meeting at New Orleans, said the ten-day waiver period expired yesterday, with no American league club taking steps to prevent his leaving the circuit.

The Pittsburgh Pirates were reported to have been interested in Bonura but the bid of Bill Terry, Giants' manager, is supposed to be tops. Chicago's Cubs have repeatedly denied they are after the slow-fielding but long-hitting Zeke.

In Washington last night, Owner Clark Griffith, of the Senators, on hearing reports Bonura had been waived out of the circuit, was quoted as saying: "Good—now I can go to market." He added, however, that no deal would be negotiated with the Giants unless he could obtain players he needs.

The Senators traded Joe Kubel to the Chicago White Sox for Bonura after Zeke hit .345 for the Sox in 1937. He had trouble getting started in his Washington uniform but finished the season with a .291 average, getting 22 homers.

Terry To Remain Manager—Stoneham.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—There's very little chance that Bill Terry, who is officially "general manager" of the New York Giants, will move up to the front office and hire Frankie Frisch as bench manager.

When Owner Horace Stoneham returned yesterday from the minor league meetings, one of the first questions asked was "how about Frisch?"

Said Stoneham, "even if we had 15 minor league clubs to be handled, I would not have Terry run them. We would get somebody else to aid. We know he is more valuable on the bench. Frisch definitely will not be with our club. We do not need him."

As for Carl Hubbell's ailing arm, Stoneham didn't think it would call for a $1 a year such as the Yanks have tried. "I'd send him a blank contract and let him fill it in," Stoneham said, "but I don't think he'd ask for enough. That's hub for you."

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Tiger Jack Fox, negro light-heavyweight boxer who was seriously wounded Friday in a fight at a Seventh avenue hotel, was in Harlem hospital today in critical condition. Fox was to have fought Melio Bettina next month for New York state recognition as light-heavyweight champion.

At the hospital it was said he was stabbed below the heart, and was weak from loss of blood. A negro woman told police Fox tried to detain her in his room against her will, and that she stabbed him in self-defense.

LARSON NAMED COACH OF NAVY GRIDIRON TEAM

Marine Officer Gets Post; Rest of Middie Leaders Retained.

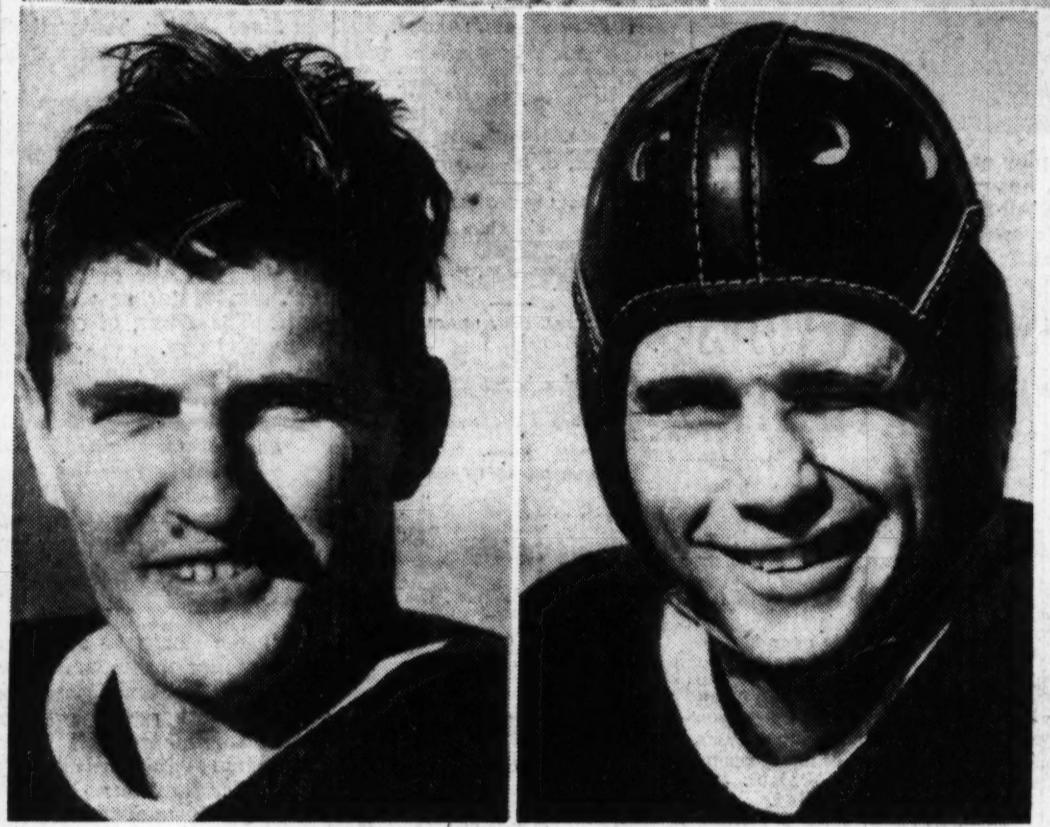

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Captain E. W. McKee, director of athletics at the United States Naval Academy, announced today the appointment of Captain Emery E. (Swede) Larson, United States marine corps, as Navy's head football coach for 1939.

Captain Larson, commander of the marine detachment at the academy, succeeds Lieutenant H. J. (Hank) Hardwick, who will return to sea duty at his own request after coaching the Navy squad for the past two years.

A graduate of the academy in the class of 1922, Larson becomes the first marine officer ever to coach a Navy football team. In his appointment, the Navy retained its custom of naming academy graduates as head football coach.

No other change in the coaching staff was made. All civilian assistants were retained. They are E. E. (Rip) Miller, line coach; Keith Molesworth, backfield coach, and Assistants Frank Fros-

Injured Monty Stratton Offered Life-Time Job

Pitcher Who Lost Leg Can Step Into Post With White Sox Office Organization.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Baseball offered a life-time job today to Monty Stratton, the ace Chicago White Sox pitcher who recently underwent amputation of his right leg after suffering a gunshot wound.

SMITH ELECTED ANSLEY OFFICER

New President Succeeds N. C. Harrison, Who is Given Present.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Members of the Ansley Park Club held their annual meeting for the election of officers after a "losers-pay" banquet at which the losers tried to eat their money's worth as the winners reveled in their defeated brethren's chagrin. L. H. Hyemann, who captained the winning team, gave his formula for picking winning teams as "choose the better golfers." Frank W. Sampson, who led the losers, said sad experience had taught him the way to have a losing team was to let only his friends play.

T. M. Smith, a prominent Atlanta lawyer, was unanimously elected president of the club by more than 100 members who attended the meeting. Smith succeeds N. C. Harrison, who has served as president for five years and as a member of the board of directors for seven years. Harrison was presented a silver service.

SUCCEEDS NEELY. Edgar H. Neely, retiring vice president, was succeeded by S. R. Kane. Larry F. Kent was re-elected to the board of directors as chairman of the finance committee. Morris Ward and L. H. Hyemann were also elected as members of the board of directors, their terms of office to be two years. Holdover directors, whose terms have a year to run, are Frank Sampson and Ed Merritt. J. J. Jones Jr. was the only retiring member of the directors' board.

A vote of thanks was accorded Tommy Wilson, popular pro at the Ansley Park Club, for his fine work.

AWARD TROPHIES. Just before adjournment T. M. Smith, as chairman of the tournament committee, with the aid of Tommy Wilson, awarded trophies to this year's tourney winners. To Jiroud J. Jones Jr. went the club championship cup for the second straight year. The Nat Kaiser trophy was won by G. S. Van Deusen, the president's cup to Don Cathcart, and the spring handicap cup was taken into custody by Ben Jones.

After the trophy awards had been made the members were treated to a Bobby Jones film, which also featured Lawson Little, Jimmy Thomson and the putting wizard, Horton Smith. A whispering campaign was going the rounds that anyone seeing the movie would automatically cut ten strokes off his score, so all members remained to see Robert Tyre Jones and entourage do their stuff before the camera.

After the showing of the film, 10 members, picked at random, were interviewed as to how many strokes the film had taken off their own scores. Only 10 of those interviewed declined to answer the pertinent question.

Vol Officials Sell 2,000 Bowl Tickets

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 10.—(AP)—University of Tennessee athletic officials said today approximately 2,000 tickets had been sold here for the Tennessee-Oklahoma football game in Miami's Orange Bowl January 2.

U. C. L. A. IS HELD TO 6-6 DEADLOCK BY OREGON STATE

Referee Fitzpatrick Tackles Uclan Runner, Who Might Have Scored.

MEMORIAL COLISEUM, Los Angeles, Dec. 10.—(UP)—The University of California at Los Angeles and Oregon State today fought to 6 to 6 tie before a crowd of 15,000 spectators.

The UCLA Bruins made heroic efforts to win for their coach, William (Bill) Spaulding, who ended his 32-year career today, but were unable to do more than even up the six points Oregon State had scored in the opening minute of the contest.

The game was replete with story-book incidents including a "tackle" by Referee Tom Fitzpatrick of Utah as Izzy Cantor, UCLA halfback, was winging down the field on what appeared to be a sure-fire touchdown sprint.

LATERAL PASS.

Cantor had taken the ball on a lateral pass on his own 10 and on his 45 emerged from a group of Oregon State tacklers. He had a clear field when he collided with Fitzpatrick and was down.

Oregon State gained an early lead when Harold Higgins, Beaver halfback, sprinted 85 yards to the UCLA five. On the third play thereafter Higgins made the touchdown. Prescott Hutchins failed to convert from placement.

Kenney Washington, UCLA negro halfback, sparked the Bruins 50-yard march up the field for a touchdown early in the fourth period.

SCORING PLAY. The scoring play was a pass by Washington to James Mitchell, an end, from State's seven. Mitchell caught the ball in the end zone. Guard John Frawley was wide on an attempted placement for the extra point.

The UCLA Bruins made huge gains all afternoon between the 20-yard stripes, but bogged down in paying territory. Twice Oregon State held for downs with the ball resting only a foot from the goal line.

The Bruins attempted desperately to win the game in the closing minutes. They marched down the field to the O. S. C. 5 where Woodrow Strode snagged a pass from Co-Captain Hal Hirshon with 10 seconds to go. UCLA called time out and lost 5 yards on the resultant penalty. Hirshon's pass was incomplete and on second down Frawley attempted a field goal—which would have netted three points had it not been wide. The game ended before Oregon State could try a play from the Beaver 20-yard line.

"Monty has a job with us as long as he wants it," said Comiskey. "He was a fine pitcher and is a finer man. Baseball can't afford to lose him."

Comiskey conferred briefly today with P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, and then announced plans for the Cub-Sox game, all proceeds from which will go to Mr. and Mrs. Stratton, whose son, Monty Jr., was a year old the day the amputation operation was performed.

Harry Grabiner, White Sox vice president, said Stratton was "coming along fine" and may leave the hospital in two weeks. He was a big factor in White Sox hopes for 1939, having won 15 games the past season, even though out of action with a sore arm for the first month of the campaign.

FURNISHES DRAMATICS. Coach Bill Spaulding furnished some dramatics for UCLA supporters just before Frawley's kick when he jerked Izzy Cantor and inserted Ray Sturdevant, a senior halfback who has been on the UCLA scrub team for three years but never had played a minute in a varsity contest. Sturdevant got a tremendous hand when he raced out on the field.

Statistics favored UCLA. The Bruins made 23 first downs against three for Oregon State, and rolled up a total of 378 yards against 74. The game was won by the University of Tennessee in 1925 after its Minnesota team in the Big Ten made grid history by stopping Red Grange. Spaulding becomes athletic director at UCLA and the Bruins will be coached by Babe Horrell, former All-American center at the University of California.

American Expected To Adopt Slower Ball at Major Meeting

NIGHT BASEBALL, 12-MONTHSALARY ARE MAIN ISSUES

Philadelphia, Cleveland
Will Seek Permission To Play at Night.

By EARL HILLIGAN.
CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(P)—A question American league club owners have been bunting around privately since the World Series—the type of baseball their hired hands will sput at next season—will be settled in New York this week when magnates assemble for the annual major league winter session.

That's the prediction of William Harridge, American league president, who attended the minor league meeting at New Orleans and made a brief stopover here before heading for Manhattan.

"Owners definitely will settle the ball question," he said. "While I don't predict what action will be taken, I know that some owners feel some of the liveliness should be removed from the ball used last season. Tests have been made which owners have watched closely."

TO MODIFY.

Among baseball men there is a strong belief that the junior league will adopt a somewhat modified ball for 1939, not necessarily for the purpose of toning down the power of the New York Yankee slingers. Sentiment apparently favors just enough of a change to meet the specifications of the ball adopted by the National league owners at the 1938 meeting.

At that session both American and National league club owners were expected to take joint action on the ball question. But the American leagues postponed a decision and did a lot of eyebrow-raising when the senior circuit magnates suddenly went ahead and adopted a ball with heavier cover and slightly raised seam.

Tests have proved this "slower" ball just as alive as the American league one. Many pitchers agreed the raised seam helps them, so it is probable the junior league owners will adopt one similar to that used by the National leagues.

NIGHT BASEBALL.

Another item of business expected to come before American league owners, Harridge said, is the night baseball question. Cleveland and Philadelphia are expected to ask for permission to play night games. It is known also that the league will attempt to reduce the number of appeals from batters and pitchers that a fresh ball be tossed into the game.

American league umpires have been granting those requests so frequently, primarily to keep peace, that some baseball men fear the habit may develop into an extreme nuisance. National league umpires have been instructed to toss in a new ball only when convinced the one in use is defective and junior circuit arbiters probably will be given the same order.

Player Limit May Be Raised.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(UP)—With rumors of trades buzzing in all directions, the baseball caravan was headed toward New York tonight for the annual winter major league meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Indications are that it will be one of the most harmonious meetings ever held with every chance that the two leagues will adopt a uniform ball. The meetings will be held at the same hotel, the Waldorf-Astoria, for the first time in history. The leagues seem to have buried the hatchet regarding inter-league battles as illustrated by the Giants' optimism over getting First Baseman Zeke Bonura from Washington.

Among the other items on the agenda is a proposal to raise the player limit from 23 to 25. The National league already has enough votes to pass that legislation and the American league is expected to follow suit.

ROUGH MATCHES BILLED MONDAY

Wrestling fans who like their grappling rough will get their share of it Monday night at the West Side arena, when three attractive matches are presented.

Red Dugan, Chattanooga terror, who doesn't know the meaning of clean wrestling, faces formidable opposition in his return go with Son Almand, Atlanta steel worker, in the feature match.

Recently, the two met in a free-for-all and both were counted out by the referee outside the ring. Almand asked the promoter for another chance at the tough Dugan, which was granted. Almand declared that he will meet the Chattanooga terror at his own tactics, and promises mat fans that Dugan will be on the receiving end this time. They are scheduled for a one-hour, best two-out-of-three-falls match.

The semi-windup, another one-hour affair, should rival the main event for action when the veteran White Patterson, Panthersville "panther," clashes with rough Tiger Mills, of Wisconsin. Mills made his debut here last week, and was disqualified for roughness.

Making his debut here in the opener, Al Ritchie, of California, who comes here well recommended, will oppose "Wild Bill" Collins, College Park.

The first match will start at 8:30 o'clock. The arena is located at 758 Bankhead avenue.

J. P. C. CAGERS START SEASON TONIGHT UNDER NEW COACH

Morris (Big Kitty) Katz, left, and Emanuel (Happy) Minsk, regular guard last year, has moved to Macon, and tonight brings his team of Macon All-Stars to the J. P. C. court on Pryor street in the season's opener. The J. P. C. Cubs play Marist in a preliminary at 7:30 o'clock.

LARSON NAMED COACH OF NAVY

ter, Ray Swartz, Johnny Wilson and Henry Orland.

Larson, who was Navy's varsity center in 1919, 1920 and 1921, when the Middies beat the Army three years in a row, was named on the late Walter Camp's second string All-America team in 1921.

He was not on the Navy's coaching staff this season, but for several years he tutored marine teams at stations, ranging from Paris Island, S. C., to Shanghai. From 1922 through 1924, Larson played on the all-marine team at Quantico, Va., and in 1925 and 1926 he coached the all-Navy team in Hawaii.

He was line coach at the University of Hawaii in 1928 and three years later went back to Paris Island to coach the marines. After two years in Nicaragua, he coached the U. S. S. Pennsylvania teams, which won two successive fleet championships.

Warren Five
Fast Rivals

Chicopee Coming Tuesday; Bill Jordan, Gadsden Here Thursday.

Bolstered considerably by the acquisition of Carlos Brock, outstanding center of the two Carolinas for the past three years, the Warren basketball team will play two strong foes this week, meeting Chicopee, Mills, of Gainesville, Tuesday night, and Goodey, of Gadsden, Ala., on Thursday night. Both games will be played at Warren Arena.

Shep Lauter's team was upset in its opening game by a classy and spirited Nehi quintet from Columbus after a stirring game which ended, 43-39. In this battle the Warren cagers, ordinarily crack shots, made only 14 out of 63 attempts from the field. This, together with their failure to follow up shots, cost them the game.

The Warren team is loaded with outstanding talent. Lauter did not expect to whip it into a clicking, championship machine within a few weeks. However, he does expect his team to make an improved showing Tuesday and Thursday nights. With such players as Virlyn Moore Jr., Ted Cabi, last-year ace of the Greer, S. C., team; Joel Ticer, Cherry Foster, Fred Bradford and Ed Copeland, the Lauter-coached club is expected to hit a fast pace from here out. Carlos Brock should be the making of the team.

Chicopee is reputed to have a hustling, fast team and will make it interesting for the Atlanta outfit.

Bill Jordan, last year star of the Georgia team, will be one of the standout players performing here with Gadsden Thursday night. Lindy Hood, Alabama's All-America center of several years back, also is with Goodey, which ranks with Dixie's foremost teams.

A great crowd witnessed Warren's opener last week and was treated to some highly exciting play. Preliminary games will be played both Tuesday and Thursday nights, starting at 7:15.

J. P. C. Will Battle Macon All-Stars

Revised Progressive Lineup To Take Court Tonight; Minsk Now a Foe, Browdy Missing.

By MELVIN FAZOL.

A revised J. P. C. lineup will take the court tonight when the Progressive varsity basketball squad battles Pony Minsk's Macon All-Stars at 8:30 o'clock on the Pryor Street court.

High-scoring Center Steve Browdy will be missing from the lineup, and "Pony" Minsk regular and outstanding guard last season, will be playing against his former teammates tonight.

In Browdy's place at center will be "Gabby" Greenberg, ace guard last year. Greenberg, who makes his home in Richmond, Va., arrived only Thursday, and consequently had had a minimum of practice with the rest of the squad. He seems to be in good shape, however, and just as fast as last season.

Morris (Big Kitty) Katz and Emanuel (Happy) Ginsberg, regular forwards, are back. Greenberg won't be as good at center as he was at guard, but he ought to come through okay. He has played the position before. Besides, there is a possibility that Browdy will change his mind and return to the squad. Steve stated last season that he didn't intend to play any more. That leaves a problem at the secretary-treasurer's post.

Emmanuel Kulbersh, first sub guard on last year's team, is not back, and neither is Barney Medina, sub forward.

Coach Bennett will probably shift Morris Katz to guard to team with Elliott Rubin, a reserve last year, and start Hyman (Little Kitty) Katz at the other forward post opposite Ginsberg.

That leaves reserves Max Kuniansky, Perry Rubin and Moe Parzoe. Kuniansky and Rubin were stars on the cub team, and Parzoe is a flashy newcomer who may be able to help. He plays forward. Kuniansky is a guard and Rubin can be used at guard or center.

The Macon All-Stars have Ed Jones, former Tech ace, at forward, and Pony Minsk at guard, as a nucleus. Former members of Mercer teams round out the squad.

The J. P. C. Cubs meet Marist College in a preliminary at 7:30. The J. P. C. team has arranged a formidable schedule. They meet some of the best independent and college teams in the south, and have a game with the Celtics tentatively arranged for January 17.

BILLED MONDAY

Featuring the professional debut of Buster Isenberg, former captain of the University of Georgia boxing team and winner of the Southeastern conference championship, a fight card of 36 rounds will be offered Monday night at the Central Athletic Club, located at 125 1-2 Luckie street.

Ben Brown and Tom McCarthy will referee the six six-round bouts. Popular prices will prevail.

Isenberg, who is now a heavyweight and who is regarded by men wise in the fight game as an outstanding prospect, will meet Steve O'Brien, Buffalo husky, in the feature fight.

Jackie Hart, of Chattanooga, who stopped Ray Johnson here last week, will meet Hippo Hippo, Hood, Alabama's All-America center of several years back, also is with Goodey, which ranks with Dixie's foremost teams.

Pete Tarpley, well-known Atherton's boxer last year, will be the Georgia team, will be one of the standout players performing here with Gadsden Thursday night.

Lindy Hood, Alabama's All-America center of several years back, also is with Goodey, which ranks with Dixie's foremost teams.

A great crowd witnessed Atherton's opener last week and was treated to some highly exciting play. Preliminary games will be played both Tuesday and Thursday nights, starting at 7:15.

SOUTHERN VOTES AID TO PLAYERS

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 10.—(AP)

The Southern conference today liberalized its regulations governing financial aid to athletes, voted down a proposal to abolish spring football practice and gave its official blessing to Duke's trip to the Rose Bowl.

A spirited squabble over fees of football officials gave the session its only burst of fireworks. The spring football proposal went down by a 11-4 vote. The vote eliminating a by-law clause specifying that scholarships and non-scholarships be given to non-athletes and equals was not recorded.

The conference decided just before adjournment to meet next year at Roanoke and re-elected Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, of Duke, president for a third term. Dr. Allan W. Hobbs, University of North Carolina, was again named vice president, and Colonel William Couper, V. M. I., was returned to the secretary-treasurer's post.

MOVE FAILS.

A move by Clemson to eliminate the conference ban on post-season games failed but the by-laws were amended to permit teams to participate in bowl contests with consent of the loop. Approval of Duke's acceptance of a bid to meet Southern California in the Rose Bowl was unanimous.

The most significant action of the conference was the elimination of the scholarship clause, one of the final remaining major planks in the Graham plan for de-emphasis of football adopted by the circuit in 1936. The measure was intended to prevent faculty committees from considering athletic ability in aiding students, and to provide non-scholarships an equal chance at all awards.

The basketball tournament, the loop's only profitable enterprise, which netted $4,700 last year, was returned to Raleigh and Committee Chairman Eddie Cameron, of Duke, received praise for successful handling of the meet.

To Gamecocks.

The University of South Carolina was awarded the boxing tournament, which broke even in expenses-receipts at Maryland last winter. Outdoor and indoor track and the cross-country meets will all be held at Chapel Hill under the sponsorship of the University of North Carolina. North Carolina State was given the swimming meet while William and Mary was the successful bidder on the tennis tourney.

The golf meet, which was abbreviated by a rainstorm at Hot Springs last May, will go to Pinehurst, N. C., in 1939. The wrestling tournament was abandoned because of lack of interest.

Golden Gloves Meet Scheduled at Dalton

DALTON, Ga., Dec. 10.—The official annual seventh district Golden Gloves boxing tournament will be held in Dalton at the Mountain View arena January 3, 4 and 5, it was announced today by Dr. Sam M. Easley, of this city, who was recently named as director of this event for this section of the state by Oscar Brock, secretary of the Atlanta Y. M. C. A.

It is planned to hold an elimination tournament with entries classed in two groups, "novices" and "open class," so that no experienced boy will be matched against an inexperienced fighter.

Giants, Packers Rated Even for Championship Pro Game Today

40,000 TO WATCH PAID GRID STARS IN TITLE BATTLE

Don Hutson, Bob Monnett in Shape, Green Bay Hopes High.

By BILL BONI.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A new attendance record for national professional football league playoffs almost certainly will be set tomorrow afternoon when the New York Giants, eastern division winners, and the Green Bay Packers, of the western division, meet at the Polo Grounds. Victory will give the winner the league title, the Ed Thorp trophy and the major slice of the post-season pot.

The present playoff mark was established in 1934, when 35,000 saw the Giants meet the Chicago Bears. Club officials, announcing that a 20,000 lower-seat unreserved seats and 5,000 bleacher seats will go on sale at 10 a. m. tomorrow, also said they were confident a crowd of 40,000 or better would be on hand for the kickoff at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.), with the possibility of a sell-out if the weather turns clear.

The game shapes up as an even-money proposition for a friendly bet reflected in the professional odds-layers' price of 9-10 and take your pick.

Off the facts that the Giants won by 15-3 in their regular-schedule meeting and looked practically unbeatable in trampling all over the Washington Redskins for a 36-0 victory a week ago, it might be expected that the New Yorkers would be favored. But Green Bay played the last time without Don Hutson and Bob Monnett, two of its most valuable players. Both will be ready for duty tomorrow, and as to the Giants' showing against Washington—few expect them to hit that peak two Sundays in succession.

With Hutson back at end, the Packers, who haven't played a game since they bowed to the Giants November 20, are expected to throw more passes than they did that day. Then they out-rushed the New Yorkers by six country miles but lost on two long runs. Hutson, one of the best pass receivers in the business, will be the chief target for "Freshman" Cecil Isbell, Monnett and Arnold (Flash) Herber.

The giant aerial maneuvers of course, will be entrusted to Ed Danowski, who set a new league record this year with 70 completions in 120 attempts and has averaged better than 50 per cent over a one-year stretch.

Spalding, coached by Art Graves and Kinsey Stewart, have arranged an 11-game card for the boys' team and the girls' squad will face 10 opponents.

Griffith, Ga., Dec. 10.—(UPI)—Spalding High school and Griffith High school basketball schedules were announced here today for the 1939 season.

Spalding, coached by Art Graves and Kinsey Stewart, have arranged an 11-game card for the boys' team and the girls' squad will face 10 opponents.

Griffith High, under Coach Frank Gant, will open a 13-game schedule on December 15 with Milner here. The local high school last year won the 1938 state title in the "B" class. The girls' team had 12-game card scheduled.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(P)—

The stock market generally performed to the satisfaction of Wall Street this week and stepped out of the picture today on a modest rallying note.

Steels, motors, aircraft, mail orders and specialties jogged through the brief proceedings for gains of fractions to more than a point, while most rails, utilities, coppers and oils were a shade improved.

High Business Hopes.

The day's recovery was attributed partly to buying inspired by the noticeable lightening of year-end tax selling, continuance of high business hopes for 1939 and lessening of apprehension over foreign affairs.

Volume picked up a trifle on the come-back, transfers totaling 405,610 shares against 322,480 last Saturday which was the smallest turnover since August 20 last. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .3 of a point at 50.2, and on the week was down only .1.

Bolstering sentiment during the final session were forecasts automotive production this month would equal that of November and, for General Motors, would be the second best December in the history of the company.

Steels Shares Lead.

Steels were ahead throughout although another dip in mill operations next week was looked for. Expanding orders for steel products, at the same time, were a beneficial influence here. After the close, United States Steel announced November shipments topped October by 16,366 tons and were the largest for any month since October a year ago.

Aiding merchandising issues was the B. & W. Bradstreet estimate of a brisk pickup in Christmas retail spending. Heavy awards for army planes gave a fillip to aircraft.

Fractionally higher in the curb were American Cyanamid, "B" American Gas & Electric, Lockheed and Gulf Cities Service and Carrier Corporation were backward. Turnover of 96,000 shares compared with 66,000 a week ago. (McKesson & Robbins debenture 5 1/2s of '50 have been removed from the Associated Press industrial bond average and Remington-Rand 4 1/4s of '56 have been substituted. The price of the new issue is sufficiently close to the replaced bond so that the continuity of the average is preserved.)

NAZIS REPORTED PRESSING BRITISH TO DISMISS JEWS

Scotland Yard Probes Rumors That Trade Is Used as Weapon To 'Aryanize' Business.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Scotland Yard canvassed scores of British firms engaged in foreign trade tonight in an investigation of charges that British firms trading as German agents were being subjected to Nazi pressure to "Aryanize" their personnel.

An unidentified organization which alleged that the anti-Jewish drive was going on in certain British firms complained to Scotland Yard. Dismissals of Jews were ordered on the basis of "inefficiency" and the need for "reorganization" it said.

Scotland Yard refused to comment on the situation or divulge the scope of its inquiry.

Only last Thursday, Richard J. Sandler, foreign minister of Sweden, charged in a speech that Germany was attempting to extend its anti-Jewish program beyond the German borders.

"Swedish firms, now trading with Germany," Sandler said, "have been informed of the unsuitability of having non-Aryan employees."

Swedish subsidiary companies, Sandler said, had been asked for information relating to their employees and the extent of Jewish capital or management control. The questions came from Germany, the foreign minister said, and were inspired with a view toward "Aryanization" of those Swedish firms which trade with the Reich.

PRESSURE ON DUTCH FIRMS REPORTED

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Pressure from Germany on Dutch firms trading with the Reich to dismiss their Jewish employees was reported in trade circles to-night. Germany has withdrawn its agencies from Dutch trading firms whose executives or leading stockholders are Jews.

RUMORS CIRCULATE IN COPENHAGEN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Unverified reports circulated here tonight that Germany has brought pressure upon Danish firms to discharge its Jewish employees.

BODY OF AGED MAN FOUND IN HAYSTACK

Believed Victim of Wisconsin Farmhand Who Killed Girl, Self.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Dec. 10.—(UP)—Searchers poking through a haystack late today found a probable third victim of Curtis Hanson, itinerant farmhand who committed suicide Monday after slaying a 15-year-old schoolgirl.

It was the body of Everett Lincoln (Rett) Pierce, 74-year-old pensioner, one of two aged brothers with whom Hanson had been staying in a ramshackle farmhouse.

"Without a doubt this is Hanson's deed," exclaimed Sheriff Jim Croake.

The body was taken to a mortuary to establish the cause of death. First examination revealed no bullet wound.

Hanson took his own life and that of pretty Mary Cunningham by a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle after they had left his home ostensibly on a Christmas shopping trip.

A few hours before George Van Horn, a member of the searching party, made the discovery of the body Sheriff Croake had found the bloodstained sheepskin jacket of Rett Pierce stuffed behind the cushions of the automobile in which the murder-suicide took place.

EXPERT ON HOUNDS WILL SPEAK HERE

Leon F. Whitney To Address Kennel Club Friday Night.

Leon F. Whitney, of Orange, Conn., whose "bloodhound farm" is the largest in the country, will address the regular December meeting of the Atlanta Kennel Club at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Biltmore hotel.

As Mr. Whitney also is nationally known in his research work in cancer treatment in collaboration with L. C. Strong, of the Yale University Medical School, a special invitation has been issued to members of the local medical association to hear his discussion of the subject.

Strated As Hobby.

Speaking of Mr. Whitney and his unique industry, a Fortune magazine article said:

"Dogs, and particularly bloodhounds, have been Mr. Whitney's business for more than 10 years. After graduating from an agricultural college, he went to farming. Later he took an interest in the study of eugenics and was made an officer of the American Eugenics Society.

"About the same time, in 1924, he started raising bloodhounds as a hobby, and since the depression his dogs have footed his bills for more research in genetics, canine disease and nutrition, even human cancer. He recently completed a new kennel which he says is 'the largest building in the country devoted exclusively to canine research.' This fall Mr. Whitney is back in college with his wife to study veterinary medicine."

Progress in Treatment.

"Real progress" in the treatment of cancer in dogs was reported in a story in the August 8 issue of Time Magazine devoted to the research work of Mr. Whitney and Mr. Strong, a biologist, although they warned laymen not to leap to "optimistic conclusions."

The treatment on which they have been experimenting consists of doses of wintergreen oil and heptaldehyde. Although several cures have been reported, it was their conclusion that "the proper analysis and evaluation of the present data must wait until statistically significant numbers are obtained."

"It should be remembered, however, that the great majority of those 725,000 still need to be guided to compete home ownership; and, in addition, there are more than 132,000 others who still are doing their utmost to rehabilitate themselves. On our ability to grant them leniency and consideration, and to help find solutions for their problems, rests their chance finally to come through. It is only because the majority are getting on their feet that we are able to help those most unfortunate, without a heavy burden on taxpayers and the Treasury. Thus, the corporation is carrying on its work through its own revenues alone."

They say stout-hearted Dmitri Mikhaleff started the family tank idea. They encouraged his four boys to get into the Red army as soon as possible, and now the brothers Mikhaleff constitute the crew of a tank in the far east.

The brothers Mikhaleff got a lot of publicity as soon as the crew was organized, with the result that other groups of brothers began applying for tanks. The brothers Lazoda were assigned to a tank in the far east, also the brothers Michurin.

The movement spread through the whole army. In the White Russian military area the tank of the brothers Novitsky has attracted attention. Recently tank crews have been organized with the brothers Popoff, Khokhoff, Yegoroff; and only the other day the four brothers Lukoff went to the far east to take over a tank.

Hundreds of young fellows are petitioning for permission to begin their military service ahead of time, in order to fill a tank with other brothers already in the brothers.

Lately brothers have begun to appear in the air force, manning planes together. Others have been assigned to the same machine gun unit.

JOKE AT 91 ON DOCTOR.

Forbidden by his physician, because of his advanced age and a recent stroke, to take a train at Sydney for his annual vacation, O. N. Noake, 91, of Adelaide, sneaked away and took an airplane which the doctor didn't think.

It was his first plane ride, and he insists he will never travel any other way.

TWO APARTMENTS SOLD DURING WEEK FOR ABOUT $80,000

Buford Court Apartments and Another on Eleventh Street in Transfers.

Sale of two apartments, one of 28 units, and one of six large units, involving about $80,000 were among some of the larger realty deals for the week.

The larger structure, the Buford Court apartments, a three-story, 28-unit brick structure at 957-63 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., on lot 100x200 feet, was sold from Mrs. Bessie Brown Randall to Jerry H. Taylor, through L. C. Pitts, of the Draper-Owens Company, realtors. The consideration was not disclosed, but the price paid is said to have been close to the city tax assessment of $62,500.

The other apartment is located at 94 Eleventh street, corner of Crescent avenue, and consists of six large units. It was purchased by Julian P. Hicks from C. L. DeFoor, for a price understood to be $17,000. The sale was negotiated by Lawton Burdett, of the Burdett Realty Company, realtors.

It is understood that the new owner will have the property vacated soon, and will begin a general modernization of the structure, converting it into a hotel apartment of no less than 50 rooms. The new owner will have the management of the structure when it has been changed, which will take about three months.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Home Owners' Loan Corporation has written "paid in full" across accounts totaling more than $100,000,000 and has checked off its books the names of 44,000 American home owners who only a few years ago faced the loss of their homes through foreclosure.

The list of fully liquidated accounts is growing at a rate of 1,500 a month—already 50 per cent above the rate reported for originally for 10 years from now—Charles A. Jones, general manager of the HOLC, announced today.

"Although these borrowers were unable to get private credit and were faced with foreclosure and loss of their homes only a few years ago, they have proved that all they needed was a chance to stand on their feet," said Mr. Jones.

"They are, of course, the most fortunate aided by the HOLC, but there are hundreds of thousands of others—more than 725,000 of them, in fact—who are definitely on the way out of their difficulties are obtained."

"It should be remembered, however, that the great majority of those 725,000 still need to be guided to compete home ownership; and, in addition, there are more than 132,000 others who still are doing their utmost to rehabilitate themselves. On our ability to grant them leniency and consideration, and to help find solutions for their problems, rests their chance finally to come through. Although several cures have been reported, it was their conclusion that "the proper analysis and evaluation of the present data must wait until statistically significant numbers are obtained."

PENSION-ENDORSED SOLONS SQUIRM AS SESSION NEARS

Many Already Have Noted Danger of Letting Such Measure Appear Before
Members of Congress.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(R)—
Republican members of congress and some New Dealers who accepted Townsend-old-age pension endorsements in the recent national campaign are now wondering what they are going to do about it when the showdown comes at the next session.

There are indications now that supporters of the plan—on the surface at least—will be able to force the issue. As a consequence many congressmen are beginning to wear worried looks on their faces. Particularly are the Republicans who obtained Townsend support for renomination and re-election doing a bit of squirming.

Although not committing themselves definitely to the scheme, for the most part they gave the old age pensioners a promise to see that their legislative proposals are taken up and considered at least.

Now that the time is approaching for delivering, they realize the danger of letting a bill go before congress. If either the Townsend or some similar legislation were brought before the house it would be extremely difficult to halt its course. Regardless of the lip service given the proposal it is practically conceded on all sides that even a modified proposition like that of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican of Massachusetts, calling for $60 per month pensions for the aged, would wreck the country. As for the $200 per month phantasy of Dr. Townsend—well, there is no word to describe that: Impossible.

$1 Bills To Don Stone Mountain Christmas Trees

Santa Claus will be surprised if he sees the Christmas tree that will adorn the Stone Mountain Baptist church on the night of December 22.

The tree will have 375 leaves and each of the leaves will be a $1 bill. The unusual tree has been planned in an effort to pay off the church's $375 indebtedness. Dedicatory services for the new church will be held at the same time. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

The church has been twice destroyed by fire within four years. On Easter Sunday in 1934 it burned. On Thanksgiving Day in 1936 the pastorum of the church went up in flames. The church building was rebuilt and dedicated in December 1937, but again on Christmas Eve morning in 1937, after a children's Christmas service, the new church again was destroyed by fire. During 1938 construction of a new building has been completed.

Despite these misfortunes the total indebtedness now is only $375. Each member is providing leaves for the special Christmas tree.

MAYOR DEMANDS CITY ASPHALT PLANT

Hartsfield Insists That Apportionment Be Included in 1939 Budget.

Mayor Hartsfield declared yesterday he would demand an appropriation for a city asphalt plant in the 1939 budget, charging that city council failed to take advantage of its opportunities in failing to purchase a plant for $2,500.

The plant, to which the mayor referred and for which council once offered $10,000, was sold to a Chattanooga contractor for $2,500. Council several months ago approved a purchase price of $10,000 for the plant, owned by Fred Bridges, but the mayor vetoed its resolution because of the expense.

The mayor said council could have bought the plant several weeks ago for the $2,500 figure, but that the finance committee failed to act.

"If council had acted promptly," he said, "the city could have purchased this plant for this price and the city would have a plant which council members themselves have insisted will save us $100 per day."

NINE ARE RESCUED BY BREECHES BUOY

Boston Trawler Grounded Off Nauset Beach.

ORLEANS, Mass., Dec. 10.—(UPI)—Coast guardmen, unable to launch surf boats in the rough water off Nauset Beach, employed a breeches buoy today to rescue the captain and eight crew members of the grounded Boston trawler Andover.

The vessel ran ashore in dense fog. Captain William J. Bruce radioed for help when the pounding surf stowed in one of his two lifeboats. Coast guardmen shot a line aboard the 23-ton trawler, which was leaking badly, and hauled the nine men one by one over 75 yards of boiling water.

The rescue was completed 15 minutes after the line was fixed and just an hour after the ship went aground.

Knows the Ropes, But Not This One

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 10.—(R)—Harold White, 40, a newspaper vendor, caught a rope trailing over the side of the steamship Algonquin today—planning to draw himself aboard to sell papers.

But the rope wasn't fastened to the ship.

White was rescued from Biscayne bay along with 29 of his 40 papers.

URBAN LEAGUE

Rufus Turner, a 31-year-old negro, a native of Houston, Texas, and a graduate of the public school system of Washington, D. C., has been made managing editor of "Radio." This is one of America's outstanding technical journals, which is read by amateur and professional wireless operators throughout the civilized world.

A very interesting story lies behind the appointment of this young man to this important position. It was while he was a student at the Armstrong High School, Washington, D. C., that he became interested in radio work. This was at a time when wireless transmission was in its experimental stage and its potentialities had not made themselves manifest. This young man built a number of sets for himself and friends, including a crystal set which was so small that it was mounted on a straight pin and yet so perfect in its mechanism that it could pick up on ear phones stations within a radius of 50 miles.

Ripley featured in his "Believe It or Not" column this tiny set which created such great interest and speculation among radio amateurs that it has since been exhibited in nearly every country where radio is known. It has traveled three times around the world.

The officials of the Waltham Watch Company saw this set on display at the World's Fair in 1933 and immediately sent for young Turner and outlined a desire to have a clock and watch constructed that would be regulated by a tiny crystal set to be controlled by radio signals—a clock that would need no winding that would use no electric current and would always be accurate as long as signals were sent out from a central station.

In the meantime, Turner had not only finished high school, but had matriculated at Rhode Island State College. The proposition of the watch company was so fascinating that young Turner decided to try his skill. He immediately moved to Waltham, Mass., and set up a laboratory in the company's plant. He worked month after month, night and day, on this experiment.

Radio builders throughout the country became interested in and challenged the claim that the smallest radio had been built and exhibited sets smaller than the one which had brought fame to this Washington high school student. This resourceful youth answered them by building a set so tiny that it could pass through the eye of a needle. The experiment was highly successful from a mechanical point of view, but was a failure commercially because the radio controlled timepiece which he invented could not be manufactured for less than $20. There were already on the market electric clocks which could be developed and sold for less than a dollar.

In spite of this failure, however, the Waltham people were so pleased with the experiment that they assisted this young man in obtaining a position with the National Company of Boston, Mass., which manufacturers short-wave equipment. Young Turner worked for this company as a laboratory engineer for four years at the highly technical task of aligning receivers. It was his responsibility to place the final O. K. on every piece of equipment that left the company's shop, in spite of the fact that he had never had any formal engineering training.

He frequently sent free-lance articles to technical radio magazines which appeared most often in "Radio" and such other publications as "Q. S. T.," "The Experimentor" and "Radio News." Because of the articles he had contributed, the "Radio" publisher invited him, in 1935, to join the publication as assistant editor. This magazine is published by radio representatives with editorial offices in Los Angeles, Cal.

When the editor decided, during the summer of 1937, to establish an eastern office in New York city, the general manager not only made young Turner a member of the same staff but elevated him to the position of editor.

The method of publication of this journal is that the publisher in Los Angeles selects a copy for each issue and sends this to each branch office by air mail or teletype. The managing editors of local offices check carefully for "boners." It is the responsibility of local managing editors, after reading proofs, to plan the make-up. The journal is published in East Stroudsburg, Pa., from which point it is distributed throughout North and South America, Canada, England and Australia.

Commenting on the technical publication field as a possibility, young Turner said, "There are unlimited possibilities for the negro worker in radio, but each individual must make his own way. I have tried several times to place colored men in jobs which I have left for one reason or another, but each time I have found it was impossible, not because of any race consideration, but because the colored applicants just couldn't toe the mark. The radio is like most other fields of employment in the United States—a colored man must be twice as good as a white applicant or he is not even considered."

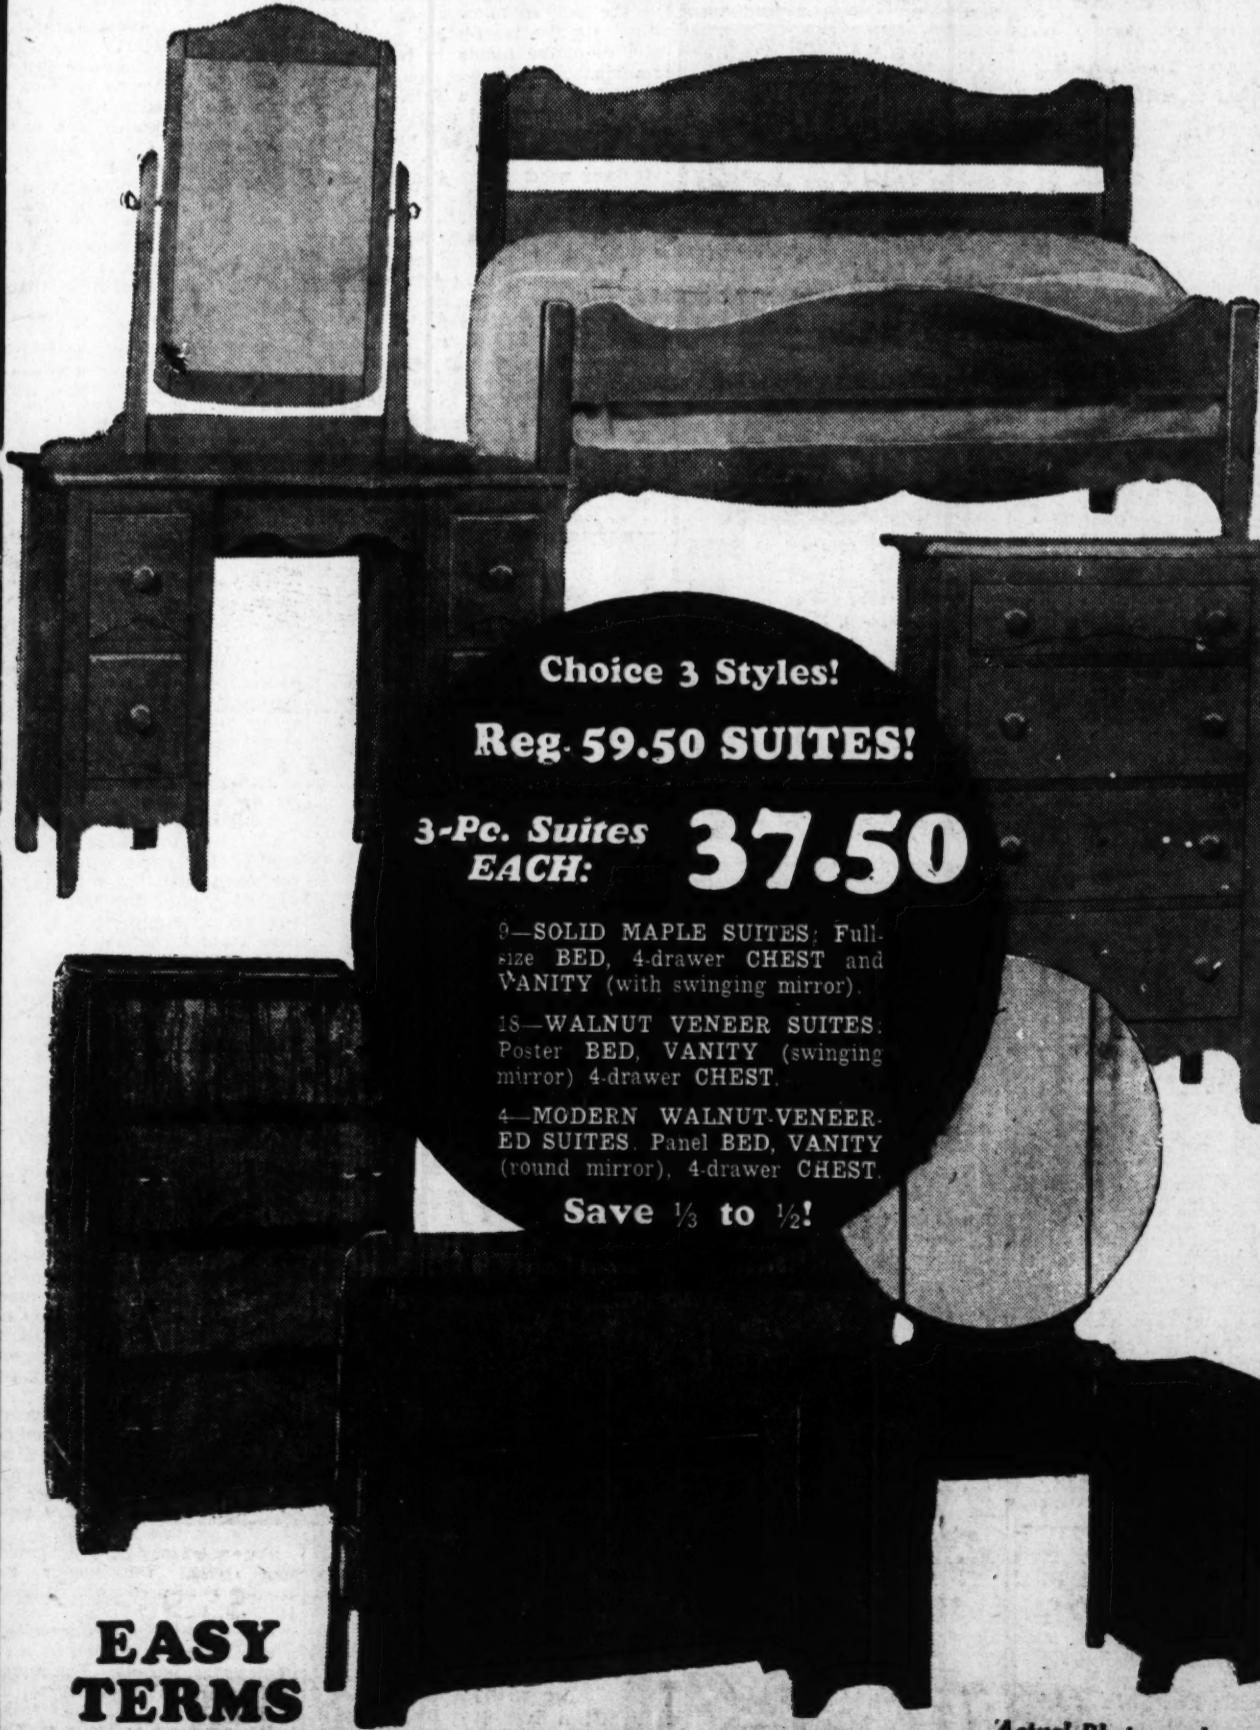

Two ice-boxes to keep milk from freezing were carried to the Antarctic by Admiral Byrd.

Annual Christmas Party Is Planned At State W.C.T.U. Headquarters

By Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Atlanta, State W.C.T.U. Editor

"The earth has grown old with its burden of care, but at Christmas it is young, so we love to give parties and to go to parties. Parties where there is music and mirth and comradeship, and where we have a chance to give 'white gifts to the King,' white because they are unselfish, the outpouring of hearts that have learned the beautiful truth that it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Druid Hills Union, as has been its custom for years, is giving such a party at State W. C. T. U. headquarters, 1436 North Highland avenue, December 14, from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock. The beloved state president, Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, glorifies it with her queenly presence and makes guests welcome. There will be a lovely tree which each comer will help decorate. The love offerings for the temperance cause in their gay bags or wrappings, we hope, will bend the branches low before the afternoon is over.

Mrs. E. A. Cawthon, president of Druid Hills Union, will preside and the following interesting program has been arranged: "A Message on Peace" Mrs. M. E. Tilley, state Women's Missionary Society; "North Georgia Conference," A temperance reading by Miss Louise Hutchinson, bronze medalist from the medal contest department. Mrs. E. A. Cawthon will tell a Christmas story, and music on strung instruments will be furnished by four sisters, Misses Frances, Antoinette, Kathryn and Verdery Roberts. Christmas carols will be led by Mrs. George Sims as the love gifts are being tied on the tree. Refreshments will be served at the end of the program. Each member of the union is urged to attend and all friends of the temperance cause are invited.

The new president of the second district, W. C. T. U., Mrs. A. J. Aspinwall, of Albany, sends an account of her district meeting held recently in Pelham. It was held in the First Methodist church and Mrs. J. N. Nesmith, president of the local union, opened the meeting. Dr. Bradwell of the Presbyterian church, gave the opening devotional, and said that "we won prohibition because God was with us. We lost it because of a backslidden condition. Our prayer should be: 'Lord take me and use me; make me thine helper!'" Mrs. Nesmith extended a welcome expressing the happiness of the local union at the coming of such guests. A beautiful duet was rendered by Mesdames Kelly and Adams of Pelham.

Mrs. Aspinwall was welcomed as the new leader of the district, and her timely message was enthusiastically received. She declared it was a joy to serve with and for such women as compose the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Robert Travulite, state recording secretary, gave a most interesting report of the state convention.

The marriage of this young couple united two of north Georgia's most prominent families. The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Harvey; her brothers are R. C. Harvey Jr. and George Harvey, and her sister is little Miss Ruth Harvey. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vasco Franklin, of Turnerville; his only sister is Mrs. Z. L. Burrell, of Tallulah Falls, and his brothers are W. P. Franklin, of Turnerville; H. N. Franklin and Basil Franklin, of Atlanta.

Recent column in the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer includes this item: "We understand that Mrs. Albert Hill, top girl of the women of the state, was a walking flower shop when she gave that swell talk at the Students' Club. No less than six corsages were pinned on Mrs. Hill's lovely ensemble that dripped astrakhan fur as she addressed the admiring ladies." The appropriate gift presented Mrs. Hill by the club president, Mrs. George Burrus, was a box made of wood in the shape of a book, the title, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by A. Maple Tree, and contained maple confectons.

Georgia club leaders are in demand over the state. Mrs. Albert Hill, state president, spoke at December meeting of Reynolds Woman's Club, and Mrs. A. B. Conger, past president, was guest of Cairo Woman's Club. Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, general federation recording secretary, was guest speaker at the Waycross ladies' night session of Ware County Medical Association, using the woman's field army for control of cancer as her subject.

Plans for the mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Washington, January 18-20, are being arranged. This voting board consists of the members of the executive committee, board of trustees, the nine department chairmen, one director from each state, and the extension secretary for international clubs. The whole group totaling nearly 100. Chairmen of divisions and committees and state presidents attend the meeting as conference members.

Mrs. Robert Church, popular reviewer of newest books, presented "Rebecca," by Daphne du Maurier, at a recent meeting of Decatur Woman's Club. This was under the auspices of the finance committee, of which Mrs. Clay Penick is chairman. Mrs. Penick has arranged a series of these reviews.

Following a panel discussion on "Propaganda and Motion Picture," conducted recently at the Atlanta Civic Club of West End, by the president of Emory Forum Leadership Group, Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth, and participated by members of the Emory class of 1938, the president of the Better Films Committee asked that the panel be repeated before her group at the next meeting. On January 4, the Emory group will conduct a panel discussion at Garden Hills Woman's Club, by invitation of the president, Mrs. R. H. Johns.

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, suggests as the ideal Christmas gift for clubwomen everywhere "The Georgia Clubwoman's Souvenir Collection of Prized Recipes." This book contains the favorite recipe of the White House family, of officials of both general and state federations and other well-known clubwomen; it suggests many new uses for Georgia products; reproduces many old southern and colonial "receipts"; gives elaborate tables of weights, measures, calories, temperatures, etc.; is printed on special water and grease resistant stock, and bound in washable cover. Proceeds from sales will go to G. F. C. foundation fund.

Club friends throughout the state are in deep sympathy with Mrs. Richard Addison, popular president of Toccoa Woman's Club and legislation chairman of the ninth district, in the tragic death of her sister, Mrs. Grace McCurry Killingsworth, following an automobile accident. Mrs. Killingsworth, formerly of Atlanta, was en route to her home in Charlotte.

J. T. Pittman, brilliant young concert pianist of Atlanta, will appear in a recital given by Canton Woman's Club on December 12 at the clubhouse. This concert in Canton is being promoted by the fine arts department of the club, and will be an outstanding social and cultural event.

Mr. Pittman has been selected by the State Federation of Music Clubs to represent Georgia in the national piano contest in Boston next year, and he is now on a tour through Georgia where he is being enthusiastically received.

Georgia Federation President Discusses Woman Power

The tremendous power of united womanhood was discussed by Mrs. Albert M. Hill, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, before members of the Columbus Students' Club and their guests at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. John Illeges at Plumfield. Mrs. Hill is an eloquent speaker and when she spoke of women's power today, she reminded her hearers that this power was responsibility, and that on the shoulders of the federated women rested in a large part the destiny of the world.

Mrs. Hill cited the various reforms that have been accomplished by federated women. She spoke of the duties of citizenship and emphasized women's responsibility as citizens. Mrs. Hill was presented with a club president's gift.

Representing other clubs were Mrs. J. M. Murray, president of the City Federation; Mrs. T. Charlton Hudson, president, Reading Club; Mrs. Alexander Patch, Infantry School Woman's Club; Mrs. Irving Rothschild, Jewish Ladies' Aid; Mrs. Rex Lavender, Wynnton Study Club; Mrs. J. T. Fletcher, Good Will Industries; Miss Miriam Denson, Business Women's Club; Miss Lollie Kate George, Pilot Club; Mrs. Firth Latimer Watson, Mesdames Maxine Garrard and Clifford Swift.

Public Safety Stressed In Strong Message By State Chairman

By Mrs. Henry M. Bird, of Bowdon, State Chairman of Safety.

With the Christmas holidays before us there comes the problem and anxiety of getting the family together in safety.

Thousands of excited young people turn their faces homeward. Too often risks are taken and joy is turned to sorrow by accidents that are avoidable.

Your chairman wishes sincerely that she could relay to you the earnest plea made by Paul Hoffman, chairman of National Safety Council, when he urged directors of safety to do definite service where accidents can be expected because of the holiday drinking menace. He suggested we contact the chief of police and have him place uniformed officers at "hot spots" on Christmas and New Year's eve, to prevent intoxicating persons taking the wheel. Do this in your city and let me know the result.

We are grateful for your cooperation which has enabled us to reduce highway accidents 21 per cent during the past year.

Garden Suggestions Are Presented By State Chairman of Committees

By MRS. J. M. SIMMONS, of Bainbridge, State Chairman of Gardening.

There is a universal appeal in gardening and the garden group in each club has a great opportunity to serve all types of homes, communities and the state. Let us share our successful garden experiences and plants with those who have been uninterested or unable to properly landscape their homes.

Mrs. T. M. Francis, of Birmingham, Ala., general federation chairman, gives five garden objectives: 1. Garden-interest-group in every club. 2. Well planned garden for every home. 3. Junior Garden Clubs. 4. Exemplary public gardens. 5. Every club sponsoring community observance of National Garden Week, the third week in April. Sources of material necessary for vital programs and projects are: Garden books and magazines, libraries, G. F. W. C. headquarters, government bulletins from congress members, state and United States Departments of Agriculture, extension courses of universities, forestry and conservation departments, headquarters for Garden Club and horticultural organizations.

We have a garden play, "Pa's Seed Flats," available from state or General Federation headquarters. Secure available speakers on landscaping, gardening and beautification projects. Sponsor pilgrimages to your own and to gardens that are near, as well as to famous gardens throughout the state.

It is time to think of Christmas

Press and Publicity Chairman Offers Suggestions for Programs

By MRS. HARVIE JORDAN, Of Atlanta, Chairman of Press and Publicity Department.

Newly chosen chairmen, who have taken office in General Federation of Women's Clubs include three appointments for press and publicity, which complete that department. Mrs. John H. Jepson, of Minneapolis, Minn., is chairman of the division of state publications. Mrs. Walter C. Taylor, of LaMoure, N. D., is chairman of "Newspapers and Other Media," and Mrs. Frederick W. Weitz, of Des Moines, Iowa, heads "Training in Journalism."

In a message to clubwomen, general chairman of the department, Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "Choosing for our theme for the next three years the simple but inspiring statement, 'Effective publicity promotes human welfare,' we are organizing our departmental forces for a program of work that will stress the value of publicity for all worth while club activities and encourage the attainment of adequate training by every press and publicity chairman. A press chairman needs to know the fundamental principles of journalism and how to practice them in order to write good publicity."

"It is not necessary that she shall have taken a regular college course in journalism. Her work does not require such extensive decorations. An interesting project for garden chairmen to consider is having some one offer her home for demonstrating a "Christmas Home Beautiful." Light adds such a charm to the decorative scheme at this season. These in various hues may be used in simple or elaborate arrangement. There is an infinite variety of beauty found in broad leaf evergreens and berry-bearing shrubs. These may be used naturally, silvery, gilded or dipped in paint to give the desired color. The nandina is lovely at this season with its bright red berries.

See what attractive wreaths may be made at home from your own shrubs, cuttings of various cedars, junipers, broad leaf evergreens, red haws and pyracanthas. Use living Christmas trees for indoors and plant later. Give the birds a happy Christmas. They are worth attracting to our gardens, not only for their songs and plumage, but because they destroy many harmful insects. We soon would have no gardens if it were not for our friends, the birds. Set up a feeding station this week for them and keep it supplied throughout the rest of the winter. See that it is placed safely out of the cat's reach.

A happy holiday season to each clubwoman! And the wish that all your dreams occasioned by reading the plant and seed catalogs may be realized. Let us continue to have faith through the "dready winter," and we shall have a part in enriching and making beautiful the gardens of tomorrow.

training. A newly appointed chairman is enthusiastically in earnest and willing to devote a little time to study and practice can soon acquire sufficient rudimentary knowledge to get started. Further improvement will come with continued study and practice."

Newspaper publicity is given these rules: Play fair with the newspapers. Work with them on a basis of mutual understanding and help. Urge club members to study the papers and read them intelligently. Cultivate the friendship of editors and reporters. Adopt a regular system of releasing news. Seek opportunities for feature stories, photographs, etc. Work out an effective method of publicizing conventions and special events.

for her Christmas

Schiaparelli's surrealistic pin . . . a gold horse on purple lips. An antique-looking bracelet inspired by the stained glass windows of a monastery. Gold, tortoise-shell, or enamel compact watches over a tiny clock.

Babushka? Aye . . . but gone glamorous for evening. Entrancing frame for her face . . . firm protector for her curls. Black velvet outlined by regal white fur. Other models in black velvet sprinkled with blazing sequins.

Once again we're approaching the grandest day of all . . . the day of giving, of remembering loved ones, of spreading cheer to those less fortunate. It's the day filled with the pungent scent of pine from countless Christmas trees, with the spicy breath of the burning plum pudding, and the delicious odor of good things that is wafted from the kitchen. A day brimful of children's shrill cries of glee . . . of the sweet melody of old carols . . . of the tearing of Christmas paper from gay packages.

It's a day to be glad for . . . wherein we should pause, and remember the heart-warming . . . "Peace on Earth—Good Will to Man."

No more rings on her favorite tables, and the piano won't look battle-scarred with these cork bibs and mats for perspiring glasses. Cork monograms on either green, blue, or rust backgrounds add the personal touch. Two weeks delivery.

Pussy-paws . . . and an intriguing cap of warm, fluffy angora. A gift designed to keep her hands and head as warm as her heart. The elf-like cap, and cuddly mittens sketched are white, but you may get the cap and angora gloves in succulent shades.

What's a shower or so with a rain-repellent shirt between her and the elements? Man-tailored, of rubberized silk, it folds up and zips into a self-made bag . . . easily carried with one's golf clubs.

Call your Constitution Fashion Editor, WA. 6565, for information about the merchandise on this page, and the Atlanta stores where you may obtain it.

Of course she likes nice gloves. These are monarchs of Glovedom. Supple black suede . . . laced with gold kid, or spiced with lovely petit-point embroidery. The suede belt is a find . . . nips in a waist, and transforms a dress. Comes in glowing colors.

Prominent Atlanta Artists Selected by Preview Jury To Exhibit Works To Be Judged for World's Fair

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA continually bask in the reflected glory of her gifted sons and daughters. The latest to shed honor upon their native heath are a duo of prominent sculptors, Mrs. Edward T. Donnelly and Julian Harris, who were recently chosen by the Southern Preview Jury of the New York World's Fair to exhibit their art studies in a showing to be held in the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond. Each artist is permitted to send only two subjects, and at the Richmond showing they will be judged by a group of noted American artists for the art exhibit at the World's Fair next year. The Atlantans will compete with artists from Athens, Augusta and Savannah, as well as those from the other southeastern states who have been selected to exhibit at the Virginia museum.

Mrs. Donnelly's first selection is her well-known study of Albert, the blind negro beggar who frequents the Tenth street shopping center and is a familiar figure to Atlantans of the north side. She first became interested in the sad, rugged face of the beggar during her shopping expeditions there and asked him to pose for her. The result is a splendid photographic study of the negro's head in terra cotta, which has received high praise from art critics and which the preview jury chose as characteristic of the south.

Mrs. Donnelly's second selection is a symbolic study in stone of the greatest of all English bloodhounds, Leo. The great dog was exhibited in London two years ago while the Atlanta matron was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Wright, in England, and it was there she executed the stone figure.

Mr. Harris will send two of his best-known works of art. A typically southern study is his head of a negro which has been on exhibit at the High Museum of Art, bringing great credit to the young Atlanta artist. His other selection is a plaster of paris panel, displaying water carriers attendants in the marriage are Georgiana Solar, of New Orleans, and Elizabeth Marston, of Germantown, Pa. According to Hilda, the wedding will be a "Newcomer reunion," for the bride-elect and her attendants will be together for the first time in three years.

IN OTHER columns of today's paper is the announcement of the engagement of Margaret McCoy, of New Orleans and St. Simons Island, to Charles F. MacDonald Jr., of New York and Norton, Va. When this young couple marry on next Saturday at the historic little Christ church at Fredericksburg on St. Simons Island, among the attendants will be Hilda Brown, of Atlanta.

The foregoing announcement is of particular interest for two reasons. First, because Hilda's mother, Mrs. Dowdell Brown, the former Hilda Blount, and Margaret's mother, Mrs. Edwin A. McCoy, the former Catherine Gadsden, of Charleston, S. C., have been close friends since girlhood.

A second reason is that Hilda and the bride-elect have been friends since little girlhood, as well as being devoted classmates at Sophie Newcomb College, where both took outstanding parts in campus activities.

Hilda leaves here by motor on Thursday for St. Simons and she will be accompanied by Clara Williams, of Houston, Texas, who will also be a bridesmaid. Clara attended Newcomb, too, and was a classmate of Margaret and Hilda. Two other classmates in this friendship circle who will be Woods—Worthy.

THE announcement made today of the engagement of Sue Hippie to Eugene Boyd is not a surprise, for rumor has connected the names of the betrothed pair for some time. Close friends of the engaged couple were let in on the secret when the bride-elect allowed them to see her exquisite engagement ring.

The beautiful solitaire adorning Sue's finger is the same stone that Gene's mother, the late Mrs.

Miss Tillman Weds
James B. Brown
At Christian Church

Of interest was the wedding of Miss Dorothy Dean Tillman, formerly of Monroe, and James B. Brown, which was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Peachtree Christian church.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns, white chrysanthemums and calla lilies. Two seven-branch cathedral candleabra holding tall white tapers were arranged amid the greenery. Preceding the ceremony a musical program was presented by Mrs. Victor Clark. The Rev. Robert Burns, pastor of the Peachtree Christian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends.

Carl A. Herbig was groomsman and the ushers were Charles Brown and William Branch.

Miss Garland Tillman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and was becomingly gowned in blue maline fashioned princess lines with short puffed sleeves and long, full skirt. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Harry Brown Jr., the matron of honor, and Miss Callie Litchenwalter, the bridesmaid, wore gowns fashioned similar to the one worn by Miss Tillman, the former being in yellow and the latter in pink. Their flowers were shower bouquets of pink roses.

Entering with her father, Julian E. Tillman, of Monroe, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and Harry Brown Jr., who was best man. She was a charming figure in her wedding gown of white satin, fashioned along princess lines, with the skirt widening to form a long train. Her veil was caught to her hair by clusters of orange blossoms and fell in graceful folds over the train. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Julian E. Tillman of Monroe, the bride's mother, was gowned in a teal blue crepe with matching accessories. Her flowers were deep purple orchids. Mrs. W. H. Brown Sr., the groom's mother, was gowned in black lace and her accessories were black. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip and upon their return will reside at 1125 Briarcliff Place, N.E. The bride traveled in a model of boy blue suit trimmed in silver fox with wine accessories. Her flowers were bronze orchids.

Frederick A. Booth Jr.

The marriage of Miss Martha Beatrice Bacchus to Frederick Alerton Booth Jr. was solemnized yesterday at 4 o'clock in the chapel of St. Luke's Episcopal church, with the Rev. John Moore Walker officiating.

The altar was banked with baskets of calla lilies and white chrysanthemums, with seven-branched candleabra containing burning white tapers completing the decorations.

Miss Dorothy Kimbrell was maid of honor and only attendant. She was gowned in black velvet with matching accessories and her shoulder bouquet was of Joanne Hill roses and valley lilies.

The bride entered with her brother, James Bacchus, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a boy blue suit with a white satin blouse. A matching blue hat trimmed with Dubonnet completed her costume. Her bridal bouquet was of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

H. Carson Hughes was the groom's best man.

"KA-CHOOS" FROM HAY FEVER ARE ON THEIR WAY OUT

"Hay fever," Betty Aycock, comely little Emory University senior, at lower right, will explain between "ka-choos." "Gosh, why doesn't somebody do something. This sneezing might even get contagious."

In an insect-proof cabinet, Dr. Baker keeps a pressed bloom of each plant so that there will never be any mistake in identifying from which plant the pollen comes. Miss Emily Shealy, at right, is shown looking at one of the herbarium sheets on which complete information on each plant is kept. Here can be found, when the work is completed, a color photograph of each plant, a pressed bloom, specimen leaves and a seed sample of each. Keeping these records is another step in the fight to provide relief for hay fever sufferers.

By LEE ROGERS.

Hay fever epidemics are on the way out of Georgia.

They won't leave tomorrow or the next day, but relief is on the way for those Georgians who dread the fall and spring-time for the "ka-choos" they bring.

The Emory University biology department has begun a herbarium which scientists and department of health officials say will aid in the isolation and elimination of plants and herbs causing the dreaded hay fever.

The herbarium is a collection of specimens of vegetation found in Georgia. In it, when completed, will be found flowers, seed, colored photographs, pollen and leaves from every native plant.

In the plants, flowers and other vegetation springing from Georgia's fertile soil is a pollen which brings almost unbearable discomfort to many a native son and daughter with sensitive nostrils.

But when the Emory herbarium is completed, scientists and medical men, working together, will be able to eliminate the irritating substance in the air that makes pretty girls distort their lovely facial features with unbecoming sneezes which come automatically when they catch a whiff of some plant pollen that might be floating around unseen.

Dr. Woolford B. Baker, professor of biology at Emory, has the only herbarium in the state. His collection contains 4,000 pollen specimens and plants found in Georgia.

His goal is a complete file and record on every plant growing in Georgia.

And once completed, his herbarium will be just as useful to sportsmen and game officials as to doctors and hay fever patients.

Men who are trying to re-stock the region with wild life have run into a grave and difficult problem. What kind of seed do the birds feed on? What kind of plants? What herbs do fish need?

With the herbarium reference, seed-food can be taken from the internal organs of birds and matched with those specimens in the files to determine what kind of herbs to plant.

"With the information on file, then when an epidemic of hay fever breaks out, research workers can obtain pollen from the air in the stricken community, check it with the pollen in the files, and thus determine what plant is causing hay fever in this locality," Dr. Baker pointed out.

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, Director of the State Department of Health, is co-operating with the biology department in forming the herbarium.

"Of course they haven't gone far enough yet for the files to be of great use to us, but when all the flowers, herbs and pollen samples are collected, then we will have something positive with which to check and from which we can determine causes and seek to eliminate them," the state officer said.

Thousands suffer from hay fever in Georgia. It is worse in many other states. Usually the victims have no idea what is causing their pain. True, they know they have hay fever, but they don't know what is giving it to them. That is the purpose of the hay fever bureau.

The scientists at Emory are primarily interested in forming a complete herbarium of Georgia. At this point the hay fever angle is just another angle to them, which must be looked after later.

"We'll have the basis but it'll be up to the medical doctors to use it, to help hay fever sufferers," Dr. Baker said.

Physicians can often determine what plant is causing the hay fever for a certain suffering and sometimes a pollen solution can be made that will counteract effects. But it is more or less a hit-and-miss proposition without a detailed and complete record which can be used as a check in ascertaining from which plant the specimen pollen, found in the air, comes.

Once it was thought hay fever was caused only by hay, and that it was suffered only in the spring and fall of the year.

Today physicians know that hay fever may be caused by any number of plants, and even such things as feathers and hair. It may be developed during any season of the year.

Medical advice to "ka-chooers" long has been to go to the seashore. But this is not always a sure remedy and then, many are unable to leave home because of business or financial reasons.

Therefore, something must be done to eliminate the cause, so far as possible.

Once it is determined what plant is causing a hay fever epidemic, that plant can be destroyed in the community affected, it was explained.

"That is where the hay fever laboratory will be useful to health officers and physicians," Dr. Baker pointed out. "Once the pollen specimen is checked with the positive records in the herbarium, we will know what is causing the epidemic, and work can begin. Without a complete herbarium there can be no check."

Dr. Baker doesn't like for people to make so much over his herbarium as a "cure for hay fever."

"It's not ready for publicity yet," he declares. "We've been working since 1929 to collect specimens and all we have is 4,000. The herbarium is useless in fighting hay fever until it is completed."

But the doctor gladly explains his experiments. He pulls his microscope out to show visitors slides on which the tiny dust particles which go to make up the pollen have been placed for file and laboratory purposes.

"The hay fever bureau is really a by-product of the herbarium," Dr. Baker declared. "Primary purpose of the collection is to have a file of all native plant specimens, complete with seeds, pressed blooms, leaves and color photographs. We hope to have living specimens of as many plants as can be grown on the campus. Holly planting already is under way."

Don Eyles is aiding Dr. Baker in collecting his plants. This week he was in south Georgia seeking new specimens.

"Our greatest handicap, besides lack of money, is the lack of trained field men to get the specimens," Dr. Baker said.

Once it was thought hay fever was caused only

"Not all plants cause hay fever, and these we must eliminate. We must have the complete life cycle of plants found in Georgia. We have a complete file on all plants found on Stone Mountain, many of which are found nowhere else."

One of the latter is the amphithous pusillus which grows in water-filled crevices in the granite, and which blooms in the spring. Most of the work in the Stone Mountain collection is being done by Misses Mary Stripe and Dorothy Lunsford, graduate students. The minor detail work is being done by N. Y. A. students. Dr. Baker hopes to complete the herbarium within the next three years.

Dr. Baker explains the steps in forming the herbarium, the only one in Georgia. First, the plant specimens must be collected, then color photographs must be made, and finally the pollen grains collected.

In his office he has several hundred slides. When these are placed under the microscope, one can easily determine the characteristics of the plant pollen that will make it impossible to confuse it with that of another. This is the master slide file.

In the laboratory is an insect-proof cabinet. In this, carefully wrapped in newspapers, are leaves and plants collected since 1929 in various parts of the state. On these chart files, eventually will be put the life history of the plant, its pollen characteristics and a color photograph of the plant itself.

Moving next door to an adjoining laboratory, one sees assistants hard at work making slides for the master file from pollen specimens already collected and assorted.

Begun as an adjunct to the teaching of biology and related courses, the herbarium already includes more than 4,000 different plants. Dr. Baker hopes to supplement it eventually with living specimens of as many plants as possible on Emory's 560-acre campus in the Druid Hills area of Atlanta. Impetus to this was given recently by the numerous private donations of hundreds of trees and shrubs for transplanting.

One project already under way is the planting of every species of holly tree which will grow in the Atlanta region, an endowed undertaking made possible by J. Edgar Stewart, of Louisville, Ky.

The seed collection will provide another use for the herbarium. That of providing another angle of attack on southern crop pests, Dr. Baker said.

"Through such a seed collection, we hope to cooperate with federal and state departments of agriculture, and also with individual farmers in the eradication of crop pests," he explained.

"By opening the bodies of suspected crop-destroying birds and animals, we can find the seeds contained in their internal organs and compare them with our collection, and thus establish which pests attack which plants.

This work goes on day after day. It's tedious. It's slow.

It's even slower to hay fever sufferers who have the herbarium will provide the means of isolating the pollen that gives them the dread hay fever.

Physicians await the completion of the collection almost as eagerly. For, once completed research men can be put into the afflicted areas and maybe, as in other states, something can be done in Georgia to eliminate the possibility of prolonged hay fever epidemics.

But with the scientists who steer themselves out of discussions as to how it will aid the war on hay fever, the herbarium is "of scientific interest, not economic," Dr. Baker said.

You can't put the handkerchiefs away, but relief for hay fever sufferers is definitely on the way.

Old McDonald Has A Farm—Really!

By LARSTON FARRAR.

Old McDonald really has a farm, right here in Georgia—E-I, E-I, O-o-o-o. It's located about one-half mile from Lithonia on the Covington highway and Old McDonald is not one bit ashamed of his land or house.

He has placed a sign out in front of his house, which faces the highway, and on the sign thousands of motorists read: "Old McDonald's Farm, E-I, E-I, O."

The owner of this farm is none other than Alonzo Lowry McDonald, 33, who happens to be an insurance agent and broker, with offices in Atlanta. However, he doesn't forget his farm while he's puzzling out insurance claims, or policies, and he's likely one of the proudest farmers in Georgia.

On his farm he has some chickens, E-I, E-I, O. He has a cluck, cluck here and a cluck, cluck there, with an occasional pan of fried chicken that makes him want to sing the song after which he named his farm.

And, of course, on his farm he has a cow, with a moo, moo here and a moo, moo there. Plus a mare, some dogs and a turkey, with a gobble, gobble here and a gobble, gobble there, E-I E-I, O.

Mr. McDonald, who is the son of Charles H. McDonald, Lithonia furniture dealer since 1899,

WANTED

An active, intelligent white boy, fourteen or fifteen years of age, is wanted at this office, to learn the printing business.

From so simple an advertisement as this one which appeared in the Georgia plantation periodical, The Countryman, 1862, was a freckle-faced lad launched upon a career that was to bring him international renown as a great creative and interpretive writer. The boy was Joel Chandler Harris, and had he lived until today he would have been honored Friday, his birthday, by his world audience.

The newspaper in which the ad appeared was owned and published by J. A. Turner, lawyer, journalist, and planter, at Turnwold plantation where young Harris was to grow up as a writer. In the quiet of plantation life, and close to nature, the boy learned his trade. In the meantime, he was reading in Turner's vast library and fraternizing with the plantation darkies.

Four years, Joel Chandler Harris spent, under the tutelage of Turner, four years of rigid instruction and careful writing. No university could probably have offered better training for a young author than the kindly, paternal teaching of J. A. Turner, who was himself a writer of some note.

Turner published his paper in the interest of southern culture, claiming that his paper had too few literary journals and was too little interested in literary topics. He published for 2,000 readers, and wrote many of them himself, essays, agricultural articles, sketches, and poems. On the side, he was a printer-planter, and he was a lawyer like the versatile southerner of ante-bellum days.

When he was free from his editorial duties, young Harris sought the company of the plantation negroes, and from them he learned what few "white folks" had ever heard—the primitive stories of the negro's imagination. The experience later enabled Harris to converse freely with negroes for material for his stories, while other southern writers found in the same individuals a cold silence.

One of the old plantation darkies, Uncle George Terrell, was said to have been the original Uncle Remus, but Harris always claimed his famous character was a blend of many personalities. The little boy to whom many of the tales were addressed is known to be little Joe Syd. Turner. A scrapbook of the old negro legends, kept through the years, gave Harris easy access to the old tales many years later.

During the plantation period in his life the young author wrote on widely different subjects, death, war, nature, and anything that happened to come into his mind. Life on the plantation was happy until the war left Turnwold, in Sherman's very path, little more than a piece of land. The Countryman was abandoned, and it was necessary for the printer's helper to find a new home.

With his trade, Joel Harris got a job as printer's devil on The Macon Telegraph. While working there, he wrote some articles for the New Orleans paper—The Crescent Monthly. The editor of that paper offered him a position as private secretary. Harris took the job, and filled in his time by contributing articles to the New Orleans daily news-papers.

Soon Harris, now a journalist, was back in Georgia and working at Forsyth as paragrapher on The Monroe Advertiser. From that paper he gained a considerable promotion to the associate editorship of The Savannah Morning News in 1870. In The News office at that time Frank L. Stanton, later poet-laureate of Georgia, was office boy. Editing the paper was its founder, William Tappan Thompson.

It was while on The News staff that Harris met Miss Esther LaRose who, with her family, had come south to Savannah for the winter. Shy always, Joel Chandler Harris has been described as the most timid wooper Savannah has ever known.

The only way he dared to communicate with his sweetheart was through poetry, in which he could speak more directly.

Miss LaRose finally succumbed before the poetical onslaught and married the author of the inspired lines in April of 1873. Their happy Savannah life was short-lived, brought to an end when the whole city was threatened with yellow fever. The Harris household went to Atlanta where they were duly registered at a hotel: "J. C. Harris, one wife, two bow-legged children, and one bilious nurse."

Invited by Major Evan P. Howell to join the staff of The Constitution, Harris accepted and began a column called "Round About in Georgia." He also contributed witty paragraphs to the editorial page and wrote book reviews and stories. He then brought his mother to Atlanta to live with his family for the rest of her days.

The Constitution staff was made up of widely known men, and Harris added to its array of talent. One of the writers moved on to another paper and carried his column with him, and thus Harris went into his political comment column, first called "Old Sl." The column soon was signed "Remus" and later the sayings were changed to appear over the signature of "Uncle Remus."

The story of Uncle Remus and his success is well known. A great publishing house sent down a representative to collect the newspaper stories for a book, and the tales of Uncle Remus were translated into every tongue on earth. Queen Victoria is said to have imported a Georgia darky to England to read Uncle Remus. Men in public life, and writers such as Mark Twain and George W. Cable, praised the Georgian.

Theodore Roosevelt added to the acclaim by saying that the state of Georgia did no greater thing than to give Harris to American literature, at the same time calling him "the most modest writer in America." Andrew Carnegie wrote that he was not only "an admirer, but a loving friend.

Original Deed of Gen. Oglethorpe Now in University's Collection

By ROBERT BURKHARDT

Oglethorpe University, whose collection of historical letters, papers, portraits, and engravings of General James Edward Oglethorpe is recognized by experts to be the best on either side of the Atlantic, has just announced an addition to the collection in the form of a gift of an original signed Deed of Land of General Oglethorpe's, dated September 29th, 1748.

Presented to the university by Mr. and Mrs. E. Lewis Oglethorpe, collateral descendants of the general, the deed holds in its dusty and cracked parchment folds a story of historic import.

According to the musty writings on the document, a transfer of a tract of land is recorded between "Hon. James Oglethorpe of Godalming, in the County of Surrey, Lt. General of his Majesty's forces, of the first parte, and John Starke, Doctor of Divinity of Sarum, pastor of the Vicarage of Godalming, aforesaid, and Richard Younger Starke, Vicar of the Vicarage of Godalming, aforesaid, of the other parte."

But the date of the document, "The 29th day of September, 1748, Anno Domini," is the key to the story behind the parchment, according to Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, and a recognized authority on the general.

In 1748 General Oglethorpe was 59 years old. He had just finished a campaign in England against the Jacobites, which had followed close on the heels of a campaign in Georgia against the Spaniards who occupied most of what is now Florida, and who were trying to drive the newly settled Georgia colonists north. That the Spaniards were unsuccessful was due to the energy, financial aid, and military ability of General Oglethorpe.

General Oglethorpe had already returned home and rested up from several severe attacks of fever, contracted in the campaign of south Georgia, when he was ordered by the King to raise an army and prepare to defend the south coast of England against the invading Dutch and Jacobites. When this latest campaign had come to an end in 1747, the general was finally able to retire to his home in Godalming for a complete rest.

There, honored by his King and beloved of his fellow citizens, General Oglethorpe retired from military affairs to enter the quiet and less strenuous life of a member of parliament. In the meantime, shortly after his return from the Georgia campaign, the general had married.

After 50 years of celibacy, upon his return from a colonization project that had nearly bankrupted him, General James Edward Oglethorpe took in marriage the only daughter of the late Sir Nathan Wright, Baronet, and grand-niece of the Sir Nathan who was Lord Keeper of the Seal under Queen Anne.

The colonization of Georgia, with its ensuing war against the Spanish in the south, and the royal decree which had made the general raise a small army in defense of the crown, had combined to nearly impoverish him. Thus the general found when he began putting his affairs in order so that he could settle down in comfort, that he was rich in reputation, but poor in purse.

The general was able to keep his ancestral home at Godalming, but he was forced to sell most of the land around the estate of his childhood to pay off his insistent creditors. But shortly after this, the general, equal to any crisis, military or financial, married Lady Wright, who was worth an estimated $7,500 a year.

Thus this deed, which now rests in the collection at Oglethorpe University, played a most important role in the drama of General Oglethorpe's life. Just before the date of this deed the general, having spent his entire family fortune in the unselfish interest of his King and his Georgia colony, faced possible bankruptcy.

This, to General Oglethorpe in the prime of his life, would have meant complete ruin to his career. For he might have been sent to the infamous Fleet Street prison for non-payment of debts, were he not able to sell some land holdings.

At the time all that he had clear title to, and therefore was able to liquidate, was the manor and estates of Godalming, beloved place of his childhood.

So torn between the love of his ancestral home and the certain ruin of his career, it is recorded that General James Oglethorpe, in the year 1748, on the 29th day of September, did sell a portion of his estates to "John Starke, Doctor of Divinity of Sarum, Pastor of the Vicarage of Godalming, aforesaid, and Richard Younger Starke, Vicar of the Vicarage of Godalming, on the other parte."

That the sacrifice was justified, we know, for this was the darkest period in the general's financial life. Shortly after this he was elected to parliament, which gave him a small but steady income, and then married, which further helped his purse.

So today, this deed of drama has come to rest in the Oglethorpe collection, housed in the library of Lupton Hall, at the university which is the general's namesake. High on the wall in the collection is a painting of the general by an unknown artist. And it seems to those that know, that the old general has a reflective twinkle in his eyes as he looks ever down at the case containing the deed.

The present building of Central Presbyterian church shows at right, the addition to the main building, made necessary to take care of the many activities of the church.

"Uncle Lewis Hutchins stands beside a pile of wood which he, at the age of 103, has just finished cutting. In the background is a cotton field which the old negro has 'picked dry.'

of that rare soul." One biographer said Harris had made the Georgia cotton patch as romantic as the Roman arena.

With all this success and "fuss" of fame, Joel Chandler Harris merely smiled. He could never be induced to speak in public, and he forever avoided literature.

His hometown, Eatonton, Putnam county, has graciously monumented the writer's birthplace. He was born to the daughter of a prominent family of the Putnam county section, and the history books say he was a timid, ambitious dreamer. Possibly a timid man like his parents used to become, the husband of Mary Harris left her and their little son to shift for themselves. This they did, with the mother setting out to do the village sewing. At night she read to her son from his favorite book, The Vicar of Wakefield, and the boy set to "composing little tales of his own."

When he was quite a famous author, Harris wrote of himself in Eatonton: "his lot was cast with the most democratic people the world has ever seen, and in a section where, to this day, the ideals of character and conduct are held in higher esteem than wealth or ancient lineage." He held to this love for the good and simple, and for his own people, throughout his life, and when he died in 1908 his own words were fittingly inscribed on his tombstone in Westview cemetery:

"I seem to see before me the smiling faces of thousands of children—some young and fresh, and some wearing the friendly marks of age, but all children at heart—and not an unfriendly face among them. And out of the confusion and while I am trying hard to speak the right word, I seem to hear a voice lifted above the rest, saying: 'You have made some of us happy.' And so I feel my heart fluttering and my lips trembling, and I have to bow silently and turn away and hurry back in obscurity that fits me best."

The Central Presbyterian Church

By FRANK MARSH.

The Central Presbyterian church was constituted by the Flint River Presbytery February 11, 1858, as a result of a petition of 39 members of the Presbyterian faith. The church was formally organized February 14, 1858, and Drs. J. P. Logan and John R. Rhea were elected ruling elders, with George S. Thomas and William P. Robinson as deacons.

Until a church building could be erected, the young congregation worshiped in the City Hall which stood where the State Capitol now stands. During most of the year 1858, the pulpit was filled by Rev. John W. Baker as supply minister. On May 20, 1858, a lot was purchased at 201 Washington street, immediately opposite the capitol. The erection of a church building was commenced during the summer of that year and completed in February, 1860. It was first occupied by the congregation Sunday, March 4, 1860, on which occasion it was dedicated in the service of God. The Rev. J. C. Stiles, D. D., preached the dedicatory sermon.

The church building was of Colonial design, built of brick, with a tall spire. For that period it was, no doubt, a very fine church. The first settled clergymen to serve the young church was Rev. John L. Rogers who was pastor from 1859 through 1862. Even though the church was born just in advance of the troublous days of the War Between the States, and its central location subjected to gunfire during the bombardment of Atlanta, and later to the ravages of fire when Atlanta was burned, Providence laid a protecting hand on it and it came through with nothing more than minor physical injuries.

The congregation occupied the brick church until 1884, when it would no longer accommodate the members. A new structure was planned. The present building, of cream brick in modified Gothic design, was completed in 1884 and has been occupied since. Many additions have been made as the needs demanded. A Sunday school annex was added in 1906 at a cost of $30,000.00. In 1923 Mr. Bulow Campbell donated a lot for additional Sunday school classes as a memorial to his mother, and the family of the late John J. Egan gave the money for the building as a memorial to him, the whole having an approximate value of $150,000.00. The building was erected and is now being used. During the summer of this year the church spent $40,000.00 on renovations. Thus, the church has tremendous financial investment and with its roots so firmly planted, intends to remain where it is for many years to come.

Within the church is a memorial plaque to Robert Walker MacLaren, Edinburgh, Scotland, a friend of the church and a contributor to every undertaking. There are several art-glass memorial windows memorializing Louise Pope Young, Louisa Fuller Masseling, Matilda Fuller Zahn, Thomas F. Flynn, John Kuhn, Ferdinand Kuhn, Joseph N. Moody, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick K. Johnson and family, and George A. Moltz.

In addition to its regular church work, the Central Presbyterian has two outstanding features: Its missionary work and its baby clinic. During the pastorate of Rev. G. B. Strickler, D. D., 1883-1896, he organized the men of the congregation into the Young Men's Prayer Association, the function of which was, among other things, the organization of church missions. A number were formed, many of which have since become churches. Among these are: The Wallace Mission, now the Gordon Street church; the Georgia Avenue Mission, now the Georgia Avenue church; the Inman Park Mission, now the Inman Park church, and the Pryor Street Mission, now the Pryor Street church.

The baby clinic is the pride of the church. Organized in 1923, it is supported wholly by the church and it is open to any family in the county not able to pay for treatment for a sick baby. The clinic has a capacity of sixty, has one full-time trained nurse and a corps of volunteer nurses selected from the membership with a special view to use only those who are more than usually fond of babies. The finest baby specialists in the city contribute their service and several business firms contribute X-ray work and similar needs. The Eggleston Memorial hospital contributes hospitalization when needed. This is an institution of which the entire city and county may well be proud.

The present pastor of Central Presbyterian is Rev. St. John R. Oglesby, a man of superior attainments and rare personal charm who, with a twinkle in his eye, boasts that he doesn't have to run the church; that the membership is so loyal that they run it and all he has to do is preach a little.

ATLANTA'S "CANDY COP" SANTA CLAUS

By T. K. JONES.

Atlanta's blue-coated St. Nicholas is prepared for his most bountiful Christmas—one that will bring unexpected joy and happiness to more than 1,200 of the city's destitute men, women and children.

It's a staggering assignment, but Patrolman Jesse D. Stribling, of the Atlanta police department, having annually increased his Santa activities for 17 years, is determined this year to outdo his 1937 Yule benevolence, when toys, candies, cash and needed clothing and groceries were distributed to more than 1,000 persons in the city.

Affectionately known to many as "The Candy Cop," the officer, a distant cousin of the late W. L. (Young) Stribling, was inspired to his humanitarian role two decades ago by the death of his only son, two-year-old Hugh Verner Stribling. Soon after the child's death he gave up his job as a candy salesman to join the police department, but later it was selling candy—as an off-duty endeavor—that provided the financial nucleus for his first Christmas of widespread giving.

Stribling recalls that exactly 35 children, most of them orphans, received goodies and necessities from that first big bag of gifts. "And kids were not chosen from a list given me by somebody else," he says. "I walked through certain sections of the city for several days and talked to dozens of people before my charter roster was compiled.

"Every year thereafter I have personally gotten up the roster of those for whom presents were to be left, and each Christmas I always see to it that each child and grown-up receives just what I wanted him or her to have. I have never allowed anybody to assist me in delivering the gifts. That is, except one," he tells you smiling, "and that's my partner, 10-year-old Bernard Blackwell. He's been helping out on my beat, and also at Christmas, for the last five years."

"Is that right, officer?" Stribling asks a blue-eyed youngster dressed and equipped in regulation police mode, who has been an interested listener during the interview.

"It sure is, partner," the lad replies, as he gives the big officer a broad grin. "You know, I used to be on your list myself."

And indeed he was. Stribling explains: "Yes, Officer Blackwell and I first got together about six years ago, when I saw him one day on Formwalt street while getting up my Christmas list. He bore such a striking resemblance to my own son, who died, that I blew my whistle to gain his attention. Instead of having the expected effect, however, the blast caused him to break and run for dear life and I almost had to chase him down."

With that the patrolman and reporter notice that Bernard's usual happy confirmation of every detail is not forthcoming. His small sandy head is bowed and his cap bill covers his eyes.

Stribling looks at him for a minute and the reporter thinks he sees a couple of big tears in the Candy Cop's eyes as he waits a bit longer, then resumes the story in a husky, reassuring voice that causes his young partner to suddenly look up.

"You understand, he was too young then," Stribling says, "in fact, a mere mite of a lad. But now there's not a fellow on the force with more nerve."

With that, his diminutive partner's smile returns and with a more warming degree of spontaneity that proclaims a deep, lasting affection for the big officer.

Stribling continues: "We became fast friends at the start, and Bernard promptly announced that he wanted a blue uniform like mine. So, for Christmas, I had one especially made for him, complete with a badge, small nightstick, toy pistol, whistle and handcuffs. He had insisted on being completely equipped. Then he wanted to walk my beat with me each afternoon and even go to headquarters to answer roll call. And, well, he's been doing it pretty constantly since—that is, except during the school term. I let him come down only on Saturday then."

"The rest of the time," Stribling says with a wink, "he has to look out for the other folks at the Georgia Avenue school. How about it, officer?" he asks the youngster.

"Yes, sir, that's right," answers Bernard, and you can see he is very proud of his extra-curricular school assignments.

"But let's talk about Christmas," he suggests modestly.

And so talk changes to ways and means of "mass Santa Claus-ing."

The reporter learns that Stribling's most consistent candy buyers are his more than 425 fellow-officers at headquarters. Many of them, knowing how the money is to be used, not only buy their own home supply from him but serve as sub-agents as well, taking candy orders throughout the city.

Then, on his South Forsyth street beat every year, some willing merchant always provides Stribling with a small sum to keep his candy and accept orders. He has hundreds of regular customers, some of whom have been buying his candies annually since the philanthropic venture began.

For the officer, December is, naturally, the busiest month of all, but throughout the entire year he works in anticipation of the coming Yuletide. Several months ago, for instance, he chanced to find enough suitable scrap wood to make approximately 50 doll beds, and with the help of H. M. Van Davender, of The Constitution, it was speedily converted into the finished product. Tiny mattresses, pillows and bed linens were obtained for each bed, and thus, a chorus of happy Christmas "ahs" were assured in advance for 50 particular little Atlanta girls. But for the constabularie Kris Kringle, the day would be only the anniversary of memories . . . when dad was living . . . and mother was well . . . and St. Nick was a family visitor.

They're already deciding just where Santa will leave just what among Atlanta's needy. Note the bed at the lower left, on which dolly reposes happily. This is one of the 50 hand-made doll beds which will delight as many little girls Christmas morning.

Emory University Is Famed for Singers Instead of Halfbacks

By JAMES H. WILSON.

A good tenor is more valuable than a plunging fullback in the business of advertising a college.

Georgia Tech, of course, is famed all over the nation for the exploits of its Golden Tornado. The University of Alabama has been publicized from coast to coast by the gridiron magic of its Crimson Tide. But Emory University, the school without an intercollegiate football team, has won acclaim on two continents because of its world-famed Glee Club, which will give its annual Christmas Carol concert at Glenn Memorial auditorium at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The "South's Sweetest Singers," as members of the Emory Glee Club are termed by newspaper critics, have charmed audiences in Europe and in Cuba, as well as in almost every important city along the Atlantic seaboard from New York to Miami. No football team has traveled so extensively. This year the club, continuing its program, will leave the country for a tour to New Orleans. "The winter tour," states Manager Asaphis Ballard, of Monticello, Ga., "will take us to New Orleans, probably by way of Chattanooga, Birmingham, Montgomery, Jackson and Baton Rouge. We will return through southern Mississippi, south Alabama and north Florida."

Alabama, while South Carolina and Tennessee each furnish one singer. California, Delaware and New York all have a representative on the organization's roster.

Many boys admit that the determining factor in their decision to enter Emory was the thought of the Glee Club.

The colorful history of the Glee Club rivals the tradition and record of any football team. First organized in 1916 at old Emory College at Oxford, it really started on the road to fame in 1920, after the establishment of Emory University in Atlanta. That year Dr. Dewey became director of the struggling organization. Club members still refer to the club as being in its nineteenth year, A. D. (after Dewey).

Dewey lost no time in starting the club on its travels. During the second year of his direction, the Emory organization became the first college glee club to tour Cuba. In 1926 came the first European tour, at special request of Lord Balfour, Consul General. The second trans-Atlantic trip was in 1928. Beginning with a concert at New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the singers crossed the ocean and filled more than 100 engagements in Europe. London critics hailed them as the finest choral group ever to appear in the Coliseum, largest playhouse in the world. The singers were entertained by Lady Astor and other members of the English royalty during their visit across the waters.

Equally as enthusiastic as Dr. Dewey about this year's edition of the "South's Sweetest Singers" are Fritz McDuffie, of Atlanta, who is president of the club, and John Bumstead, of Decatur, a former president who now acts as assistant director.

"This is our fifth year at Emory," they said, "and the club is going to be better this year than at any other time since we have been connected with it."

The good accomplished by the club is evidenced by the fact that 19 of its 75 members are not from Georgia. Eleven are from Florida, which the club has toured eight times. Four hail from

In 1936 the club sang in Washington, and was offered a five-year contract, calling for an annual concert in the nation's capital. Preferring to carry Emory into new areas, the managerial staff rejected this offer. After touring the Florida peninsula in 1937, the club returned to Washington last winter, and sang to packed houses at the Shoreham hotel and the Capitol theater.

Last spring, they appeared before 4,000 Tennessee teachers in Nashville. Another European tour was planned for last summer, but had to be called off because of war scares. The club has been invited to make a tour of South America, according to Student Manager Ballard.

The organization has made records for several recording companies. It has been on the air many times over national radio networks, and has sung before two United States Presidents, Calvin Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt. The club's original negro spiritual arrangements have never been written, but are taught each year to new singers.

The color, excitement and thrills which surround a football game are matched by the equally interesting features of a glee club trip. Highlights of the tours are visits to such girls' schools as Randolph-Macon and Florida State College for Women. The concerts themselves, however, are often the scenes of unusual incidents.

The club almost committed a faux pas in 1933 when it sang at a Warm Springs reception for President Roosevelt. The first number on the program was supposed to be "I Got Shoes." A hasty change had to be made when it was noticed that Madame Secretary Perkins, who had just charged that "many southerners do not wear shoes," was in the audience.

One concert at the Atlanta theater ended, literally, in a blaze of glory. The concluding number was "The Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore," and the boy assigned the task of striking an anvil with a hammer, put so much energy into his performance that he created a shower of sparks, which set fire to the stage curtains. The blaze was quickly extinguished by Dr. Dewey.

The singers once appeared in London with their tour shirts turned inside out. The shirts were very soiled, the laundries were all closed, and so there was nothing else to do. Under the glare of the stage lights, the turned shirts looked very fresh and clean.

Afield With a Naturalist

FEEDING WINTER BIRDS

Now that cold weather is here, it is time to begin feeding the winter birds. Many of them will venture close to our homes when the season of want comes in the woods. They have a harder time finding things to eat in winter, even in our southern climate of Georgia, and the person who lends them a helping hand will get a lot of pleasure from watching them come to accept his hospitality.

Our winter birds may be divided into two classes: Those that stay with us all the year 'round, the "permanent residents," and those that come to our region to spend their time until the days begin to lengthen, and they are stirred by the mating impulse, to return to the northern United States and Canada, where they build their nests and raise their young. Georgia is their southern home, to which they come to escape the severe cold and scarcity of food of the northern winters.

The winter birds are a companionable lot. They may often be seen together in flocks made up of several different species. Bird study is easy in the winter time. The screen of leaves in which the summer birds hid is gone, and the birds are less wary, now that the duties and anxieties of raising their young are over.

If your home grounds are in the suburbs, and you are blessed with near-by trees and thickets, the birds will no doubt come to your premises often in their search for food. If they find provision there, they will return until it becomes a habit. Try scattering crumbs on the ground for them, or, better still, put up some form of feeding table.

This may be nothing more than a board with strips of wood tacked around the edges to keep the food from blowing off. There are many forms of feeding devices. Some of them are illustrated with this article. I have shown one feeding device with a roof over it, to shelter the food from ice or snow. This will make an excellent permanent feeding station. The birds may be encouraged to find it by scattering feed about on the ground near by.

Below this in the illustration is another feeder that is designed to protect the food from the elements, by using the principle of the weather vane. In the center of the illustration, at the top, is shown a wire suet basket for woodpeckers. Below that is another device for holding suet, with a roof to shelter it. Such suet baskets may be easily made or purchased, and make nice ornaments for the garden or lawn, when hung from the trees.

At the bottom of the center of the illustration is shown a double hopper for seeds. As the birds peck out the food in the trays, more replaces it from inside the hopper, which has a hinged roof for refilling.

"With Liberty and Justice for All"

"The Israel case is a notable illustration of the proper discharge of the prosecutor's duty."

—From the report of the Wickersham Commission on Lawlessness in Law Enforcement.

By PETER LEVINS.

A review of the Israel case will seem especially timely today to Americans who are proud of their country, and to all people who still remain free in this land. It illustrates, as the above quotation states, how a prosecution should be handled in a nation founded and maintained in a spirit of liberty and justice for all.

The state's attorney in this instance was Homer Cummings, veteran of the New York and Connecticut courts, who subsequently became attorney general of the United States. The case of the State vs. Harold Israel came up before Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, in the criminal superior court, Bridgeport, Conn., on May 27, 1924. The proceedings opened with a statement to the court by Mr. Cummings.

He began by reviewing the crime, and then went on to an exhaustive description of the evidence.

On the previous February 4, the Rev. Hubert Dahme, 58-year-old pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic (German) church in Bridgeport, took his customary constitutional after his evening meal. He walked in a northward direction along the west side of Main street, and had reached High street when a man approached from the rear and shot him in the head.

Father Dahme died, without regaining consciousness, about an hour later at St. Vincent's hospital. The murderer had been committed at about 7:45 o'clock.

The weight of the testimony indicated that the assassin fled up High street, and that he was of medium height, comparatively young, wore a gray cap and dark, three-quarter-length overcoat with a velvet collar. As usual, not all the eyewitnesses agreed on these details.

Because of the tragic nature of the murder, and the prominence of the victim, public interest ran high and the police tracked the car with vigor. Witnesses were found who thought they had seen the stranger walking with Father Dahme on several occasions a week or 10 days prior to the murder; others insisted they saw two men running away from the scene in a southerly direction along Main street.

No real evidence of a motive could be uncovered. Some persons interviewed by the police thought Father Dahme had been slain because of a grudge or some unidentified enmity. (Incidentally, a substantial reward was offered for information leading to the detection of the criminal.)

The autopsy showed that the .32-caliber bullet had entered at a point in the lobe of the left ear, passing in the rear through the cerebellum upward through the cerebrum and stopping on the right side. It appeared that the gun had been pointed upward at an angle of 40 to 45 degrees. The bullet, of course, was extracted.

No suspicion was directed toward anyone until one week after the shooting.

At about midnight, February 11, a police officer in Norwalk, Conn., observed a man who appeared to be lurking behind a tree. The officer, who was in civilian clothes, talked to him, then took him to a police station, where a five-chambered .32-caliber revolver of German make was found on his person. Four chambers of the gun were loaded and the other chamber was empty.

The owner of the weapon, a slightly built youth with brown eyes and brown hair, said he was Harold Israel, 23, that he hailed from Bridgeport, and that he was on his way to his father's home in Pennsylvania. (He came of Pennsylvania Dutch stock.) He had come from Bridgeport that evening, he said, and was entirely without funds or a place to sleep.

Asked whether he knew anything about the murder of Father Dahme, he replied that he had heard about it, that two buddies of his had been near the scene at the time of the shooting.

The next morning Israel was sentenced to 30 days for carrying a concealed weapon and was lodged in the county jail at Bridgeport. He maintained that he knew nothing as to the cause of Father Dahme's death. Later, when questioned at a station house, he continued his protestations of innocence.

The prisoner said that he had served a stretch in the United States army. While stationed at Panama he had met Charles Chhal and Nick Cardullo, both of whom also had army experience. After his discharge, he had come to Bridgeport by various stages to join Chhal, with whom he roomed. Israel had continued to take him to some extent after his savings, about $300, had been spent.

Then they were joined by Nick Cardullo and the three continued to occupy a room on Stratford avenue, only a short walk from the center of town.

Witnesses were taken to the police station to view the suspect. Some of them identified Israel as the person seen running from the scene of the crime. Knowledge of this identification was soon known throughout Bridgeport, and the report was published in the newspapers.

State's Attorney Cummings, continuing his resume, stated that at this point another witness against the accused, Nellie Trafton, appeared in the case.

Miss Trafton, at the time of the murder, was a waitress in the Star restaurant, located at the northwest corner of Main and High streets. She had worked there for two or three days; prior to that she had worked in the Philadelphia Lunch, which occupied the ground floor of the house in which Israel and his friends lived. She had become acquainted with them during this previous employment.

When the arrest of Harold Israel became known, Miss Trafton was heard to say, while in the Star restaurant, that she knew him and believed he was guilty as she had seen him pass the restaurant shortly before the murder. Moreover, she said that on a previous occasion he had exhibited a revolver to her and had said that he was going to kill someone with it.

The result of this development was that the waitress was escorted to headquarters, where she repeated her story and identified Israel as the person she saw pass the restaurant on the night in question.

Now the suspect was subjected to questioning by various members of the police force. There was no evidence that he had been beaten or tortured, but he did have to endure a severe grilling which continued from about noon, February 13, until 4 p. m. the next day. He made sundry conflicting statements and finally admitted the murder.

He said that he killed the priest in the way described, and that he had fled over the course which the assassin was supposed to have taken.

The confession was reduced to writing and signed by Israel.

Asked where the fatal cartridge could be found, he replied that it was in the toilet of the place where he had boarded. This cartridge was retrieved by the police and it was assumed that it was the one used in the killing.

The next morning he was arraigned in the city court and bound over to the criminal superior court.

Subsequently, Charles J. Van Amburg, a ballistics expert, made a test and reported that, in his opinion, the fatal bullet had been fired through Israel's revolver. This appeared to be the clinching proof, and the case came under the jurisdiction of the state's attorney's office for trial.

"The case against the accused seemed overwhelming," Cummings told the court. "Upon its face, at least, it seemed like a well-nigh perfect case, affording but very little difficulty in the matter of successful prosecution."

However, the state's attorney found that there were many people who believed that Israel was innocent, that he had been the victim of a "most extraordinary combination of circumstances." Mr. Cummings felt, therefore, that it was highly important that every fact be scrutinized.

"It goes without saying," he added, "that it is just as important for a state's attorney to use the great powers of his office to protect the innocent as it is to conviction the guilty."

He began to make a thorough study of the case. He interviewed every person of consequence who had anything to say for or against the accused. He carefully examined every exhibit. And in addition to this he enlisted the aid and advice of numerous experts.

"It has been a long, tedious and exacting experience," he told the court, "but I have reached certain definite conclusions which, with your honor's permission, I shall now proceed to develop."

On February 15, the day after his confession, Israel was examined by three physicians, who united in a written report to the effect that the accused was in a highly nervous condition, physically and mentally exhausted, and was incapable of making a dependable statement. During the questioning by the doctors he had both admitted and denied the crime.

They examined him again on the 18th, after he'd had a good rest. This time their report stated that he was now competent to confer with representatives of the state's attorney's office and with his own counsel and with physicians.

While in this somewhat restored condition Israel was questioned. He denied his guilt and reasserted his innocence.

The prisoner was asked why he had confessed. He replied that he had become so tired he was willing to admit anything in order to get a rest, and because everything was against him.

In subsequent conferences with the physicians and with Dr. George Garlick, "said Mr. Cummings, "I ascertained that the accused was a person of low mentality, of the moron type, quiet and docile in demeanor, totally lacking in any characteristic of brutality or viciousness, of very weak will and peculiarly subject to the influence of suggestion."

A careful study of the statements made by the accused—his first statements in which he denied his guilt; his subsequent admissions; and his final reassertions of innocence—failed to uncover one single fact or statement which added any information or supplied any detail that was missing from the state's case. That is, all admissions of an incriminating character were admissions with relation to facts already known to the police prior to the examination of the accused.

Similarly he broke down the identifications of other witnesses, concluding that, in his opinion, they could never stand up in court.

As for the possibly most important witness, Nellie Trafton—

She had testified that she saw the accused pass by the Star restaurant at 7:35, 10 minutes before the crime. He waved his hand to her, she said, and she waved back. In view of the fact that Israel claimed he was no found the supposed fatal cartridge, the landlady found another cartridge, also empty, in the toilet room. The accused and his companions had occasionally used the gun in shooting practice in the woods; their habit had been to throw the empty shells anywhere they chanced to be.

Examination of both empty shells disclosed that they had been exploded by a firing pin which was relatively dull, whereas the firing pin of the weapon found in Israel's possession was comparatively sharp. Inquiry showed that two weeks before the murder Charles Chhal, at the request of Israel, took the gun to the carpenter shop where he was employed and had the firing pin sharpened.

"It is thus clear that the supposed fatal cartridge had actually been exploded long before the crime was committed," said Mr. Cummings.

He now discussed the testimony of various eyewitnesses. He pointed out that while most observers agreed that the assassin had worn a gray hat, another witness insisted it was a dark hat. The cap of the accused, the only one he possessed, could hardly be called either gray or dark. It was of a slightly greenish or olive tint.

One eyewitness swore the murder weapon was "one of those black pistols" which did not shine. Israel's gun was nickel-plated. The discrepancy, the prosecutor commented, "presents a very interesting situation which would in itself prove quite embarrassing to the state in the event of trial."

Similarly he broke down the identifications of other witnesses, concluding that, in his opinion, they could never stand up in court.

NEW BOOKS -

The Well-Plowed Field.
AN ATLANTA ARGOSY: An Anthology of Atlanta Poetry. Edited by Ruth Elgin Suddeh. Franklin Printing Corporation, 175 pp. $2.

The lot of the anthologist is a hard one, and it becomes doubly hard when the editor must continue to live in the same town. There are too many elements to be pleased: the editor, the contributors, the public, the educationists, if one is aiming at an adoption: faith, hope, charity sometimes, and chance. But somebody is going to be hurt in the jam. In the case of this book, the brave editor will suffer less, I think, than most compilers, for she has managed well. It will surprise many that she has found so much good poetry in Atlanta; for what you please, we are still dreaming down here, as a Virginia novelist once wrote me after venturing into the intellectual storm-center called New York.

—ROBERT ENGLAND.

American Statesman.
ELIHU ROOT. By Philip C. Jessup. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 2 vols., 563-588 pp. Illust. $7.50.

After reading approximately 1,000 pages in two volumes devoted to the biography of Elihu Root, written by Philip C. Jessup, this compiler has ascribed a wealth of information about what occurred "behind the curtain" concerning some of the outstanding events in American history covering a period of nearly half a century. He will remember only the highlights recorded in this outstanding work, as will anyone who takes the time required to read these two admirably prepared volumes. However, with them at hand for ready reference, many disputed points that arise in years to come will bring them to light for an authoritative opinion on some phase of American history, for Elihu Root participated prominently in the great events of the nation at a period when history was in the making.

The author goes exhaustively and almost tiresomely into Root's family history and the early life of this man who helped to shape the policies of the nation; however, that may be overlooked in view of what follows. The "upstate" boy completed his college career, went to New York city, studied law while teaching in various schools to pay his living expenses, and the coming of time became one of the leading practitioners of the city, state and nation his specialty being corporate affairs, which early in his career linked him with the financial interests of the nation.

An ardent Republican he was an outstanding leader in party affairs, but was always opposed to Tom Platt, the famous "gang boss" of New York politics. When General Alger was eased out as secretary of war following the Spanish war, Root succeeded him in McKinley's cabinet, and in this capacity he was in charge of the rehabilitation of Cuba and Porto Rico. Likewise the Philippine insurrection was his problem, and he was principally responsible for sending Taft over there to straighten out affairs in our new island possession and of starting the round Ohioan on his way to the presidency.

Continuing as secretary of war under Roosevelt the two became the best of friends, the explosive and headstrong President often being held in check by the calm counsel of his legal advisor. Root served on a commission to settle a dispute regarding the boundary between the United States and Canada, and aided Roosevelt in the Panaman Canal affair. Tiring of his position he resigned and returned to the practice of law, being succeeded by Taft. At the death of John Hay, Roosevelt induced him to return to the cabinet as secretary of state. In this position he closed up the troubled relations with Cuba, handled some difficult troubles in Central America, and kept the United States out of war with Japan following the California troubles of that period.

Root could have had the Republican nomination for President to succeed Roosevelt; it would have been tantamount to election, for Roosevelt put Taft forward when, believing himself to be too old to tackle the task, Root declined. His intention was to retire from public life at the close of Roosevelt's administration, but was induced to take Platt's place in the United States senate. Taft declined to be bossed by Roosevelt, and they split, with the latter starting his historic progressive movement, which Root could not follow, as there was another split of historic consequences. Root was president of the Republican national convention, and his rulings against the Roosevelt faction accentuated their personal animosity. Taft was nominated for a second term, Roosevelt bolted, and Wilson was elected.

Root was persuaded to compete with Hughes for the Republican nomination in 1912, but Roosevelt and his disgruntled supporters defeated his belated bid for the presidency. Advanced in years Root now retired from public position, but to the end of his life he was consulted as an "elder statesman" in important affairs, being particularly active in formulating America's policy in regard to the League of Nations. Root died in 1929, having had little use for his policies.

Hotel Patrons.

TALES OF A WAYWARD INN. By Frank Case. Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York. 390 pp. Illust. $3.

Mr. Case, owner and operator of New York's famed Algonquin hotel, breaks down and tells all. A third of a century spent in catering to New York's literati has given him plenty of material to work with, and he makes the most of it. No hotel-keeper's manual, this—Mr. Case confines his workday observations to a recipe for a coconut layer cake and the sage remarks that "Eggs should be selected as Ziegfeld selected chorus girls—youth is the prime essential." The bulk of the volume is taken up by the strange antics of his wayward clientele—a roster of interesting, illustrious, and slightly batty individuals who have never before appeared together on the same bill. Such peerless roustabouts as Bob Benchley, H. L. Mencken, Douglas Fairbanks, Irving Cobb and all the Barrymores—the list is endless and overpowering. Mr. Case, however, is by no means a bore of greatness—he makes gentle, witty and good-natured fun at the entire lot. One is not altogether convinced of his devotion to truth for truth's sake—it is somewhat difficult to accuse him of telling a whopper, but it seems to this reader that he sometimes enters those regions where truth ceases to be self-evident and must be buttressed by a reputation for sobriety and fair dealing. In describing the depression, for instance, Mr. Case states that so few customers entered his caravanserai that his waiters became shy and bashful, and "one poor fellow ran and hid under a table and we had to coax him out by patting him on the head and cooing." The reader will observe that Mr. Case almost fell from grace at this point.

Not the least interesting parts of this narrative are the numerous letters written by his customers, and the illustrations by such as "Ding" Darling, Hendrik Van Loon, Fiske, Frank, etc. A great volume for a week-end trip. OLE H. LEXAU.

In Palestine.

GOING HOME, by Ernest Harthorn. The Bobbs-Merrill Co., New York. 319 pp. $2.50.

This is the story of the pilgrimage of a German Jew to the land of his fathers in Palestine, again the homeland dream of his people. From Denmark, where he had found peace and happiness as a writer, Harthorn journeyed to see this old, yet new, country in which the dreams of his race have been centered. From it, the reader gains a deeper understanding of the tragedy involved in the gates to further immigration in Palestine.

The bitter pathos and the rich dreams; the drive that has built a new structure on the dry wreckage of history; the accomplishments and the disappointments of these people who have come home from the far reaches of the earth have been captured for the author's narrative. He has mirrored a people that have gained new strength from tragedy.

Success Stories.

READING THE PRICE TAGS OF LIFE, by M. K. Wisehart. Blue Ribbon Books, New York. 359 pp. $1.94.

Mr. Wisehart has roamed around the world studying successful people for over 25 years. Wherever he found some lucky individual who had found the key to success and used it, the author interviewed him with a three-fold purpose in mind. First, what steps did these victorious persons take to win success? Second, what did victory teach them that the rest of us can use? And last, and most important of all, what elements and methods, if any, were common to them all?

The results of the interviews with more than ten thousand individuals have appeared from time to time in the American Magazine, Good Housekeeping, Saturday Evening Post, Pictorial Review, Red Book, Reader's Digest and elsewhere—writings totaling more than two million words.

Out of the thousands of success stories certain basic principles of success were found to be invariably present in each case history. All that wealth of information and experience gathered in innumerable interviews was sifted, and the result is this book. It is a method of conduct and technique for successful living. It is the biography of a principle that is overwhelmingly victorious in the affairs of the world.

Frustration.

DREAMS OF YOUTH, by Philip Freud. Pilgrim House, New York. 234 pp. $2.

This latest work to appear from the gifted author of "The Book of Kings" and "The Merry Communist," seems to me to have been written some time ago. The author's subtle artistry is well in evidence, but there is not the same force and vitality that are contained in his other volumes. Of a somewhat misleading title, the present novel sketches the lives of four young men influenced by a woman of extraordinary vividness. But it is not a love story. The theme is the frustration, the vagueness, the unworthy compromise of

AGNES SCOTT-ERS GO A-DATING

Cupid's arrows were never more direct than the ones these students of Agnes Scott and their dates use when playing that popular game of darts. Left to right are Bob Agerton, Alta Webster, Ed Curry and Ann Wilds.

Students and dates get together at right below, when the signal for community singing is announced. This group is making merry in the "gym."

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Agnes Scott students have given their new dating system an "A" rating on the campus. The girls—from freshman to senior—gather two Saturday nights a month at the "gym" on the campus, or what is termed "recreation night." Between 7:30 and 10 o'clock the girls on the campus have dates and enjoy such sports as darts, shuffle board, bridge, and various table games. Their dates are friends from Atlanta and Decatur—Emory, Tech and other nearby colleges.

Freshmen and sophomores are not permitted to leave the campus for their dates, but the high and mighty junior and senior can drive away with their best boy friends for a date "in town" for a movie or a dance.

For the benefit of those students who were more or less newcomers to the campus and whose acquaintance in Atlanta and Decatur is limited, and also for the freshmen and sophomores, the new dating system was instituted by Jane Dryfoos, a senior, from New York. Jane is the vice-president of the Athletic Association at the college, and it was this group from whom she sought aid for the sponsorship of the bi-monthly recreation nights.

The evenings are staged with a view of "getting acquainted," and it is easily arranged with chaperons from the faculty. Members of the Athletic Association boys act as hostesses at the affairs.

Officers of the association to whom credit goes for this system "A" on the campus are Jane Moore Hamilton, of Dalton, president; Jane Dryfoos, of New York, vice-president; Ruth Slack, of Decatur, treasurer; and Virginia Milner, secretary, of Atlanta.

AFIELD WITH A NATURALIST

At the right is shown a feeding shelf at a window. When the birds get into the habit of coming to feed, one can sit inside the window and make observations on them easily.

Below this is shown a board shelter for the ground-feeding birds, for use in bad weather when the food will be covered with ice or snow. Bobwhites may be fed this way by people who are trying to establish them on game preserves or private estates.

The feeding places should be near trees, thickets of shrubbery, or some place to which the birds will come. Otherwise, they will not be likely to find the food. These sites should be protected from cats and other enemies that might hide and catch the birds when they come to eat. Placing the feeding table on a post, with a small fence around it, will help prevent this.

Indian Village Discovered at Sandtown, Near Atlanta

By BRUCE HALL.

Interesting information on the prehistoric and early historic Indians once living in Fulton county near Atlanta has been secured by the State Archaeological Survey conducted by WPA and sponsored by the University of Georgia and the State Department of Natural Resources.

Four burials, a collection of pottery and other relics have been uncovered, it was announced Saturday.

The exploration, the first undertaken under the state-wide archaeological survey sponsored by the University of Georgia and the State Department of Natural Resources, is under the supervision of Professor Robert Waughope, of the University faculty.

For several weeks WPA workers, under the direction of foremen who gained experience on the so-called Macon mounds project, have been excavating a field where surface collections of pottery had been found. The site is on the property of H. A. Alexander near Sandtown, 100 yards off the Campbellton road. It is at the northernmost point of an old Indian treaty line.

The Sandtown site investigated lies in the bottom lands along the edge of the river, at the northernmost point of the old Indian treaty line. Much of the site had already been destroyed through annual plowing and frequent river flooding; however, a slightly perceptible mound still marks the location of the village houses. Visitors to the site had often noticed the large number of broken fragments of pottery and other evidences of former Indian occupation.

The survey's field party began operations by digging a series of pits about 25 feet apart from the lower slopes of the upland across the bottoms to the river. By studying the profiles on the sides of these pits, it was found which one showed the thickest occupational debris, and these pits were then expanded.

With one burial, the remnants of a copper axe, with wooden handle; conch shell beads and a wood and metal ornamental button were found. A flat stone slab, resembling a primitive tombstone, was found in the same grave.

One excavation disclosed a round refuse pit, full of pottery fragments and some bone, in other unexcavated house site, marked by thick artificial clay floors, covered with sand, which had been built over an earlier occupation level. The outline of the house was traced by postholes left by wall poles and roof-supporting mainposts. Storage basins and other depressions were found in the floor of the house.

Professor Robert Waughope found that after this house was abandoned, the site was again occupied and used as a burial ground. One burial, on its left side with the legs flexed, lay directly on the house floor, but it is known that it was later than the house, since it lay directly on one of the postholes. With this burial was a funeral offering—a clay water bottle. Other burials nearby date to a still later period, and associated with them were various interesting funeral offerings.

In one grave the survey found a conch shell, several conch shell beads, and a fine copper axe still set in its wooden handle. Another skeleton, which was furnished with numerous small shell beads and some small copper ornaments, was seated cross-legged on some stone slabs, probably leaning against a large upright stone slab back.

Many thousand broken bits of pottery were turned up in the excavations, and these will be studied in the archaeological laboratory located at the University of Georgia. Professor Waughope believes that the village was a relatively late one, for the pottery seems to be of the "Lamar" type, characterized by a boldly defined stamped design and other identifying features.

Many citizens of Atlanta and other Georgia cities visited the excavations during the course of the work.

Largely through the efforts of the Society for Georgia Archaeology, of which Dr. C. C. Harrold, of Macon, is president, the people of Georgia have to a great extent been aroused in the rich pre-history of their state.

The work carried on under the survey is another step in the development of Georgia archaeology growing out of explorations made by WPA on three important sites—Macon, St. Simon and Irene.

Upon completion of the work in Fulton county other sites in the state will be investigated. Those interested in the project will welcome information as to the location of other mounds, Indian camp or village sites in the state, together with the names of owners of properties on which the sites are located.

The state-wide archaeological survey sponsored by the University of Georgia, under direction of Professor Robert Waughope, discovered in one pit an upstanding stone slab resembling a primitive tombstone. A wood and metal ornamental button can be seen at the base of the slab.

Fred Stewart, assistant WPA area supervisor, points to remnants of a water bottle found with one of four burials uncovered on the Indian village site near the banks of the Chattahoochee river, a few miles from Atlanta.

It's drill time. Priscilla Lane and Wayne Morris do a turn together in this scene. It's supposed to be from "Brother Rat," but V. M. I. isn't a co-ed school, though the girls play an important part in the school life. "Brother Rat" is current at the Fox theater.

Screens Go Collegiate This Week With Cadets, Internes Taking Bows

By LEE ROGERS.
Motion Picture Editor.

It's not a great picture and it's not spectacular but there are thousands of Atlantans who went to college who will readily appreciate the natural collegiate situations which arise in "Brother Rat," Fox feature this week. Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane (no longer publicized as sweethearts) get the star billing but Eddie Albert steals the show.

Shortly more serious but with its comic side is "Young Dr. Kildare," which brings Lew Ayres back from obscurity with the aid of Lionel Barrymore. This is the first of a new movie series by M-G-M, the studio which still backs in the success of the Hardy family films.

Barrymore is featured in another film this week—"You Can't Take It With You" which is now in its third week at the Rialto.

Evelyn Keyes, the Atlanta girl who thought she was a movie star and went to Hollywood to convince Cecile B. de Mille she was as good as she thought, gets her first featured role in "Sons of the Legion," opening today at the Capitol.

At the Paramount we find a Christmas shoppers' convenience. This theater is playing two pictures a week so shoppers will not run out of pictures to see while they relax. The technicolor "Heart of the North," a story of the Canadian mounted police, plays through tomorrow with "My Bill," Kay Francis starred, opens Tuesday.

The Rhodes gives us another week of "The Young in Heart."

Gay College Comedy Is 'Brother Rat,' Now Playing at Fox Theater.

The gayest, most natural comedy of college life we've ever seen is "Brother Rat," current show at the Fox theater. Many Atlantans remember pleasantly the stage show by that name which played at the Erlanger last spring.

Suffice it to say the screen version is just as good as the stage show, with just as many cracks, plus the added scope of scenery that the cameras allow.

Eddie Albert, of the original Broadway cast, has been recruited to play the part of Bing, the star baseball pitcher-country come to college—who gets his roommates in hot water after ice water in a perpetual series of college jams, including getting married, a shipping offense, becoming a father, losing the ball game to the school's digest, smuggling a girl into the dormitory, and many other such pranks (?)

Wayne Morris and Priscilla

Lane are the big names in the cast but the picture is so smoothly done, with everyone playing a part which fits someone we all know in college, that there is through four years instead of one. It's a picture you will all enjoy.

Lew Ayres Comes Back in Film Now Showing at Grand.

A new movie series is born with the showing of "Young Dr. Kildare" at Loew's Grand this week. Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore are cast in the leading roles. Lynne Carver and Priscilla Lane are in the cast. The picture is a comedy, successfully a comedy, but the title is "Brother Rat" is cast as a young intern in a big hospital who is apparently made the goat of all the old doctors (Barrymore) merciless ribbing.

The picture is smoothly executed. Lew Ayres and the always good Lionel Barrymore are far and away the standouts of a cast that includes Nat Pendleton as the country sweetheart of Kildare who sacrifices her love that the doctor may achieve his ambition and become a great diagnostician under the careful direction of Dr. Gillespie (Barrymore).

Lynne Carver has her first leading feminine role appearing as the country sweetheart of Kildare who sacrifices her love that the doctor may achieve his ambition and become a great diagnostician under the careful direction of Dr. Gillespie (Barrymore).

The story concerns a young inter who refuses a country practice with his father to go to the big city hospital to continue his study. There he gets in bad with the officials, allows a politician to him and saves the life of an heiress. Young Kildare is dismissed when he speaks out against the treatment prescribed by a great doctor who is treating the millionaire whose life Kildare saves.

But he is befriended by the grouchy Dr. Gillespie (Barrymore).

Evelyn Keyes Has Role in Capitol's 'Sons of the Legion' Opening Today.

She wanted to be in the movies and she did something about it. She went to Hollywood, hired herself a press agent and kept going until Cecile B. De Mille gave her a contract, sent her to dramatic and diction schools and then gave her a small part in "The Buccaneer."

That's how Evelyn Keyes, of Atlanta, crashed the movies—at least that's how the story goes.

Today she opens in a new picture, the first in which she has a leading role. She plays a veteran's daughter in "Sons of the Legion," the Capitol theater's feature for this week. Her romantic co-star is Tim Holt. Lynne Overman has the lead. Others in the cast are Elizabeth Patterson and William Frawley.

The story concerns the founding of a junior branch of a patriotic organization by sons of the American Legionnaire. The troubles they get into provide plenty of action.

On the stage the feature will be

"We've Got Everything," with a cast of 25 persons. Featured acts are Kozak & Trika, the Russian wire walkers; Watts & Moreland, the darktown strutters; Crewe & Summers, novelty dancers; Kelly Sisters and others.

Colds Annually Cost Movies $50,000

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 10.—Almost everybody, it seems, knows just what to do about a cold sore.

In spite of which "herpes labialis" still has the Hollywood make-up experts baffled and costs the studios an estimated $50,000 each year.

When news of the high cost of cold sores in Hollywood was first published, studio first aid departments were flooded with letters, packages and circulars offering "sure cures" for anywhere from one to five hundred dollars.

"Doc" Paul MacWilliams, chief of the Warner Brothers first aid department where cold sores recently delayed production on "Blackwell's Island," new John Garfield vehicle, received 20 such letters in one day. He threw them all away.

"Everybody can cure them," explains MacWilliams, "yet everybody has them at one time or other. It doesn't make sense. We'll continue to use our own mixture of camphor and benzoin until we've got a better fever blister on their lips."

Seasonal winds which stirred the top soil into dust storms are blamed for the most recent outbreak of "herpes labialis" in Hollywood.

Elmer Rice's New Broadway Play Tells Stirring Story of Democracy

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(P)—Few of the Broadway playwrights have been as ardent and wise as Elmer Rice in infusing his plays with a message and propaganda for those principles in American life he thinks should be maintained and encouraged. He adheres to this ideal in his newest drama, "American Landscape," which is both a vigorous exaltation of democracy and a subtle expose of the fallacies of the Nazi and Fascist states.

This is his story of a modern Connecticut family that has sprung through years of American history from stems that include such returning ghosts as Captain Samuel Dale, a veteran of the American Revolution; Captain Klein Schmidt, who came into the family from his German home during the Civil War and fought on the side of the Union; and Captain Anthony Dale, who was blinded and then died while serving with the A. E. F. in the World War.

shoes at a much lower cost, and who wish to buy his plant strictly to eliminate competition.

Nazi Best Buyer.

He finds that the best prospective purchaser of his factory properties is a German Nazi Bund who wish the grounds for one of their Hitler camps. From a strictly business viewpoint, the best proposition he can accept is to sell out to the factory chain and to the Nazi Bund. But, he dies before he can make a decision and the factory and lands go to his younger heirs. And they are left to decide if they will battle through a difficult economic problem, or if they will capitulate to the subsidized Nazi groups.

Rice has written here a strong and impassioned sermon on Democracy vs. Nazism as those two political theories conflict in this country. He does not attempt to evaluate the two theories as they exist at present in Europe. He is strictly concerned with the extent to which Nazi principles have invaded this country, their success or failure and the safeguards that Democracy must take to guarantee that our political system will not be jeopardized.

It is a stirring political and social document, but it is not always diverting theater. Perhaps the theater is too frivolous a medium for such a subject. But, Rice, from "On Trial" to "Street Scene," has never been a frivolous writer. So, too, "American Landscape" may be as successful as others of his plays.

Ghosts Return.

So these ghosts return from the dead to emphasize how American families are composed of many different races, how in this free country they lose their racial and nationalistic prejudices inherited from Europe and how they have the privilege here to speak their minds, to act as they please and not be harassed by the threat of being sent to a concentration camp.

The Dale family owns and operates in this year of 1938 a shoe factory in Connecticut. Captain Frank Dale, the current owner of the old family factory, is faced with modern problems such as cheap foreign competition and labor racketeers. He decides that it is easier for him to sell out the factory and retire. He has an opportunity to sell the factory to an industrial chain that can produce

The Planets--Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

DECEMBER 11, SUNDAY: A feeling of recklessness is likely to prevail until 4:25 p.m. you should plan to be as practical as possible, for you may be filled with idealistic schemes, or come in contact with people or affairs that are vague and unsatisfactory. After 4:25 p.m. favors a determined effort to attain your desires, seeking favors, and dealing with prominent people in your life.

DECEMBER 12, FRIDAY: Previous to 12:50 a.m., at which time you will need to use sound common sense to avoid conflicts, accidents, and a feeling of reverberation. Between 10:50 a.m. and 12:27 p.m. is a favorable time to meet with people of a responsible nature, and enter into important propositions. The remainder of the day is most favorable for dealing with people in a confidential way, but between 12:27 p.m. and 1:18 p.m. does not favor easy dealings with loved ones.

DECEMBER 13, MONDAY: Get your best work in previous to 8:40 a.m., for after that hour you should be cautious in messages and journeys. Appearances may not be what they seem, and it will not be easy to separate truth from fiction. Use care around water and chemicals.

DECEMBER 14, TUESDAY: Today is apt to be a time of speed, when you can get rid of old correspondence and your mental activities will be speeded up. Previous to 4:26 p.m. favors social affairs, artistic matters, dealing with unusual people, but real estate, dealings with older people, and strenuous opposition to practical ideas and conservative people are not favored.

DECEMBER 15, WEDNESDAY: You are likely to encounter much sensitiveness in others previous to 11:30 a.m., or have a feeling of frustration. This is a good time to pay strict attention to your own work. Between 11:30 a.m. and 1:40 p.m. favors snappy action.

DECEMBER 16, THURSDAY: Today is to be a time of speed, when you will be colored by the influence pre-

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice

TOONERVILLE FOLKS
BY FONTAINE FOX

LEM WORTLE,
THE PRACTICAL JOKER.

This year, let's recapture the old-time Christmas spirit. Don't give a present just because you "owe" one to somebody—let your gifts be made because you like people. Read Elizabeth MacRae Boykin's column in The Constitution each day. From now until Christmas, she'll be giving lots of suggestions for the right kind of gifts—suggestions you'll find helpful and within your budget.
